

Passengers Trudge Three Miles for Help

'A Sheet of Flame Came Down Aisle'

By BRANT FELKER

CAMPBELL RIVER — "There was no warning at all. We came out of the clouds and there were the trees, all around us."

"We went bump, bump, bump, like a man going downstairs, then spun around and a sheet of flame came down the aisle."

Campbell River lawyer Al Lazerte paused and looked around the lobby of the Campbell River hospital. Two hours earlier he had been a passenger in the plane that crashed. Five or six other passengers who, like Mr. Lazerte, didn't appear to have suffered more than a shaking up, were walking around the lobby.

Mr. Lazerte pointed to one of them. "He was first out," he said.

He was pointing to Jim Beatty, a Vancouver mechanic.

Mr. Beatty said he ran to the emergency door and opened it. Mr. Lazerte followed him, then Margaret Hemphill of Oakland, Calif.

Meanwhile, other passengers were trying to get the regular back door opened, but it was jammed.

"I gave it a heave with my back," said Wray Compton, a Campbell River millworker. "One of the stewardesses was trying to get it open, and I just pushed over her. She was afraid I would step on her. The door gave, I jumped out and hauled her out after me."

She was followed by Guy Young, a Gold River millworker, and Nils Westahagen, a Vancouver marine mechanic, Mr. Compton said.

"Once we were out," Mr. Lazerte said, "there was a small explosion and the plane just burned up in front of our eyes. There wasn't anything we could do to stop it."

He said a woman in the front of the cabin

Senate Puts Lid on Troops For Thailand, Laos Duties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate voted Wednesday to put a ceiling on overall U.S. troop strength and to limit any U.S. defence of Thailand and Laos to providing supplies and equipment — not men.

The amendments, with the Pentagon's stamp of approval, passed overwhelmingly as the senate drove toward passage of a $20 billion defence procurement bill after eight weeks of debate. A vote on the bill may be held today.

- Lawyer once saved Ho's life. Page 41

Backers of the ceiling measure hailed it as a broad prohibition on the use of U.S. forces in Southeast Asia — "A Gulf of Tonkin resolution in reverse."

But the defence department

contended it did not constitute a legal limitation on U.S. forces and decided not to fight it. It consequently passed 86 to 0.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, (R-Ky.) sponsored the measure as an amendment to the procurement bill, which contains $2.5 billion for support of local forces in Vietnam, Thailand and Laos.

Cooper contended the language in the bill was so broad that it had "the same legal authority as a declaration of war." He demanded a change to prevent the senate from unwittingly approving another Gulf of Tonkin resolution — the controversial 1964 vote which the Johnson administration used as the legal basis for escalating the Vietnam war.

Quebec's 'Pride' Now QC

QUEBEC (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was named a Queen's counsel by the Quebec cabinet Wednesday.

Could this be interpreted as a sign of détente in Ottawa-Quebec relations? A reporter asked Justice Minister Romy Paul.

"Relations between the justice minister and Ottawa have never been strained," he replied.

"It simply means that the bar of the province of Quebec is proud to see one of its members in such high office."

CAMPBELL RIVER — Three persons were killed and 12 suffered minor injuries Wednesday night when a Pacific Western airlines plane crashed in thick fog near here.

Survivors said they escaped through an emergency door and a rear door which had to be forced open by one of the passengers.

A few minutes later, there was a small explosion and the plane erupted into flames.

Crashes Into Trees

A PWA spokesman identified the dead as: Pilot Capt. Brian Bourne, 33, of Richmond; first officer V. H. Hennell, 57, of Vancouver and passenger Mrs. J. Jones of Willow Springs, Ohio.

The spokesman said the pilot was an experienced veteran. The twin-engine Convair 640, carrying 11 passengers and a crew of four, crashed in second-growth trees in Elk Falls Park, two miles north of Campbell River, its destination on a flight from Vancouver.

The aircraft went down about 7 p.m. A forest lookout, near the scene, Lawrie Lawrenson said fog was so thick at the time that he neither saw nor heard the crash.

The plane was reported overdue at Campbell River airport about an hour later, and it wasn't until two of the survivors had hiked out three miles along a service road before being taken to a telephone by a hunter that it became known the plane had crashed.

The forest lookout said, "I had wind of about 40 miles per hour and it was so black with fog I couldn't see or hear. The fog was real thick. I couldn't put my hand outside the door or I'd lose sight of it."

"I couldn't see anywhere. The first I knew was I thought I heard a chopper flying around and then I saw the red light on the chopper."

"I came down and talked to some people coming up the road and they said there had been a crash. I couldn't believe a plane would be up in the sky in weather like that."

Star Cancels TV Series Over Smokes Commercial

Reynolds

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Debbie Reynolds announced Wednesday she was cancelling production of her new television series because a cigarette commercial was aired on the program's debut Tuesday night. Nine segments of the series already had been filmed and presumably will still be shown.

Miss Reynolds said the cigarette commercial was in direct violation of her agreement with NBC. She said she felt she had fully outlined in advance her feelings about cigarettes and commercials which she felt were "directly opposed to health and well being."

Prisoner Right, He IS Innocent

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Frank Sawyer, 70, jailed 37 years ago for a bank robbery he said he didn't commit, was pardoned Wednesday by Governor Robert Docking. The governor said Sawyer is innocent of the 1932 bank robbery.

Sawyer has been serving a 20-to-100-year sentence for the robbery of a Fort Scott, Kan., bank in 1932.

A former United States public enemy No. 1, Alvin Karpis, now on parole in Montreal, had said that he and several others committed the bank robbery 37 years ago and that Sawyer did not take part.

The man who prosecuted Sawyer also testified. He said he now believes that Sawyer did not participate in the robbery.

SOUTHAMPTON, England (UPI) — A thief stole a $2,880 painting, Robert Motherwell's "Beside The Sea," from the art gallery aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth 2, police said Wednesday.

Tars Brawl, Four Killed

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — About 80 Japanese and Chinese merchant seamen brawled in the streets with knives, fists, rocks and chairs. Four were killed and several others injured, police said.

"First reports are that Japanese sailors were flashing a lot of money around. They attracted all the girls and fighting started," said Cape Town criminal investigation chief Brig. J. Visagie.

Dief at 74 Still bigger than life, no image of frailty now

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — The member of Parliament for Prince Albert turns 74 today and he says he hasn't felt better in years.

"You don't see many days when I am absent from the House of Commons," John Diefenbaker said in a private pre-birthday interview.

"I've had wonderful health in the last 15 years. The Lord has been good to me."

Still running free is the wide range of emotions that made him such a tumultuous figure as Conservative leader and prime minister — the high-pitched chuckle as he ponders the amusing story he will tell in his next speech; the mood of sombre reflection; the stern and demanding voice of doom when he deals with current political issues.

Mr. Diefenbaker, even while leaning back with his legs crossed in his swivel chair in his parliamentary office, still seems larger than life. Although less sure of step, there is no image of the frailty of the old.

"I don't know how I look for a man my age," he said. "But I would take on any of these babies for a run — anybody 45 or over."

He still takes a daily 40-minute walk around 6 a.m. "on the double" through treed suburban Rockcliffe, where he lives quietly in a house with his wife, Olive.

It is an ironic footnote that Mr. Diefenbaker lives among the moneyed elite, the kind of people he was never really at home with. Rockcliffe is that kind of place.

A Rockcliffe neighbor is his greatest oldtime political rival, former prime minister Lester Pearson, now retired from politics.

"I never see him although I walk by there," he said. The old man, a little hard of hearing, looked at a First World War picture of himself in uniform on the opposite wall.

"I wouldn't have believed 53 years ago when that picture was taken overseas that I would be here today," he said. Invalidated home to Canada following an accidental injury over there, his weight went down to 128 from 180. It didn't come back easily. He was 140 when

Diabetic Nasser Ailing

Premier Bahgat Talhouk of Jordan said Wednesday that Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser was too ill to see him during his three-day visit to Cairo. In Beirut it was reported Nasser has started a purge to avert Soviet efforts to oust him.

Talhouk, speaking on arrival from Cairo, said "Nasser is sick and under medical treatment". Nasser is a diabetic but it was not known if this was the cause of his present ailment.

In Beirut, the independent newspaper Al Jarida said the key official dismissed in the Nasser administration was Ali Sabry, former premier and more recently secretary general of Nasser's Arab Socialist Union Party.

The newspaper, quoting unidentified Egyptian observers, said Sabry was the Kremlin's choice to replace Nasser. It said the Kremlin planned to engineer Nasser's overthrow while he was in Russia for medical treatment later this month.

Al Jarida said the Soviet Union wants to topple Nasser because of widening conflicts with him on the issues of armaments for Egypt, Russian influence in Egypt and the overall Middle East problem.

U.S. Warships In Black Sea

ISTANBUL (AP) — Despite Soviet protests, two U.S. destroyers sailed through the Dardanelles Wednesday en route to the Black Sea on a four-day cruise. It was the second visit to the Black Sea this year by the Newman Perry and the Norris, both part of the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

Second Highest in Canada—Report

B.C. Tax Lowest—Bennett

Premier Bennett said Tuesday the only fair basis for comparing British Columbia's provincial taxes with other provinces is tax rates, not average per capita taxes.

The premier, who is also the finance minister, said on this basis taxation in B.C. is the lowest in Canada.

He was commenting on a report by an eastern tax authority, OCH Canadian Ltd., that B.C. taxpayers are the second hardest hit by their province's tax rates.

The company said that the per capita provincial tax in B.C. was $267 on the average in the 1968-69 fiscal year compared with the national average of $348.

Mr. Bennett said in an interview that per capita income in B.C. is higher than the national average "so if a man is making $50,000 a year here while he may make only $30,000 a year in Ontario or Quebec, naturally he pays more taxes."

Alcoholic Attitude
'20 Years Behind'

British Columbia is more than 20 years behind the rest of the country in its attitude toward alcoholics, members of the Greater Victoria Association on Alcoholism were told Wednesday.

Edward Bergeron, long a member of the association executive, said he was part of a delegation which made representations about the plight of the alcoholic to the provincial department of health, and all it got was a "runaround."

NO SUPPORT

"There was absolutely no support for a social-medical program," Mr. Bergeron said. "They have such a program going in Alberta and in other provinces, but it seems the minister of health here just doesn't want any part of the problem."

In the Victoria area, he said, there were no official facilities for a board-and-room program and for medical treatment and therapy. It would cost $150,000 to set up such an institution for the Victoria area, but the government just didn't seem to be interested.

President John Gough told about the association's own effort, Halfway House. It was started in January on Fernwood Road, and when this residence was sold in June, another was found at 1003 Vancouver.

An average of six or seven men occupied the house for periods from a week to 10 days. Mr. Gough said. Their maintenance was paid for by the welfare allowance most of them received and a $1,991 grant from Greater Victoria municipalities.

The men received medical and psychiatric care and counselling from people familiar with the problem of the alcoholic.

WORK PROGRAM

There was a recreational and work program to keep the occupants of the house busy.

However, there had not been the expected demand for the service, Mr. Gough said. It was thought that there would be some alcoholics who would prefer not to go to Harbor Lights, the Salvation Army institution, because of evangelistic connotations, but apparently the service Halfway House was able to offer was not as badly needed as its sponsors thought when it was started.

The house could accommodate 10 to 12 men, Mr. Gough said.

River hospital, Dr. J. R. Ross said none of the survivors was seriously injured. They suffered cuts and bruises, he said, and had a "very fortunate escape."

Many of them walked around in the lobby of the hospital as they waited to be checked.

The PWA spokesman identified nine of the survivors as: Al Lazerte, Campbell River; Jim Beatty, Vancouver; Margaret Hemphill, Oakland, Calif.; Wray Compton, Campbell River; Guy Young, Gold River; Nils Westahagen, Vancouver; a Mr. Armstrong; R. J. Klee of Seattle and a Constable Woolridge of Campbell River.

The Convair, a 50-passenger turbo-prop, was approaching Campbell River on a 50-minute flight from Vancouver. There was no indication it sent out any emergency call by radio.

RCMP said the fuselage remained generally intact. The injured were brought to hospital by two ambulances and private cars. All were released from hospital within three hours.

Cause of the crash of PWA Flight 627 was not immediately known. PWA sent its own investigation team to the area and transport department investigators began a formal investigation.

Bodies of the pilot, co-pilot and the woman were badly burned, Dr. Ross said. "None of the survivors was burned. They had abrasions and contusions. They were very fortunate."

It was the first crash of a regular scheduled PWA passenger flight since 14 were killed in the crash of a DC-3 at the Port Hardy airfield June 23, 1957.

Six were killed in a chartered PWA Grumman Goose 60 miles north of Prince Rupert, March 10, 1966, and five died in the crash of a chartered Mallard in the Kitimat area Aug. 26, 1955.

didn't come out with the rest, nor did he see any sign of the crew.

"With those flames," he said, "no one in front had a chance."

Mr. Young said he and Mr. Compton found a forest service road near the crash scene and started out to find a house.

He said they must have walked more than three miles in a hour before they met a hunter with a car who gave them a ride to the nearest house, the residence of R. Pendergast.

They telephoned police in Campbell River, Mr. Compton said, and waited for them to arrive. He said he went back with the RCMP to lead them to the crash scene and Mr. Young waited for the first ambulance to guide it to the site.

John D Bigger Than Life at 74

first elected to the Commons 30 years ago.

"Now, I'm back to my weight of 53 years ago, 175 or 180," he said, pleased at the thought. He had two subsequent serious illnesses, in 1924 and 1945.

Short of power, living largely on reputation, he indulges himself in the popular non-partisan feeling for him that has grown up since his rejection by his own party in 1967.

The affection that is shown to me across this country by those of all political faiths is one of the greatest rewards that anyone can have in life," he said.

He is on the go much of the time delivering speeches. He has time to accept only one of 10 invitations.

Today, he'll be in Winnipeg to deliver a birthday speech to the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews which has given him their 1969 human relations award.

Always the politician, his face lit up when he said the council event is a sellout. He says he gets bigger crowds now for such non-campaign events than when he was at the height of his power.

He rifled through the stack of letters he got that day. He gets a heavy volume—requests for advice or assistance; letters from young people; invitations to speak and so on. In this way, he continues to play the role of a constituency politician, but his name makes his constituency the country.

Mr. Diefenbaker says he has had many offers to return to work as a trial lawyer.

But I've appointed so many of the judges, I feel it would be indiscreet to appear before them," They might be biased in his favor.

Asked whether he had any regret about his decision to try to succeed himself as party leader at the 1967 leadership convention which supplanted him, he said: "I never live in the past."

Outside the Parliament buildings, Mr. Diefenbaker's tall, straight figure is quickly recognized by tourists, particularly immigrants. His lifelong theme of the importance of an equal break for all—unhyphenated Canadians—is still remembered.

His small office staff gave him a birthday cake Wednesday in his office, a day ahead of time because he would be absent today on the Winnipeg trip. Olive was there, and a crowd of reporters and television cameras recording another step as an old politician runs out the string.

LONG HOURS

But he declines to fade away. I have had a long life. I worked long hours," he told them. And I have enjoyed myself. With the passing years my enjoyment does not in any way decrease."

His birthday message was a reflection of his political career in which the call to arms, the pitched battle in the political arenas of the country and the ringing declaration were the mark of the man.

And now, in his little two-room office, with a few of his aides from the time of power looking on, he said his birthday wish was for a great declaration of national goals. There is fear and frustration in the land. There must be a declaration of pride and purpose.

ARCTIC QUESTION

But still the current politician, he said he wanted above all in 1969 a clear and unequivocal declaration that the disputed waters between the islands of the Arctic archipelago belong to Canada.

But in a more light hearted way, he also promised not to grow sideways to go with his crinkly, grey-white hair.

No Specific Treatment
For St. Vitus Dance

By G. T. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My niece has what we used to call St. Vitus dance and does not seem to be making any headway toward recovery. Rest and certain diet is all she has been told to do. What is the cause of this sickness and what should be done for it? How long does it usually take to recover?—Mrs. M.H.B.

St. Vitus dance (technically known as chorea, or Sydenham's chorea) is part of rheumatic fever—not in all cases, of course, but that is what causes it. Most of the patients are children under the age of 14, and more often they are girls, than boys.

It involves spasmodic, jerky movements, and the young patients often make faces quite involuntarily. They drop things, stumble on stairs, have trouble writing.

The condition gradually corrects itself, but it frequently takes in the neighborhood of three months or so which can seem like a long time. In about a third of all cases there will be recurrences (perhaps two or three attacks) which are more likely to occur in springtime. The reason for this is not clear. There is no specific treatment, but since the bizarre movements are less likely to occur while the child is sleeping, or resting, rest is important. In many cases sedation may be advisable.

Diet has no direct effect on St. Vitus dance, but since the child is not in robust health, and may have a poor appetite, it makes sense to see that he be given well-balanced meals.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has had diabetes since 1953, and six years ago he became impotent. Our sex life is terrible.

He is 57 and has been taking just about every kind of a pill you can think of for 14 years. I am sure the pills are to blame, but when I try to explain this to him he gets mad and says the real reason we have such a lousy love life is "because you don't have any sex appeal any more."

Pills have ruined our marriage and killed my love for my husband. I need your advice.—T.H.

Your husband has had diabetes for at least 15 years. Impotence from this is not unusual. It is cruel for him to blame you for lack of charm, but I think it may be just as bad for you make an issue of the subject.

The pills (which you listed in your letter) would not cause impotence—but some of them, the tranquilizers for example, could have become necessary just because of the friction has grown up between you.

I grant that sex is important, but if it becomes impossible, other things remain important, too, such as two people trying to make each other as happy, and contented as possible despite the difficulties.

Strategic Arms Limitations

Russia Set to Start Talks

LONDON (UPI) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko is expected to propose Soviet-American talks on Strategic Arms Limitations to begin next month, probably in Helsinki, diplomatic sources said Wednesday.

Gromyko was expected to make the move when he meets with U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers in New York next week on the fringes of the UN General Assembly. It was not clear whether it would be conditional on advance arrangements on the scope of the talks. The sources said a date around mid-October is envisaged by the Soviets, with Helsinki as the meeting site, though both date and place were said to be negotiable. The United States named Geneva or Vienna as possible venues.

Moscow agreed in principle to have the SALT talks with the United States last month, but has so far failed to give the formal go-ahead. A date by late September was first expected. The Russians have, for reasons of their own, now apparently chosen a further brief delay, the sources said.

The United States has been seeking a start of the talks for some time, but Russia has not responded, despite repeated prodding. The United States proposed a date between July 31 and Aug. 15 but received no reply from the Kremlin.

The talks, once they start, are expected to extend over a long period. Some predict a period of several years.

One of the major problems to be tackled, even before negotiations begin will be the problem of an agenda.

The Russians want to know, diplomatic sources said, what the scope of the talks is to be and the United States presumably also will want to define the area of the projected discussions.

Another related problem is whether wider political problems are to be linked with the SALT talks.

The United States earlier this year made it known it would want to see progress in other, political spheres correlated with the SALT talks, but not as a condition for the arms discussions.

The negotiations once under way were expected to pose very difficult and wide ranging problems.

The American team for the SALT talks has already been appointed. It will be headed by Gerard Smith, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

The Russians have not so far named their negotiators, but were expected to do so as soon as agreement is reached on the start of the discussions. Their team would be on the same level as the American, the sources said.

Gromyko may have some last minute surprises in store, however, both in regard to the start of the talks and their scope, the sources said.

U.S. 'Vietnamization' Affecting Draft Calls

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Defence Secretary Melvin Laird said Wednesday the continuing U.S. handover of combat responsibility to South Vietnamese government forces in the Vietnam war would mean lower military draft calls in the United States.

Laird told a news conference he expects revised conscription figures for the next few months to be announced Friday. He said the "Vietnamization program," under which the U.S.

is providing more weapons for South Vietnamese government forces and turning over more combat responsibility to them, is making progress.

"The Vietnamization program will have a significant effect on draft calls for the months ahead," he said.

But he refused to discuss specific figures, although there have been reports that callups might be suspended for a short period.

Laird elaborated slightly on President Nixon's announcement Tuesday that authorized troop ceilings in Vietnam will be reduced by 40,500 men.

He broke this down to show reductions of 14,623 for the army, 5,239 for the navy, and 18,457 for the marines and 2,541 for the air force.

These figures and the total of 40,500 do not represent actual servicemen, but only reductions from the present ceiling of 524,500 men. In fact, 35,000 men will be withdrawn to bring the ceiling down to 489,000 men.

The new withdrawals follow a pullout of 25,000 men completed last month.

Laird said a conference in Honolulu Sept. 25 will plan remaining details of the latest U.S. pullback.

Assessing the Nixon administration's efforts for peace in Vietnam, Laird admitted there is a stalemate in the Paris peace talks but said the "Vietnamization program" could change this.

"I think we have to convince Hanoi that the South Vietnamese forces are becoming stronger every day. . . I think this will have a significant effect as far as the negotiations are concerned."

South African Election Call Stability Show

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa (UPI) — South Africa will hold a general election early next year, premier John Vorster said Tuesday.

In a statement which shocked delegates at the ruling National Party congress, Vorster said his cabinet decided on an election to show the world there was a stable government in South Africa.

Vorster, elected after the October, 1966, assassination of Premier Hendrick Verwoerd, accused right wing members of the party of splitting the nation's ruling group.

Vorster

Elections originally were scheduled for 1971.

In a two-hour speech, the premier mentioned right-wing leader Albert Hertzog, who has criticized the government for allowing a New Zealand rugby team, including black Maori tribesmen, to tour the country.

Vorster said the party fights had created the impression of division overseas.

"The government has decided therefore that there must be a demonstration of power and the best demonstration a government can give is to go to the people.

"The cabinet has decided to hold a general election early next year," the premier said.

He said it will be in the first half of 1970, after a brief parliamentary session.

Belfast Threat 'Serious'

Italian Team Closely Guarded

BELFAST (CP) — A heavy police guard was ordered Wednesday night to protect an Italian soccer team against a possible backlash from the Roman Catholic-Protestant strife in Northern Ireland.

Police were taking seriously a threatening letter published in a Belfast newspaper, The News Letter, which said:

"The Italian team will never reach home because the Italian press and television have attacked British Ulster and England. We must and shall take punitive action."

EXTREMIST SOURCE

The letter purported to come from a Protestant extremist group known as the Ulster Volunteer Force.

The Italian Roma team was here to play the Belfast Ards team Wednesday night in a match for the Winners Cup of the European Cup competition.

In the heart of Belfast, work went ahead slowly on tearing down barricades which for five weeks have blocked off the Catholic sectors of the city from the majority Protestants.

SOON GONE

Catholic leaders Tuesday night agreed to remove the last of the Belfast barricades by Friday.

As Catholics tore down barricades in the devastated Falls Road area of the city, more than 2,000 British troops stood by.

The soldiers were ready to help, but army tactics were to stand back and let the people dismantle the ramparts themselves. No trouble was reported.

A sizable breach was made in the huge barricades that have sealed off entire areas of Belfast for more than a month. All main traffic routes were opened in East Belfast, a district less affected than the western area of the city.

In Londonderry, talks were planned between residents of the barricaded Bogside Catholic area and the army on when the barriers should come down there, too.

that fired bazookas at an Israeli army patrol.

Military spokesmen said all planes returned to their bases safely. Israeli military headquarters made no claims of any damage in the raid against Ras Za'farana, 70 miles south of Port Suez, the southern terminus of the Suez canal.

They also streaked across the Jordan River to pound an Arab guerrilla position at Manshiya

A Cairo communique said anti-aircraft fire forced the raiding planes to flee.

The Israeli air raids south of Port Suez are part of a campaign to force Egypt to divert some of its forces from the Suez canal where Israeli troops have suffered repeated casualties in recent months.

Artillery boomed across the canal Wednesday and one Israeli soldier was wounded. Another Israeli trooper was killed in artillery and light-arms exchanges across the waterway Tuesday.

New Look at Wheat Needed

IN ITS PEEK into the next five years, the Economic Council of Canada has produced very little that was not already known to the average intelligent Canadian. What it has done however is to stress the importance of a number of economic problems, and in some cases to suggest what might be done about them.

Into this category comes wheat. The Economic Council describes the wheat export position as a "very serious economic situation" and one that may not be basically temporary.

Only a few years ago wheat was Canada's largest and most valuable export. As the country has developed the percentage of exports attributed to wheat has declined, but even so a year ago it was still running in fourth place to newsprint, automobiles and auto parts.

This year it has slipped into eighth place with petroleum, lumber, pulp, and other motor vehicles overtaking it. Of all exports from Canada in the first seven months of the year $302,832,000 out of a total of $8,208,010,000 came from wheat — only 3 per cent of the total.

The Economic Council says that exports of wheat up to 1975 may not be any higher than the most recent levels. As three provinces look upon wheat as their staple, the problem of declining demand for wheat cannot be treated lightly or cavalierly by the government.

Prime Minister Trudeau won some acclaim for his hard-nosed talking with farmers on his Prairie trip last summer, but it was little more than a slanging match not calculated to ameliorate the situation.

The Economic Council suggests that Canada should do a tailoring job on its wheat customers. If high-grade, hard grains — for which the prairies are famous — are not wanted, then surely some of the strict planting restrictions on high-yield, lower-cost, lower-quality wheats should be lifted.

The apparent refusal of the U.S.S.R. to honor its 1966 three-year contract to buy 9,000,000 tons of Canadian wheat, which has run out 3,800,000 tons short of the bargain, has worsened the situation, for it appears there is little Canada can do to force the Russians to take the remainder that they no longer require.

There is some suggestion that if the grain farmers turned their attention to feed grains, and used the product to produce beef and other protein foodstuffs, their marketing problems might, at least in part, be resolved.

But the shortage of and world demand for beef and other meats makes little appeal to the modern mechanized farmer. Production of livestock means day-by-day care, hard manual slogging and recurrent marketing problems.

The farmer, who can handle his grain crops while working only a few summer months, and make enough to spend the winter in some less rigorous climate is not a willing convert to the rigors of mixed farming.

Yet the indefinite continuation of over-producing a commodity that is not in wide demand cannot be tolerated. The fertile lands of the Prairies — and they are productive for little else but agriculture in some form — are far too valuable in a population-expanding world to be allowed to remain fallow.

'Remote Presence' Canada's Role

"CANADA IS MORALLY BOUND to assist, in one way or another, with the defence of the Western world and to the same proportional extent as its friends."

That is the opinion of Senator Stuart Symington, a Missouri Democrat and member of the senate foreign relations and armed services committees.

This is a perfectly valid conclusion, one shared by many Canadians and consistently maintained by this newspaper.

Senator Symington only observes the obvious when he says that Canada has been a willing participant in United Nations peace-keeping actions, but has been rather "less willing than the United States" to look at her involvement in European defence as crucially significant.

The senator seems to assume that Canada intends to continue in the role of defender of the United Nations faith while reducing to a minimum her contribution to the North Atlantic Treaty alliance.

This is borne out to some extent by reports from Ottawa of a pending announcement, possibly next week, of reduction of the strength of the NATO brigade in Europe to about half its present strength of 6,000 men and speculation in Canadian army circles that it may finally number no more than 2,000.

At the same time it is hinted that the four Starfighter squadrons in Europe, now nuclear armed, will be phased out of service, and that they will immediately abandon their nuclear capability. There is a further suggestion that in future Canada's contribution to NATO air strength will be no more than a small reconnaissance group.

This is no more than educated guesswork, to be sure, but it is in keeping with the policy of Mr. Trudeau's government to cut defence spending as a priority. Economy, rather than a calculation of present and future needs, is the guiding principle in Ottawa's military planning.

Sad to say, Senator Symington's assumption that Canada will accept the moral obligation to share "proportionately" with her friends the defence of the Western world, is not supported by the facts. The best he, or Canadians, can expect is that this country will serve as a "remote presence," as it is euphemistically termed, in support of its NATO allies and of the United Nations.

Trudeau Playing the Role of King Canute Hopes to Halt the Rising Tide of Costs

PRIME Minister Trudeau is having a little difficulty convincing people that he really can roll back the ever-rising tide of civil service costs.

He is the fifth prime minister to try out for the part of a federal King Canute.

Just as sternly, the other four — from Mackenzie King through Lester Pearson — in their day commanded the tide to fall and it kept on rising.

Now it's Pierre Trudeau's turn to attempt the so-far impossible.

The spectators — taxpayers and civil servants alike — are skeptical, not only because even this iron-willed prime minister isn't going to find it easy, but because he's getting some static from his own people.

There was the prime minister proudly proclaiming that his government was going to take the lead in the fight against inflation by setting an example in "restraint."

Not only were precious few, if any new civil servants to be added to the payroll, there would be 25,000 jobs fewer when all the cutting and trimming and slashing and hacking of costs were done.

It didn't mean, he was careful to add, that 25,000 would be losing their government jobs.

It was just that positions, when they were vacated by resignation, retirement or death, wouldn't be filled. That way, with luck, the government staff within the year would end up in a minus 25,000 job position, with few if any civil servants hurting.

That way, too, he theorized, civil service salary increases could be financed by spreading more and better pay over fewer people.

And that way, he sort of half-promised, the taxpayers might escape any increases in rates in the next budget which Finance Minister Edgar Benson already is pledged to balance.

At that point, the prime minister's chairman of his new prices and incomes commission, Dr. John Young, announced publicly that the government approved average 18 per cent over three years formula for civil service salary increases was "clearly inflationary."

What made it all the more confusing was that Treasury Board President Charles "Bud" Drury, the federal cabinet's money-man, had just finished saying that 18 per cent was just dandy and clearly non-inflationary.

There are other things, too, accounting for the prime minister's widening credibility gap between promise and performance in the King Canute caper.

There was that $25,000-a-year raise for Bank of Canada Governor Louis Rasminsky.

There were those $12,000 increases for the five top deputy ministers.

There were those near-$5,000 boosts for senior foreign service officers, with some simply splendid fringe benefits, in external affairs.

But most of all there is the simple arithmetic of continuing civil service proliferation.

Arithmetic calculated a d confirmed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics — and what more unimpeachable authority than DBS?

In the last 20 years, reports DBS, the federal civil service has tripled from 123,924 to 369,354, and is still going up. The total includes federal crown corporations.

So is the payroll, despite promised prime ministerial roll-backs, up from last year's $2,197,958,368 to a currently budgeted $2,388,715,086. And that's a very considerable increase of $190,756,718. That's exclusive of the Crown Corporations.

DBS has figured it another way: the number of people employed by the federal government as a percentage of the total Canadian population has increased by almost 400.

Where not so long ago there was just a fraction of a federal civil servant — point 37 — for every 100 Canadians currently there are almost two — one point eight — to be as precise as DBS.

Finally, as last year — current totals still are being calculated — there were 7,051 federal employees doing better than $12,000. (Add that 18 per cent.)

And 1,291 being paid in excess of $18,000. (Plus 18 per cent.) Every year, through cut-back, roll-back, phase-out, crank-down, weed-out, chop, lop and trim, as succeeding prime ministers have played the futile process — the civil service has rolled onward and upward.

Under former Prime Minister Pearson it hit a fast clip of 1000 new jobs a month. And if Pierre Elliott Trudeau thinks he can reverse momentum like that, he'll be a better man than Canute, Gunga Din.

Royal Navy Hints at Unpalatable Change: 'Up Spirits' May Go Down the Scuppers

HEAVEN knows, I am no stuffy traditionalist. When mini-skirts arrived, for instance, I was amongst the first to recognize this great cultural advance. Even when martinis went from 95 cents to $1.50 I merely shrugged and said, "You can't fight progress."

But now something has happened which forces me to align myself with the powers of reaction and hoary tradition.

The Royal Navy, or so I read, is threatening to cut off its daily tipple of rum.

Nelson's Blood is to be phased out, just as though it were another obsolete battlewagon. As I said earlier, I am all for change and realize full well one must not stand in the way of progress. So the services have a perfect right to change titles, uniforms, equipment.

But the Royal Navy has no right to get rid of its rum. This argument of mine is first based on pure logic — over-proof logic, one might say.

Over the years, if I must explain what I am driving at, the navy was one of the lone outposts of sanity. When temperance swept a large part of the western world, when the United States navy banned booze from its ships, the Royal Navy sailed on serenely — serving "up spirits" each day at 11 a.m. — six bells in the forenoon watch.

And because of this, the Royal Canadian Navy was never troubled with that insanity known as temperance. It too had its daily ritual when young and not-so-young Canadians were introduced to the euphoria of good, dark, highly alcoholic rum.

Which brings me to the second phase of my argument, this phase based on pure nostalgia.

When I first went to sea in the Second World War, I was very young, very cold and very frightened. A small corvette in the middle of the North Atlantic seemed to me to be an extremely precarious craft.

Mind you, technically, as a war correspondent, I was an honorary officer. As such I was supposed to live in the officers' wardroom and not partake of the pleasures available to the sailors of the messdecks.

Pleasures such as "up spirits." But as corvettes had very few officers, these officers by common consent did not drink while at sea. The men had their daily ration, but not the officers.

So a kindly skipper told me that as I was guest, I had the right to assume various ranks. "About 11 a.m.," he told me, "you should masquerade as a chief petty officer."

I soon learned why. On navy ships, as in most of this cruel world, all things and people are not equal. While an ordinary seaman got an "up spirits" ration of about one ounce of good navy rum diluted with about two ounces of water, a chief petty officer — there but for the grace of God, goes God! — received a full, undiluted two ounces of the wonderful brew.

So each morn at 11 o'clock CPO Lowe was up on deck. I would be handed my ration. I would belt it back.

Then, with beads of sweat forming on my brow, I would head back to the wardroom. And there I would curl up on the wardroom settee and go to sleep.

After all, this was the only time I could sleep. At any other time while sailing in a corvette, I found sleep rather hard to come by. Sometimes I was too wet to sleep. Sometimes I was too cold.

But mostly, if I must be honest, I was just too scared. But once I got that wonderful belt of rum down, everything changed. Warmth seeped through my frigid limbs. Even if I was wet, I felt dry.

And best of all, about two minutes after I had swallowed the rum, those twitchy nerve ends stopped twitching. I temporarily forgot there were U-boats out there with a common motto: "Sink Lowe."

So sleep would come. Naturally, I am not saying I was a typical sailor. In fact, for the good of our country, I sincerely hope I was not.

But there must come a time in the life of even the bravest sailor when a belt of good rum would help things along. To take this away from him, in the name of progress, is to court disaster.

After all, could they have preserved Nelson's body, on the trip back from Trafalgar, in a keg of Coca-Cola?

M. Lesage Resigns, His Head Held High

Le Nouvelliste, Trois Rivieres

THE leader of the Quebec Liberal party, Mr. Jean Lesage, caused a real flap . . . when he announced that he was stepping down from his post and was calling a caucus meeting September 15 to choose a date for a leadership convention.

Since the defeat of the Liberal party in 1966 the leadership of Mr. Lesage had been contested constantly, so that he had to spend most of his time trying to stay in the saddle . . .

We said earlier that the Liberal party would become the party of division if Mr. Lesage resigned. We believe it more strongly than ever. There are within this party a good half-dozen candidates more or less ambitious, who were only waiting for Mr. Lesage's departure to start shining their shoes. These men will not rally around a new leader easily. One name that must appear on this list is that of the former justice minister, Mr. Claude Wagner, who can claim much of the credit for the political assassination of Mr. Lesage . . .

We don't see how the Liberal party of Quebec, or what is left of it, can rally around a leader now that discord and treason seem to have become the golden rule in the party. It is often said that politics is a thankless profession, and Mr. Lesage today is a living illustration of this. . . . He was never forgiven for the defeat of June, 1966, as though he were the only one responsible. . . .

The resignation of Mr. Lesage marks the end of an era. We must recognize that this man has served his province and his country well, and can depart with his head held high. We cannot say as much for certain people who are getting ready to share the spoils.

Right of Choice Defended

La Presse, Montreal

Exactly 10 days before the opening of classes in suburban St. Leonard, the minister of education who has had all the time he could ask for to tackle the problem of the English-speaking parents deprived of Grades 1 and 2 classes in English, has decided to open his mouth.

He first repeated that the government does not have the power to reverse the decision of the local school board; then he warned them (the parents) the government will not tolerate their defiance of the law by providing basement classes not recognized by him; and finally he politely advised them to open a private school which by virtue of Bill 56, in effect since June 28, could benefit from grants of up to 50 per cent of its cost provided it meets the standards.

Mr. Cardinal thus admits without saying so that the decision of the school trustees is iniquitous and that parents still have the right in Quebec to choose the language they want for their children's education, either French or English. . . . And seeing that he simply suggested that the English-speaking parents of St. Leonard take advantage of Bill 56, why didn't he do it two months earlier? Is it not making fun of people to invite them to set up, in eight days, a private school strong, radical man, qualified to bring order to a society that suffers from lack of discipline and sometimes appears headed toward anarchy.

Mr. Lesage was a moderate man within his party. He often had to make prodigious efforts of diplomacy to calm different currents of thought and maintain his authority. On many occasions he prevented his party from falling into the hands of radicals of the left or the right. . . .

It will require plenty of talent on the part of his successor to steer as skillfully, and through as many storms, the ship that Mr. Lesage has steered for more than a decade.

Cool Reception For Marchand

Quebec L'Action

The members of the National Assembly for Louis Herbert, Mr. Jean Lesage, has just resigned as leader of the Quebec Liberal party. . . . Many people will share our regret that he has chosen not to try his luck again at the leadership convention. . . .

The door now is open to Mr. Jean Marchand, who has always wanted to make a career in the Quebec Liberal party but didn't want to risk it while Mr. Lesage was leader. Now he can permit himself this experience. In our humble opinion, although it is perhaps too early to take a stand on the subject, Mr. Marchand has little chance of becoming Mr. Lesage's successor. Surveys conducted by L'Action reporters lead us to believe that the people are well satisfied with the services rendered by Mr. Marchand as a federal minister, but are totally uninterested in his entry into provincial political life. . . .

Who then will succeed Mr. Lesage? . . .

In the present climate of our society, it appears that Mr. Claude Wagner has an excellent chance of being chosen. His name was mentioned by nearly everyone we questioned on the subject over the last two days. Mr. Wagner personifies the strong, radical man, qualified to bring order to a society that suffers from lack of discipline and sometimes appears headed toward anarchy.

Mr. Lesage was a moderate man within his party. He often had to make prodigious efforts of diplomacy to calm different currents of thought and maintain his authority. On many occasions he prevented his party from falling into the hands of radicals of the left or the right. . . .

Barbells Again

The Gazette, Montreal

It is just possible that a dog is not only man's best friend — he may even be smarter. A few American police agencies have reported great success in using trained dogs to "sniff out" marijuana, so the North Carolina State Bureau of Investigation decided it would develop a "K-9" section, too. But the results were disappointing. . . .

The first dog they enlisted was an army veteran who found it too complicated, considering all the other things she had been trained to sniff out. The second became "90 per cent effective" and then went on the sick list. Like a lot of other pot sniffers, she can no longer be relied upon for active duty.

The SBI director is pretty unhappy about the whole thing. A well-trained dog, he said, could search a building quickly and effectively. They don't have to tear things apart," he said, "they just sniff." But the experiment has failed.

Back to the barbells, men. You'll have to start tearing things apart again.

Nations Scheme Over Acquisition of Wealth in the Seas

The world's oceans, which both unite and divide the nations of the earth, are becoming the target of a global debate in which science and politics are intermixed like the waters of the seas themselves.

The more science learns of the oceans and their potential riches, the more covetous and guarded nations become in their scheming over the acquisition of such wealth.

This theme underlies the September issue of Scientific American, a national journal, which devotes the entire issue to the seas.

The magazine's tone is set

By BOB CORBETT

by Dr. Roger Revelle, a noted oceanographer, former director of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography at La Jolla, Calif., and now chief of the Harvard University Centre of Population Studies.

In the lead article Revelle writes that the ocean has become so important to mankind as a potential food and mineral source that it has moved beyond the realm of mere national politics.

He expresses hope that the U.S. government and Americans "will be farsighted enough to see that their own long-range interests lie in a generous approach to the new age of the oceans."

Noting a growing realization of the oceans potential in terms of food and mineral wealth, Revelle predicts that "the ocean will be far more important to mankind in the future than it ever has been in the past."

In the interests of international sharing of the seas and the riches that lie within them, Revelle suggests that "a new kind of regime is needed in which the interests of all states are protected, but those of humanity as a whole are paramount."

While such an organization already is being discussed in the United Nations and other international forums, its form still is too nebulous to define, he points out.

In another article, Dr. Warren S. Wooster, chairman of the National Academy of Science's committee to study proposals for the International Decade of Ocean Exploration, writes that scientific probing of the seas "is inherently an international affair, requiring co-operation ranging from the simplest exchange of information to the most complex integration of research programs."

As an example he cites the Santa Barbara oil slick; the appearance of pesticides applied in Africa in India's Bay of Bengal; the effects of the Aswan Dam in Egypt on the nutrients of waters in the Mediterranean Sea, and the possible effect of the mixing of Atlantic and Pacific waters through a proposed new canal across the Central American Isthmus.

Sir Edward Bullard, Cambridge University scientist, writes that new concepts of seafloor spreading and continental drift have altered scientific opinion about the nature and forces which mold the earth.

"It turns out that the main processes of geology can be understood only when the oceans have been studied," he claims. "No amount of effort on land could have told us what we now know."

"The study of marine geology has unlocked the history of the oceans, and it seems likely to make intelligible the history of the continents as well."

Ten of the world's eminent scientists and oceanographers have contributed articles dealing with the exploration of the seas and its significance in the years ahead.

But most of them concede, as Wooster writes, that "it must be recognized that the potential resources of the deep-sea bed cannot be exploited economically today, and that for the foreseeable future only a few countries will have the technical capabilities even for prospecting and pilot exploitation."

Economy Turned Around

Bourguiba Retains Mastery

By WILLIAM TUOHY from Tunis

The ease with which Tunisia's President Habib Bourguiba reshuffled his cabinet and tuned around the national economy shows that he retains mastery over the government.

Through he has just turned 66 and is recovering from hepatitis, he easily clipped the wings of his most powerful minister, Ahmed Ben Salah.

Bourguiba showed again that he is a pragmatist rather than an ideologue by scrapping aspects of his program to collectivize this nation of 4,700,000 when he decided it was not working.

Bourguiba, often called the best friend of the United States in the Arab world, embarked the country on the program to turn the economy — particularly the agricultural sector — into a series of co-operatives.

He believed the farming industry could be made more efficient by combining the small plots into large ones. He also believed the co-operative units could serve as the basis for a new and modern society.

The co-operative process was to be extended eventually into most forms of commercial and economic life.

To supervise this immense task, Bourguiba assigned Ben Salah, 43, who brought his enormous energies to bear in collectivizing the country.

But Ben Salah's roughshod ways led critics to protest that Tunisia was becoming more collectivized than Poland.

In some ways a form of co-operation among the farmers was necessary.

Bourguiba and Ben Salah reasoned that the farmers must pool their efforts on larger plots if the nation were ever going to grow enough food to become self-sufficient.

But collectivization ran into a lot of trouble. Even though the farmers technically held title to the land, they resented being told what to do by the co-operative managers, many of whom were city-bred with little practical experience at farming.

Bourguiba sensed that all was not going well with the co-operative program, and this year's crops were not up to forecast.

So even though relatively tiny Tunisia is bordered by the left-wing socialist government of Algeria on the west and the newly-formed revolutionary regime of Libya on the east, he decided to halt the swing toward collectivization.

His move back to the economic right was applauded all around, not only by the farmers who resented having been brought into co-operatives but by people like taxicab drivers who feared that they soon would be collectivized.

Other political figures also reportedly were pleased to see the energetic, ambitious Ben Salah — who lost his super-ministry and was left with only the education portfolio — brought down to size.

Searching for a new face to lead them, some prominent and some not-so-prominent Democrats are beginning to look with interest at Sen. Harold Hughes, the former governor of Iowa.

By THOMAS J. FOLEY from Washington

On the surface, at least, he would seem to be an illogical Democratic presidential candidate. He is, after all, a former Republican and he unashamedly acknowledges that he is a "recovered alcoholic."

But these Democrats, largely supporters of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy as well as of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, see a great deal more.

In appraising the political scene and 1972 prospects in opposition to the Vietnam policies of both President Lyndon B. Johnson and President Nixon.

These people are very issue-oriented, and so is Hughes. Not only has he been an outspoken foe of the U.S. involvement in Vietnam but he is a strong advocate of a reordering of priorities to help solve U.S. domestic crises.

In this, Hughes is not unlike most others. But he is unlike them in the charisma and dynamism that attach to him.

The 47-year-old Hughes' background doesn't fit this picture. He dropped out after a year at the state university in 1941 because he married and anticipated being drafted into service.

Strong religious training in his youth did not mix well with 11 months of bitter combat. Coupled with a critical case of malaria that recurred after his discharge in 1945, Hughes had a difficult readjustment to civilian life.

A period of heavy drinking followed, a period that he brought to an end in 1952 with a pledge of abstinence and that led in 1954 to his joining Alcoholics Anonymous.

Raised a Republican — he attended state conventions as delegate — Hughes became dissatisfied with the way a G.O.P.-controlled commerce commission enforced state trucking laws and brought his complaints to the state governor, Herschel Loveless. Loveless told him to run for the commission, so he did, as a Democrat, and won. Four years later, Hughes ran for governor and was the only Democrat to win office in the state. He twice won reelection before being elected senator last fall.

An important factor in his rising political clout is his work on Democratic Party reform. It began last summer when a group of liberal Democrats under his leadership prepared a scathing indictment of the methods of selecting national convention delegates in most states.

And it is still going with a party commission appointed by Harris, headed by McGovern and endorsed by both Humphrey and Muskie. Hughes is the vice chairman and driving force.

The commission makes party reform almost inevitable. It will recommend expanding the delegate-selection process to include the young, the blacks, Mexican-Americans and other minorities who have had little say in the past about who nominated the presidential candidates.

Hughes

the wake of Chappaquiddick, these Democrats frown on the more prominent leaders, Hubert Humphrey and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, the 1968 ticket; Sen. Fred Harris, the national chairman, and Sen. George McGovern, whom some of the Kennedy backers helped in his last-minute attempt to win the 1968 nomination.

Hughes, on the other hand, is an apostle of the so-called new politics, which both Kennedy and McCarthy came to symbolize. He had been high on the list of those Kennedy had considered as a vice-presidential candidate, and he delivered McCarthy's nomination speech at Chicago.

With McCarthy disengaging from political activity, Hughes is turning on student leaders who were the main troops in the Minnesota senator's political army.

These student leaders and the not-so-young political activists are also the bulwark of the New Democratic Coalition, an organization that has been in the forefront of

Steam Engine Problems May Be Solved

By IRVING S. BENGLSDORF from Los Angeles

You get into the car, insert the key into the ignition, turn the key, wait about seven seconds, press down on the accelerator and drive off smoothly and noiselessly. You are driving an automobile equipped with a simple, powerful, inexpensive, lightweight, compact, fast-starting and non-air-pollution steam engine.

Using the latest developments in combustion, air flow, metallurgy, instruments and control devices, General Steam Corp. of Newport Beach, Calif.—formerly Thermodynamic Systems, Inc.—has solved the engineering problems that have plagued steam engines. GSC has designed and constructed a steam engine that shortly will be installed for testing in a California Highway Patrol car.

The modern steam engine offers many advantages over the internal combustion engine. Consider air pollution. Don E. Johnson, GSC executive vice-president and general manager, points out: In testing during 1967, a 1963 car with no smog controlling device produced 596 parts per million of unburned hydrocarbons to pollute the air, even after a tune-up. A 1967 automobile, equipped with California smog devices, cut its production of air pollutants to 367 PPM. However, a 1960 steam car, with no smog device and no tune-up, produced only 20 PPM hydrocarbons."

Consider simplicity. Lift the hood of a steam engine and there are few parts — no carburetor, distributor, spark plugs or smog devices.

So, steam engine combustion is more complete, tosses out less carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxides and fewer unburned hydrocarbons and does not require leaded fuel.

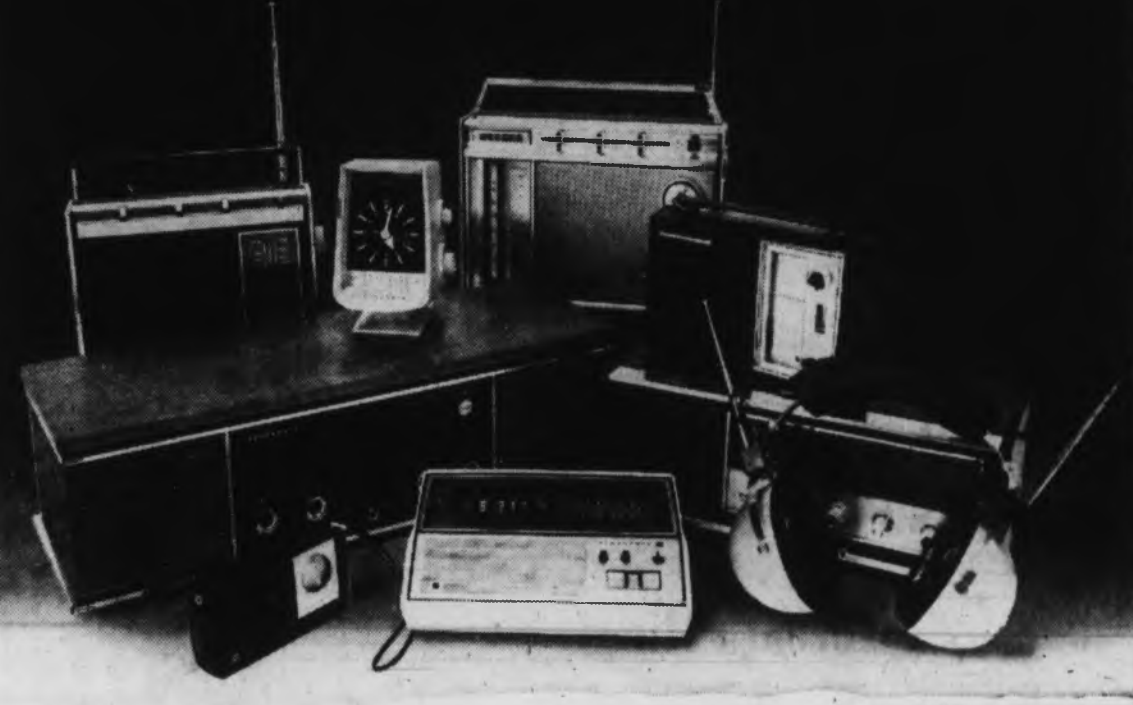

The use of steam engines to propel automobiles not only would help to purify the air but also would permit use of a cheaper fuel (kerosene is easier and less expensive to produce than gasoline) and eliminate the need for toxic fuel additives.

Nor is this all. The GSC steam engine needs no internal "motor oil." New advances in metallurgy have made it self-lubricating. There is no need for a bulky air conditioner. Use of steam pressure with a small, solid-state device about one-half the size of a pack of cigarettes cools the car pleasantly in hot weather. If the temperature outside is below freezing, a small pilot light keeps the steam generator warm, preventing the water from freezing.

The water that is used to be changed into steam to drive the GSC-steam engine is in a sealed, recirculating system. Once the water is added, additional water should not be needed, for the original water stays in and is used over and over to make steam. And the car is explosion-safe. At any given moment, a pint of water at the most is being changed into steam. There is no evidence that any steam-powered car ever has had an explosion due to its steam system.

Unlike some previously publicized steam engines, an excellent alternative to the increasingly complex internal combustion engine is just around the corner. The modern steam engine can play a key role in cleansing the air.

PANASONIC

Look what's happened to the wireless.

We'd like to introduce you to the radios of the 21st Century.

Little clock radios. And bigger clock radios. Radios that wake you up. And radios that store your cigarettes. Great stereo radios. And tiny pocket ones. Radios that reach around the world. And radios that reach around your head. In stereo.

Stereo. FM. AM. Marine, shortwave, multi-band. Radios with instant automatic tuning. And slide controls and electronic memory tuning. Radios with continuous tone control. And radios with separate bass and treble controls.

Radios with stereo indicators that tell you when stereo is on. FET (Field Effect Transistors) to bring in the most distant stations. AFC to keep them there. And squelch control to kill static.

And where does this new sound come from? From Panasonic. From our 2,500 scientists and research engineers. Our 60,000 technicians in over 80 factories. And our experience in selling 4,500 products in 120 countries.

Go down to any Panasonic dealer and see our radios. The wireless has changed. Doesn't everything with new ideas?

Kaiser Stock Climbing

TORONTO (CP) - Western oils continued to weaken as the market overcame a small opening loss and advanced moderately on its third consecutive upward session. Western oils lost 4.11 to 220.00, bringing its loss in the last five days to 27.57. Stocks of companies with Alaskan interests continued to come under pressure. Home B dropped 3 to 40. Home A 2 1/2 to 45 1/2. Aquitaine 2 1/2 to 20 1/2. Ranger 1 to 12 1/2. Western Decalta 75 cents to $7.25 and Petrol six cents to $1.69.

Nickels Strengthen While Oils Go Lower

A bid for a tract of land in the Alaskan North Slope area by Ranger was rejected Wednesday by the state.

Nickel were strong with Fairbridge up 2 1/2 to 139. Inco up 1/2 to 40 1/2.

Industrial Rise

VANCOUVER - Kaiser Resources moved ahead to 15 1/2 in a firm industrial section. Also higher were Fields, House of Steel, Hys, Canadian Allied, Weldwood and Ocean Cement.

Mines were dull with Capri up 1/2 at 94 and Casino up .07 at 1.84.

Oils were mainly lower with United Bata off .35 at 5.15 in heavy trading.

Growth Outlook Good

MONTEAL (CP) - The market inched higher to close firmer for the third consecutive day.

Brokers said a positive factor was the delayed impact of the Economic Council of Canada's description of the country's economic growth potential as astonishing.

In a bank's Nova Scotia declined to 22 1/2, while Toronto Dominion gained 1/2 to 19 1/2 and Commerce 1/2 to 19 1/2.

Among industrials, Falcon bridge advanced 3/4 to 139, Reimann's 1 to 19, Radio Engineering 1 to 24, Canadian Pacific 1/2 to 76 1/2, Moore Corp. 1/2 to 34 1/2 and Crush 1/2 to 12 1/2.

International Utilities rose 1 to 34 and Bell Tel 1/2 to 45 1/2 while Calgary Power slipped 1/2 to 25 1/2

Train Warranty Kept by Ford, Prices Up $108

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. Wednesday announced price increases averaging $108 per car on 1970 models, $17 below the average boost announced by General Motors last week.

The difference was more apparent than real. Ford's sticker prices ranged from a reduction of $43 on one model of the Torino to a hike of $333 for the Mark III. The company said the sticker price on the popular Maverick will remain at $1,985, same as the price when it was introduced last April.

However, Ford announced that it would charge $15 extra if a car buyer wished to purchase the five-year, 50,000-mile warranty on the power train. The power train warranty was included in the GM prices. If the power train warranty was included on Ford's, prices could average $124 more per car, compared with GM's average.

increase of $125. Earlier, Ford indicated it would abandon the five-year warranty. Chrysler, third of the big three car companies, was expected to announce its 1970 prices Friday or Monday. Chrysler cars go on sale in dealer showrooms Tuesday.

AVERAGE BOOST
Ford said its price increases averaged 3.6 per cent, compared with the 3.9-per-cent figure GM placed in its new prices.

The basic Ford warranty on all cars except the Maverick was 12 months with unlimited mileage, plus provision for free adjustment of many things not previously allowed, such as wheel alignment, during the first 90 days.

The GM basic warranty remains at 12 months or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first. The Maverick warranty is also 12 months or 12,000 miles.

Ford said the increases were necessary because of rising costs of both labor and materials, and declining profit margins.

Island Trust Officials Head for Big Cities

Two of Victoria's well-known trust company officials will be taking a one-way trip across Georgia Strait toward the middle of next month — one destined for Vancouver, the other for Montreal.

They are Bob Ferguson, manager of Montreal Trust, and Gordon Empey, manager of National Trust.

Mr. Ferguson, who has been in this city with Montreal Trust for the past 16 years, first as investment officer and then from 1961 as manager when he succeeded George Brebner, has been given a step up as the trust's first supervisor of investments for the Western region.

The job takes him to the Montreal Trust head office in Vancouver, from where he will have a vast region to cover — as far east as Regina.

NEW POLICY
"The posting is part of Montreal Trust's new policy of localizing its investment policies," said Mr. Ferguson.

"There are also regional supervisors for the central and Atlantic regions." Before joining Montreal Trust in 1953, Mr. Ferguson was for four years with Nesbitt Thomson, and before the war he had 15 years with Canada Life in Toronto.

"I thought I was settled down in Victoria, and some day I hope to come back, but Vancouver is surely the next best place to live in Canada, and I am looking forward to being there very much."

OTHER SIDE
His successor as manager of the Victoria branch comes from the other side of Canada. He is David Baird, who is being moved from his position as manager of the Montreal Trust's Halifax office. He is due in Victoria at the end of the month.

Gordon Empey's move is to the main office of the National Trust in Montreal — the company's largest outside of Toronto. He takes up his new position in mid-October and will be succeeded here by T. B. Nash, now manager of the National Trust's office in Winnipeg and formerly with the company at Edmonton, Vancouver and Calgary.

Mr. Empey has been manager in Victoria since January, 1962, when he took over from Archie Oswald. Before that he was with National in Montreal, so the return to that city will provide him with no language difficulties.

Because he is bilingual, Mr. Empey feels that he has more than the average number of French-speaking Canadians as clients of his branch in Victoria.

looking for a site in the West where it will build its $2,000,000 ABS-DWV pipe plant.

A Western manager, Larry Lawlor of Edmonton says that Tridon has an excellent share of the plastic pipe business in the West, and that once the new plant is opened, the Burlington operation will confine itself to its automotive, electronic, gear clamp, insert fitting and poly pipe production.

The new operation will employ 50 persons. Tridon recently moved into a new distribution centre in Burnaby.

MADELL PAYS MORE

The Nanaimo logging equipment-manufacturing firm of Madill is stepping up its common share dividend rate in the wake of what the board reports as a successful year's operation.

The quarterly dividend to be paid on Oct. 15 to holders of record Sept. 30 is six cents plus two cents extra. The previous quarterly rate was four cents a share plus an extra of four cents at year-end.

The new indicate annual rate is 32 cents against the old rate of 28 cents. The usual dividend of 16 cents is also to be paid the preferred shareholders at the same date.

GULF GETS READY

Gulf Oil and its Alaskan partner, British Petroleum, are looking for a drilling rig to commence exploration of the $7,000,000 worth of oil leases they acquired in the recent sale of north slope acreage.

The acreage consists of 15,280 acres in six blocks, all in the Colville Delta area. Gulf owns 90 per cent working interest in five blocks and 73 per cent in a sixth, with BP holding the remainder.

FINANCING ARRANGED

Financial arrangements for an additional $4,000,000 for its new lumber and pulp manufacturing operation at Kitimat have been completed by Eurocan Pulp and Paper Co.

The original estimate of the cost of the project was $101,000,000, but a one-third increase in the planned capacity raised the requirements to $145,000,000.

The company reports that $21,000,000 of the extra funds will come from the three Finnish companies sponsoring the project, and another $23,000,000 from a syndicate of U.S. financial institutions.

The project constitutes the largest investment ever made by Finnish interests outside Finland.

U.K. BANKS RAISE RATE

The leading British banks this week increased their prime lending rate from 8 to 9 per cent as a step to discourage borrowing. It goes into effect Oct. 1.

Although traditionally the banks' prime lending rate follows the lead of the Bank of England, the central bank's rate has not been changed.

The new rate, which will mean rates of up to 11 per cent for the ordinary bank borrowers, is in line with the rising trend in bank lending rates in other countries. The prime rate in Canada is 8 1/2 per cent, and 8 per cent in the U.S.

Strike Notice Likely

Hydro Negotiators In Last-Ditch Try

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiators representing B.C. Hydro and its 2,300 office employees met almost continuously Wednesday in a last-ditch effort to settle a contract dispute.

Ron Bone, president of the Office and Technical Employees Union, Local 278, said the union had presented its case clearly Wednesday in talks with provincial mediator Clive McKee.

"If we find there is no purpose in continuing, we will serve strike notice."

Under the B.C. Mediation Commission Act, the union is required to give 72-hour notice of strike action.

GIVEN DEADLINE

Mr. McKee, who met with the two sides in daily sessions since last week, had been given until Wednesday night to bring down a report on the wage dispute.

The office workers voted 86.5 per cent in favor of strike action last Friday. Neither Hydro nor the union has disclosed contract proposals.

In separate talks, B.C. Hydro representatives were attempting to negotiate a new contract with two other groups of employees — electricians and gas workers.

GUARANTEES SOUGHT

Talks also continued at closed sessions Wednesday in the contract dispute between the B.C. Maritime Employers Association and 3,000 members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union who have voted in favor of strike action.

The union seeks a guaranteed work week and $31 a shift. The association has offered an increase of 70 cents an hour spread over three years on a base rate of $3.88 an hour.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the striking oilworkers told the B.C. Mediation Commission Wednesday that the oil industry's offer of a 53-cent-an-hour wage increase over two years is unrealistic.

R. T. Philp, an international representative of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union, said the offer is based on research made by the companies before January of this year.

"There was very little real projection into what 1969 and 1970 will hold," Mr. Philp said.

Pontiac's 70s. This is the way it's going to be.

Bold. Confident. Classic.

Surprised that Pontiac is setting the style for the umpteenth straight year? Of course not.

But you may be a bit surprised to find out that Pontiac has even outdone Pontiac. In 48 ways. And 28 of them are brand new additions to your Pontiac dealer's regular model lineup.

Bonneville—with a rousing 455 V8 and a wheelbase stretching 125 inches up the road.

Executive—also on a 125-inch wheelbase.

And the 122-inch wheelbase Catalina.

There are 16 of these new "full-size" Pontiacs for '70. The longest, most luxurious cars ever to bear the Pontiac nameplate.

And there's a whole new team of "intermediate" Pontiacs.

Then, there are the Pontiacs whose names you know. Like 2+2 and Parisienne and Laurentian and Strato-Chief and Safari, all with a 119-inch wheelbase.

And then there's GTO! So great it's been dubbed "The Humber". And Grand Prix! Pontiac's ultimate Pontiac—elegantly refined.

The Pontiacs shown above all come with standard V8s which start at 350 cubes (our smallest, believe it or not) and grow to 455 cubes (the standard engine on Bonneville)!

And they all come with a classic vertical grille and Upper-level ventilation comfort and full-glass styling and a hidden windshield antenna with your radio. And much, much more.

And every one of our 48 Pontiacs offers you its own individual brand of Pontiac excitement. See your Pontiac dealer now! This is the way driving is going to be.

EXCELLENCE

Your Pontiac dealer has 1970's biggest car news.

Fast. Young. And full of fun.

Now you know how it's going to be.

So move over you other intermediates. Twelve all-new, mid-size Pontiacs have arrived on the scene.

Replete with such desirable Pontiac features as hidden windshield wipers and Upper-level ventilation on most models. Elegantly-designed interiors with rich, durable fabrics. A hidden windshield antenna with the radio. A tough, reliable and economical 155-hp Six (and optional V8s up to 400 cubic inches). On a 112-inch wheelbase for two-door models, 116-inches for four-door models. And all this at low, practical prices.

Of course, if your fancy runs to sporting machinery, there's another member of Pontiac's trim-size family you should meet.

GTO for 1970. The Humble. And how it humbles! With a standard 350-hp, 400-cu.-in. V8 linked to a three-speed with Hurst Shifter. With dual exhausts. All wrapped in sleek new styling featuring GTO's famous full-width Endura front end.

If you wish to be even more decisive try The Judge with its functional hood scoops feeding a Ram Air 366-hp V8, rear deck spoiler, and a host of other performance extras.

And rounding out your Pontiac dealer's exciting lineup is the 1970 Acadian. Here's a smaller, low-price car that gives you a beautifully-styled basic coupe or sedan and lets you tailor it exactly to your personal taste from a long list of low-priced options.

We take the fun of driving seriously!

Boys' Mental Home

Residents Will Fight B.C. Plan

About 90 people from the Albert Head and Metchosin areas decided Wednesday night to fight a government plan to build a boys' mental institution on a 90-acre, B.C.-owned plot on Metchosin Road.

At an open meeting of the Albert Head Ratepayers Association, it was decided to seek wider support from all the surrounding areas, petition the government against the mental home and press for controls over government's power to rezone without consulting the locals.

Two reasons for the stand against the proposed institution stood out. One was summed up by a man who identified himself as Mr. Nixon:

GUN MENTIONED

A lock only keeps out an honest man. I for one don't want to sleep with a gun under my pillow at night."

The second major fear was that the mental institution would devalue surrounding property. Said a woman who didn't give her name: "It's the pocketbook that counts." If the proposed 32-bed institution was allowed, she said, it would only expand and further devalue adjacent lands.

"Just like in the jails," she said, "They'll keep pushing them in until they're falling out the bars."

NO DIFFERENCE

Well-known Metchosin resident Geoff Mitchell disagreed, saying the William Head minimum security institution had made no difference to land values. His remarks were booed and jeered by many in the St. Mary's Anglican Parish Memorial Hall.

Some alternatives were offered. One was to locate the institution near Vancouver because "we figure the boys would be closer to home."

AT UVIC

Another, by Charles Burr of 3615 Farhill, was to put the institution on the University of Victoria campus. Still another suggestion was that there was plenty of room on Vancouver Island without placing it at Albert Head.

The general complaint was that if we're paying taxes, we should have a say in where it's going." Association secretary-treasurer George Bouvier said the proposed site was only 35 minutes' walk from residential areas.

NEARBY HOMES

If a boy should escape from the institution, "he'll need clothing, he'll need money, he'll need transportation," and won't have far to go to find these things in nearby homes, he said.

Four motions were approved by the meeting, including a 10-point memorandum by the association executive that listed criticisms of the methods by which the B.C. and federal governments have used their powers to establish institutions despite opposition by local ratepayers.

ONE POINT

One point was that the Social Credit government upon coming to power in the early 1950s promised not to build any such institution in the area.

Besides presenting these objections to the B.C. government at an October meeting, the association will:

- Attempt to gain support for its fight against the institution by merging efforts with sympathizers in Metchosin, Colwood and Langford.
- Petition for signatures opposing the institution in as large an area as possible.
- Press for referendum votes in the area whenever an attempt is being made by governments to rezone in the area.

Cutter Towed Home

The coast guard cutter Ready is being towed toward Victoria today for repairs to her starboard propeller broken Wednesday when the vessel struck a rock in Griffin Passage, 125 miles north of Vancouver Island.

The Ready is being towed by the Sir James Douglas, also a coast guard vessel, that travelled north to help the stricken cutter home. The two left Griffin Passage at 7 p.m. Wednesday, and are due to arrive late today.

Herb Buchanan, transport department's West Coast regional director, said Wednesday he did not know why the Ready went into Griffin Passage, which is known for its navigational hazards.

Jordan River

Surfers Partial Victors

A surfing club has won a temporary victory in its attempt to have the beach at Jordan River protected by the government as a recreational area.

Surfer Kent Fiddy said Wednesday that the government lands branch had agreed to withhold permission for a construction company to take fill from the foreshore of the Jordan River beach.

INITIAL PERIOD

Instead, Emil Anderson Co., doing work at the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority's Jordan River installations, will be allowed to take fill from the east side of the river for an initial 30 days.

Mr. Fiddy, 19, said his club, West Coast Surfing Associates, would continue its drive to have the whole area set aside as a public playground.

Fears that their surfing area would be ruined mounted when the contractor's earth-moving equipment began to take fill from the tidal flat two weeks ago. The scraping was halted when the government learned that the company was taking fill without a permit.

VERY HAPPY

The surfers hold that even slight changes to the sandbar where scraping was in progress would adversely affect the wave formation. The Jordan River beach is one of the only two accessible surfing area on the West Coast, they say.

Mr. Fiddy said he was "very happy" at the lands branch decision to protect the beach, and praised government officials for their help and concern, but he said his club would soon apply to have the protection extended.

New Style Bill For City Water

A new type of Victoria water bill will be going into the mail Friday. Instead of a statement in an envelope, it will be a simple fold-over slip, sealed at one end. It will be similar to the B.C. Hydro bills and those of many other companies.

Fall Gold Added Artistry

Adding some touches of brushwork to nature's masterpiece, Everett Aalders goes to work on patio of Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. Annual pattern of fallen leaves was still being added to Wednesday, and Mr. Aalders' broom seemed all too small for tidying it up.—(William E. John)

Crown Ticked Off

Charge Inadequacies Fail to Gain Acquittal

Judge William Ostler criticized the crown Wednesday for "poor craftsmanship" in drawing up charges.

The judge's remarks came at the end of a trial involving Richard E. Shaw, 22 of 12 George Road West, who was remanded until Oct. 6 for sentence and pre-sentence report after being found guilty of possessing marijuana.

An inadequacy in the charge was noted by Shaw's defence counsel, Robert Price.

OFFICIAL WORDING

He told court that the official schedule of the Canadian narcotics law listed marijuana as "Cannabis (Marijuana)" and "Cannabis resin."

He emphasized that the "Cannabis (Marijuana)" version, the word marijuana was capitalized and in brackets while the "Cannabis resin" version showed no brackets and listed the word resin with a small "r."

The charge against his client, Mr. Price told court, alleged that Shaw had been in possession of "Cannabis (Resin), with the word resin capitalized and in brackets.

"DOESN'T EXIST"

"I respectfully submit that my client has been charged with possessing a substance that doesn't exist and can't therefore be a forbidden substance," Mr. Price said.

Judge Ostler said that Mr. Price had registered a valid objection.

"This example shows what can happen if the crown draws

Customs Confiscates Medicinal Morphine

Sailing Duo Claims Shabby Greeting

By DON COLLINS

Don't sail into Victoria from some other country with drugs you have purchased legally. Canadian customs officials will destroy them and you won't receive compensation.

And there's a chance you may also receive shabby treatment at the hands of Canadian immigration officials.

This was the message Wednesday from two bitter New Zealand brothers as they prepared to sail their 35-foot yacht to San Francisco after a stay of three months here.

John Glennie, 28, and David, 26, said they lost 2½ grains of morphine to the customs men after carrying it with them for the last five years in case of an emergency at sea.

"They asked if we had anything to declare and I said we had two shots of morphine and that we wanted them to hold it in bond, as is done for you at ports in other countries," said John, who is skipper of the homemade Highlight.

He said this occurred June 17 and that he was given a receipt which wasn't signed. He asked the meaning of the words "abandoned to the crown" on the receipt and was told the morphine now would be destroyed, he said.

On Wednesday John, David and an Australian sailor, Barry Gorman, returned to the customs office to see what could be done about compensation.

FOR MORPHINE

They said they were told they wouldn't be paid for the morphine.

"It only costs about $1.50," John said. "But it's the inconvenience. It would cost another $10 to see a doctor and get a prescription and then you might not get it."

Said John: "They indicated they've got a real problem here. They've got junkies lurking around everywhere just ready to break into your boat and hit you over the head to get at your morphine."

He said the customs men were only interested in the morphine and didn't ask that any forms be filled out.

JUST TWO

"We left Hawaii with a skipper and three crewmen and when we arrived here there was just David and myself," he said. "For all they knew, or cared, we could have slit the throats of the crew and thrown them overboard."

Customs officer Alex Pritchard said Wednesday night that rules call for destruction of any kind of drugs "once they are confiscated." He didn't elaborate.

Chief customs officials were not available.

Mr. Pritchard denied that firearms are treated the same as drugs. The brothers said they were told by one official that this was the case.

David said an Immigration

official granted them only a 48-hour visa at first and asked: "what can New Zealanders contribute to Canada?"

"I said I was surprised about the visa thing because we were members of the Commonwealth and he told me there was no Commonwealth," David said.

"Word gets around fast among sailing people about bad ports," said John.

"And we're going to make sure that everyone knows Victoria is a bad port."

Undergrad Limit Relaxed at UVic

The University of Victoria expects to enrol 5,400 undergraduate students and 229 graduates this fall, the university senate was told Wednesday.

The senate, 400 academic group on campus, learned that the previously-fixed undergraduate limit of 5,200 had been relaxed, partly because of unexpectedly high re-registration of last year's students who were guaranteed a place this fall.

All first-year applicants except 70 who failed their freshman year last spring were admitted, said registrar Ronald Ferry.

New enrolment restrictions imposed during the summer had raised fears that several hundred first-year applicants would be turned away.

The university set a limit of 2,000 first-year students. As of Wednesday, said Mr. Ferry, 1,908 had applied.

Enrolment Wednesday totalled 5,160 undergraduates, plus 229 graduate students seeking master's or doctor's degrees.

Mr. Ferry said another 208 students were in the process of late registration.

There will be an expected 319 extension students attending part-time, he added, for an estimated grand total of 5,948. The 5,400 undergraduate students are expected to "shake down" to about 5,300. Last year's enrolment totalled 4,726, including graduate students.

Heroin Contact Made Easier

Marijuana Penalty Risky

Young users of marijuana come into contact with heroin peddlers because the law pushes them together. Rev. Ted Kropp, Protestant chaplain at the Matakui Institution for Drug Rehabilitation, said Wednesday.

The worst effect of the present law on marijuana is that it makes law-breakers out of young people and brings them into contact with real criminals," he said.

Mr. Kropp, a proponent of group therapy methods as an approach to the problems of drug users, was speaking at a public meeting sponsored by the Couples' Club of First United Church, Quadra and Belmont.

He added that he was not sure legalizing marijuana was the answer.

"We are going to have to evolve a society capable of handling legalized drugs, with all the possible consequences," he said. "We are a long way from it now."

He said it seemed every society needed a socially-accepted drug, and for thousands of years widely differing societies had accepted alcohol.

"Marijuana has been around just as long as alcohol, but it's interesting to note that it has never been a socially-accepted drug. Maybe there's a good reason for that," he said.

Drugs, of whatever kind, he called "chemical substitutes for growing up for finding ourselves."

The problem in Canada is rapidly growing, especially on the West Coast. He said Montreal had one drug addict for each 5,000 of its population, Toronto one for each 3,700 — and Vancouver one for each 200.

Chairman Lauds Single Financing

Equilibrium Mayor Roy Bryant, finance committee chairman of the Capital Region district, welcomed the announcement Wednesday by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell of plans for a municipal financing agency. (See earlier story, Page 42.)

Mr. Campbell, speaking at the annual convention of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, in Kamloops, said the agency will be run by local governments within the province.

"It's a very logical approach to municipal financing," said Mayor Bryant.

"Originally it had been suggested by the municipal affairs department that the regional districts would act as a pooling agency for their member municipalities and do their borrowing for them.

"This wasn't too satisfactory because it meant you would end up with a number of regional district borrowing authorities in competition with each other.

"I think the concept of a supreme borrowing authority solves the problem."

Mayor Bryant added that he didn't think the lack of a provincial guarantee on municipal bonds would be a stumbling block.

"In effect, the authority will be able to pledge the collective credit of all municipalities in B.C.," he said.

"It's obvious to me that the municipalities and the regional districts will very quickly be forced to use this authority as their only means of financing."

But So Is Cash

Building Tender Below Estimate

The University of Victoria has plans for its next building, a low bid below estimate — and not a cent to award a contract.

The university senate was told Wednesday that if money wasn't forthcoming soon, the building would not be ready next September and a critical space problem would result.

"All the capital funds ($3,000,000 this year) have been committed, down to the last nickel," said Dr. Bruce Partridge, president of the university.

"If we receive funds within the next few days, we will be able to go to contract. If not, we won't have the building next September."

The project is a classroom and office extension to the Cleghorn Building just north of the McPherson Library. Low bid Aug. 28 was $389,800, by C. J. Oliver Ltd. of Victoria.

The university had estimated it would cost $1,000,000.

Dr. Partridge hinted that the university administration was trying hard for emergency financing of the project.

Dr. Richard Powers, a senate member, inquired whether the university had considered borrowing the money. Dr. Partridge told him he would reply when the senate went into the secret session of its meeting.

He cited "the delicacy of the situation," without explanation.

Long Summer Short-Changes Parks

By PAT MURPHY

These parks have suffered the more cleaning up rubbish and fact of life and Mr. Warren can take care of toilets and on prove it.

With ever-increasing use and most, but it has been a hard long dry spell, the wear and summer on all city recreation areas. Mr. Warren said Wednesday.

Mr. Warren said Wednesday the plants in his downtown concrete planter tubs at the edge of the sidewalks, have been suffering throughout the summer from exhaust fumes.

He said it was "getting to the point where a good part of the parks budget was being used in cleaning up after people."

"We are spending more and more cleaning up rubbish and fact of life and Mr. Warren can take care of toilets and on prove it."

He said Wednesday the plants in his downtown concrete planter tubs at the edge of the sidewalks, have been suffering throughout the summer from exhaust fumes.

Mr. Warren said he had written to New York and other cities to try to find the names of plants which could withstand exhaust fumes, but got no satisfaction. Most cities which used fresh flowers to decorate their streets faced the same problem.

Hanging baskets, Victoria's trademark, will be taken down at the end of this week.

City Puts On Dog For Diplomacy

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (UPI) — Two French poodles who provoked a diplomatic incident on the New Haven Railroad will be guests of honor with their master Friday at a civic reception.

The poodles — Bete Noire and Thibide — belong to Paul Marc Henry who not only is French diplomat and assistant UN secretary-general but also the author of Poodleland: A Poodle's Eye View of History. When Henry, his wife, his son and friend boarded a New Haven train with the poodles Sunday a conductor informed them that unmuzzled dogs were not permitted in coaches. The Henrys protested, and the conductor called police at the next stop — New Rochelle — to eject them from the train.

relations with France," Ruskin said.

The mayor invited the Henrys to bring their poodles to a reception at city hall Friday afternoon to meet members of the city council, the chief of police, religious and civil leaders and officials of UN embassies with residences in the suburban city.

Ruskin said he would send his own car to New York to pick up the Henrys and their pets.

"I wouldn't ask a dog to ride the Penn Central," he said.

Desert Area Erupts After Nuclear Test

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. (UPI) — The desert floor collapsed Wednesday above Ground Zero where one of the United States newest and most powerful nuclear weapons with a punch equivalent to 800,000 tons of TNT was detonated underground Tuesday.

The Atomic Energy Commission said a circular section about 200 feet in diameter above Ground Zero dropped 15 to 20 feet. The AEC said no radiation leaked into the air after the test Tuesday nor when the ground settled Wednesday.

The blast, believed to be the third largest ever set off at the Nevada test site, displaced 10,000,000 tons of earth and carved out an underground chamber almost 700 feet in diameter.

Aftermathes from the gigantic explosion still jiggled seismographs Wednesday and seismologists said the tremors would continue for several weeks.

The man-made earthquake created by the blast registered at a magnitude of 6 on the Richter earthquake scale. The devastating Alaska earthquake of 1964 registered 8.4.

Dr. James Brune, head of the California Institute of Technology seismology laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., said four major aftershocks with a magnitude of 4 were recorded following the test and small after tremors would continue for weeks.

Advertising Backlash Welcomed by Firm

MONTREAL (CP) — Ever get plaster in your nails from climbing walls over an irritating advertisement?

Well, Ogilvy and Mather Canada Ltd., an advertising agency, is planning to give you an outlet — and welcomes the criticism.

Starting next month, you can give advertisers a piece of your mind, says John Stratton, president and creative director of Ogilvy and Mather.

The firm's client is the Canadian Advertising Advisory Board, made up of representatives of advertising agencies, the media and major national advertisers. Its aim is to improve public awareness of the positive contributions of the industry.

On Oct. 1, Ogilvy and Mather will start running ads that invite the public to change advertising it does not like.

The ads will offer a free booklet outlining the Canadian Code of Advertising Standards, prepared by the CAAB in 1963, with a complaint notice attached.

Complaints received will be forwarded to the Advertising Standards Council, a CAAB committee, which will pass them on to manufacturers. "One complaint is not going to change a campaign," Stratton said, "but people don't realize how effective a few letters can be in changing an unpopular advertisement."

He cited one Ogilvy and Mather campaign that brought 12 complaints to the manufacturer over bad taste. The ad was changed.

"Some businessmen will probably be annoyed by this campaign because of the complaints they will receive, but most should be glad to get the feedback."

Meteorite Search Narrows

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A meteorite recovery team from the Dominion Observatory in Ottawa reported Wednesday it has pinpointed to within three or four miles the spot where a meteorite fell Aug. 20 near here.

"I think we are making progress in narrowing down the search," said Alan Blackwell, a member of the two-man team.

Mr. Blackwell and Ian Halliday have been interviewing residents of the greater Prince George area for about a week. They believe the meteorite weighed between two and 20 tons.

"We are down to three or four miles now," said Mr. Blackwell.

U.S. officials apologized. The railroad said the conductor acted according to regulations but the incident was "under investigation."

But for Mayor Alvin Ruskin there was more at stake. New Rochelle, which was settled by French Huguenots, takes its name from La Rochelle, France. In 1963 the mayor of La Rochelle visited New Rochelle and in 1967 New Rochelle officials returned the visit.

"We wouldn't want anything to happen to disturb our

HERE WE ARE

A distinguished lake resort with every facility for the year-round enjoyment for all ages. YOU can now enjoy all the advantages of one of British Columbia's most beautiful PURE and WARM WATER LAKES. Shawnigan Lake has been known by a select few as the ideal watering spot since the turn of the century. Homes on the lake have been handed down for as many as four generations.

WHY?

The lake has 10 beautiful islands dotting its surface. The water is so pure it may be used for drinking purposes without treatment. (Duncan Health Officer, May, 1969). The rainfall is half of Vancouver's average. Mosquitoes and insects are practically unknown at any season of the year. The lakeshore is entirely owned by people who really CARE about maintaining the lake and the area in its unspoiled wilderness state. SHAWNIGAN INN PEOPLE, being well aware of the foregoing, have carefully engineered a subdivision of distinction to avoid any possibility of despoiling any of Shawnigan's unparalleled assets.

LOOK

Now consider the advantage of owning a building site on Shawnigan Inn's grounds.

1. Within daily commuting distance of Victoria and as such allows the use of your investment every day of the year for retirement purposes or recreational use.
2. Every city service available to you but in a complete country setting.
3. Estate living in its most gracious manner. Your own tennis courts, wharves, in-dome heated pools, sauna baths, sailboats, canoes, fabulous water skiing AND WITH SOMEONE ELSE TO DO THE WORK.
4. Complete administrative service available for your unit from the hotel if you so desire—renting or leasing.
5. If you build for retirement, then companionship, if so desired is always available before the roaring fireplaces of Shawnigan Inn not to mention billiards, library, or siffa-long in the Shawnigan Room with all facilities. Our afternoon teas have been famous for 40 years.
6. COME UP ON SATURDAY AND LOOK US OVER. Come down to the Inn's main office and have a Quadra Realty salesman arrange afternoon tea as our guest. If you wish you may have a complementary room Friday and Saturday night so that you may feel part of the estate and enjoy a small sample of the SHAWNIGAN COUNTRY CLUB'S ADVANTAGES.

Eskimos Outscore Lions In Comedy of Errors

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jim "Long Gone" Thomas exploded for a 64-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter Wednesday to clinch victory for Edmonton Eskimos over British Columbia Lions.

Thomas' run gave the Eskimos a 13-5 decision and saved the Western Football Conference game, before 22,791 Empire Stadium fans, from remaining a comedy of errors.

Corey Colehour, touted as Edmonton's replacement for Jackie Parker at quarterback, tossed a three-yard flip pass to newcomer Tom Nettles early in the second quarter for the other Eskimo touchdown.

Dave Cutler, brought in to strengthen the Eskimos kicking, was one-for-two in conversions, wide from 31 yards and rolled to the cinder track.

Ted Gerela, who generates more offence with his toe than the Lions' offensive unit can muster, booted all five points for the hapless B.C. club.

He hit for a 17-yard field goal at 5:40 of the first quarter and added a single point less than five minutes later when Bayne Norrie was rouged on Gerela's three-point try from 31 yards.

The other B.C. single came at 14:05 of the second quarter when the Burnaby-born place-kicker's field goal attempt was wide from 31 yards and rolled to the cinder track.

HOPES DIMMER

The loss for the Lions was their eighth in nine starts and makes their chances of making one of the three playoff positions a tough task. Edmonton moved into third place, one point ahead of Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

About the only thing that kept the fans from laughing in the first half was a steady drizzle which turned into a full-fledged storm by the time the halftime entertainment was over.

TELL THE STORY

The yardstick for the first 30 minutes told the story: B.C. had four first-downs and Edmonton three; the Lions picked up one yard rushing, 79 yards passing and quarterback Paul Brothers threw the interceptions.

The total offence for both teams was 141 yards. The Lions had three fumbles in the first two quarters, the Eskimos two.

Running back Donnie Shanklin and Brothers gave the Lions field position for Gerela's field goal at 5:40 from a bad angle and the Lions went into the second quarter with a 4-0 lead after Norrie was rouged.

BIG CHANCE

Colehour, who completed only two of nine passes attempts in the first half, got his big chance when Dick Dupuis picked off a Brothers' pass deep in B.C. territory late in the first quarter.

He threw to Art Perkins and the big fullback gave the Eskimos first-down yardage on the Lions' five-yard line.

Three plays into the second quarter, Nettles grabbed off Colehour's flip for the touch-down. Cutler was wide on the conversion attempt.

Rich Robinson blocked Roger Kettlewell's punt and Dave Wray pounced on the loose ball at the Edmonton 25.

Gerela was wide from 37 yards, but B.C. picked up a single when the ball rolled through the end zone.

FUMBLE, FUMBLE

After that, it was fumble, fumble for the Lions and Thomas for the Eskimos.

Jim Evenson dropped Brothers' handoff with six minutes gone in the third quarter and only the ineptitude of the Edmonton offence prevented the Lions from paying for it.

Then in the third quarter, Brothers dropped the ball.

Demand of Referees Reversal—Campbell

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, said Wednesday a statement issued in Toronto by lawyer Joe Kane on behalf of 20 NHL officials who have refused to sign 1969 league contracts is a complete reversal from previous policy.

"To suggest all they are seeking is recognition of their association is not correct," the NHL president said.

Kane spoke on behalf of 20 NHL officials—13 referees and seven linesmen—who walked out of training camp at Brantford, Ont., Monday after the NHL refused to recognize the group as the National Hockey League Referees' and Linesmen's Association.

"All we really want is recognition by the NHL for our association," Kane told a Wednesday news conference.

IN DIRECT CONTRAST

"The reason for the association is complex, but basically we want more support for the officials from the NHL government and referee-in-chief and a non-contributory pension plan."

Campbell, a former NHL referee himself, said Kane's statement regarding recognition was in direct contrast to one which was made at a meeting Sept. 2 with Scotty Morrison, the NHL's referee-in-chief.

"At that time he said the officials were agreeable that official recognition was not important," Campbell said.

Campbell said that despite assurances from Kane, former president of the Central Hockey League, that he would provide full particulars on each of the subjects in time for a governors' meeting Aug. 21, "he never did so and never has done so to date."

Nervous But United

TORONTO—Rebel NHL officials clustered around their spokesman here Wednesday, wiping away nervous perspiration and vowing not to return until they are recognized as a bargaining unit.

The holdouts have adopted a policy of "let's wait and see if they can do without us," according to spokesman Joe Kane.

"Sure the pressure is on our group at the moment," Kane said.

"But we are sticking together and we know the pressure pendulum will swing in about seven days."

He was referring to the pre-season schedule, which gets into full gear next week and becomes heavier as it works toward the regular season opening Oct. 11.

However, in a conference with the referee-in-chief Sept. 2, the representatives of the officials' association made a presentation in which they said they were not interested in official recognition at this time.

Campbell said the officials asked for a minimum salary increase of 25 per cent "across the board" over last year's earnings, full funded pensions for all officials in all leagues to be paid by the NHL, a similar request for medical and group life insurance plans and "numerous lesser requests."

OFFER PENSIONS

"The referee-in-chief was authorized to advise them that we would recommend the same financial provision for referees and linesmen as had been provided for the players—pensions, group life and health insurance—in respect to their NHL services."

"They were advised the association would not be officially recognized and there would be no 25 per cent increase across the board. Our position from that time has not changed."

New Sport Grants Receive Approval

The provincial government will contribute $15,000 to the British Columbia Federation of School Athletic Associations to further inter-school athletics at the high school level.

The grant, one of 10 totalling $35,755 announced Wednesday, was approved by the government's Physical Fitness and Amateur Sports Fund.

Other grants include: $5,000 to the B.C. Canadian Football Association to improve leadership for this sport; $4,000 to B.C. Minor Baseball Association covering team travel expenses; $3,500 to the B.C. Fencing Association to develop and assist fencing; $3,000 to the B.C. Amateur Baseball Association to help establish this organization.

B.C. Mountain Access Committee gets $2,000 to help development of mountaineering; B.C. Youth Hostels Association gets $1,000 to encourage greater participation in outdoor recreation.

Grants of $500 each went to B.C. Rifle Association and Nanaimo Luckies lacrosse team, and the B.C. Canoe Association received $225.

Regina Will Honor Former Roughrider

REGINA (CP) — The city will pay tribute Sunday, Sept. 28, to Ron Atchison, offensive centre and defensive middle guard who won all-star honors five times in 17 seasons with Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Added Duties

SEATTLE (AP) — Tom Meschery has been named assistant coach of Seattle SuperSonics by general manager Dick Verlieb and head coach Lenny Wilson. Meschery, an eight-year veteran of the league, will assume his new duties immediately. He will continue to play.

City council has agreed to a request from the football club to proclaim a Ron Atchison Day. Special ceremonies will be held at half-time in a Western Football Conference game between Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Atchison, 38, who joined Roughriders in 1952 from Saskatoon Hilltops and twice won an award as the most valuable Canadian on the club, retired after the 1968 season.

East Champs Extend Senior Boxla Series

MONTREAL (CP) — Caughnawaga Indian defeated Nanaimo, B.C., Luckies 19-13 Wednesday night to stave off elimination in the best-of-seven Canadian Senior B Lacrosse championship.

Nanaimo leads the series 3-1. The two clubs meet tonight in the suburban Chateaugay arena in the fifth game.

Grant Skipper paced the Luckies with three goals followed by Gary Thompson and Charlie Hardy with two each. Murray Thomas, Larry Clarkson, Craig MacRae, Jim Butterfield, Don Stephenson and Bill Russel each added one goal.

Claude Perrault led Caughnawaga with four goals. Peter Brisebois, George Norton and Arthur Zachary each scored three and Walter Goodleaf added two. Skipper was assessed a 10-minute misconduct penalty after he objected to a two-minute penalty for slashing at 19:03 of the third period.

Nanaimo had 18 penalties while the Indians had 11. Each team was assessed two five-minute penalties and Skipper drew a misconduct at 19:03 of the third period.

The first double major was at 9:35 of the second frame when Johnny Lahache of Caughnawaga and Larry Clarkson of the Luckies clashed.

The second came at 14:38 of the same period for roughing and fighting between Steve Bishop of the Luckies and Lewis Desile of the Indians.

Caughnawaga lead 8-4 at the end of the first and 14-10 at the end of the second.

Rash of Scoring In Cup Soccer

By REUTERS

Some high scoring marked first-round matches in the three major European soccer tournaments—the Cup of Champions, Cup of Cup Winners and Fairs Cup—when nearly 100 teams went into action Wednesday night.

Dutch champions Feyenoord led the scoring spree, crushing the inexperienced Icelandic players of the K.R. Club from Reykjavik, 12-2, in their Cup of Champions game before 50,000 in Rotterdam.

English League champion Leeds United abandoned its usual caution to overwhelm Norwegian amateurs Lyn Oslo, 10-0, in the home leg of their Cup of Cups matches.

Centre-forward Mick Jones scored three goals, while striker

Alan Clarke, was among three players who netted twice.

Another rush of goals came in Belgrade where Red Star hammered five goals in 34 minutes as they crushed Irish part-timers Linfield of Northern Ireland, 8-0, in Cup of Champions play.

The Cup of Cups competition produced the biggest excitement. Titleholders Slovak Bratislava of Czechoslovakia lost 3-0 to Zagreb Dinamo of Yugoslavia.

England's Manchester City looked to be in trouble after trailing 1-3 against Atletico Bilbao in Spain, but they stormed back to tie 3-3 and emerge as favorites to reach the second round.

The Welsh club, Cardiff City also went on a goal rampage, whipping Mjondalen, the Norwegian second division team, 7-1.

Low cost hot water

Plenty for breakfast showers and shaving

Plenty for breakfast dishes

Plenty for four big washloads—no waiting between loads

Plenty for lunchtime dishes, pots, pans

Plenty for the teenage daughter's hair-washing ritual

Plenty to bathe the youngsters—four big baths in an hour

Plenty for a good relaxing soak before you go to bed

Plenty for breakfast showers and shaving...

Lease this heater for $4.13* a month—you'll get more hot water—and pay less"

You can have so much hot water the tap may never run cold. This oil-powered Shell Home Comfort Heater heats water 3 times faster than gas—7 times faster than electricity!

And we can show you pay less for each gallon of hot water than you'd pay using either gas or electricity.

Just think, enough hot water to do four full washloads without a break... enough to bathe four kids in the bedtime hour... enough for the breakfast scramble—showers, dishes, washing and all!

How much will you save?

You could save many dollars over the years. Give us a call. One of our Consultants can show you exactly how much. He will compare the cost of hot water from the Shell Turboflue® Water Heater with the cost of gas and electric water heaters. And it will be a fair comparison.

He will prove to your satisfaction that the Shell Turboflue Water Heater can give you more hot water—without sending your bills skyrocketing.

Why does it cost less to run?

This Shell waterheater is one of the most efficient ever built. Instead of just heating the base of the tank, the flame swirls up through the centre. This unique patented process can produce 90 gallons of boiling water every hour.

It runs on clean, safe Shell Heating Oil. In the area we serve, Shell Heating Oil packs more heat energy per dollar than gas or electricity.

No extra charge for installing or service

It will be installed and linked up to your existing oil lines in less than a day. At no extra charge Shell Home Comfort looks after all servicing needs—both parts and labour.

All you pay is the monthly amount quoted above and the monthly fuel oil bill. Both payments appear on one statement. You write just one cheque a month.

Snead Drops Nicklaus for Cup Opening

SOUTHPORT, England (AP)—Sam Snead, non-playing captain of the United States Ryder Cup team, surprised British golfing fans Wednesday when he sidelined Jack Nicklaus for today's opening round of two-ball foursomes against Britain.

"I could change my lineup in the afternoon round," Snead said without explanation although he hinted that he was keeping Nicklaus, now a pudgy 29 and not having one of his best years, and Dan Sikes of Jacksonville, Fla., fresh for Saturday's two rounds of singles.

Snead be played today over Birkdale's par 36-38-74 layout that stretches for 7,140 yards along the edge of the Irish Sea. Eight more foursomes will be played Friday before Saturday's 16 singles matches. Nicklaus, winner at least once of every mayor golfing championship, took his demotion to the sidelines in good grace. "With a bit of luck I could get into some of the foursome action yet," he said without rancor.

British fans hope their experienced team will triumph over the visitors, who go into these biennial matches with a 14-3 edge.

The match involving Billy Casper and Frank Beard of the U.S. against Britain's Christy O'Connor and Peter Alliss could be the one to count over this tough course.

It pairs two of Britain's most experienced players and two of the finest players in the U.S. Beard is the top money winner on the American tournament circuit this year.

Wrigley Asserts Faith in Durocher

CHICAGO (AP) — Owner Phil Wrigley gave a vote of confidence Wednesday to manager Leo Durocher of the Chicago Cubs.

Wrigley, who has Durocher signed through the 1970 season, scoffed at a rumor the 63-year-old pilot would resign if the hard-pressed Cubs fail to overtake New York's miraculous Mets in the National League's Eastern Division race.

DISCOUNTS SUGGESTION

"That doesn't sound like Leo to me," said Wrigley. "He's done a great job however we finish and you can bet he'll be back next season."

Wrigley also discounted suggestions that the Cub shift from a 9½-game lead to an apparent fading second behind the Mets might have stemmed from Durocher's much-publicized ex-cursion in late July.

On July 26, Durocher left Wrigley Field during a 3-2 Cub victory over Los Angeles Dodgers because, it was reported, of an ailing stomach. He wound up the same evening at Eagle River, Wis., some 400 miles distant, for a parents' reception at a boys' camp attended by his step-son.

"I think any connection between that incident and our slump is ridiculous," said Wrigley, who first criticized Leo and then forgave him after hauling Durocher briefly on the carpet.

"As I said at the time, the whole thing was blown up out of proportion. Look at the fact that when Leo got sick that weekend, the club was only 4½ games in front. More than two weeks later, we were 9½ games in front of the Mets. So what kind of logic is that morale talk?"

SUGGESTION NOT VALID
Wrigley, who rarely visits his ball park, agreed that perhaps the Cubs are suffering battle fatigue.

"It certainly looks that way," Wrigley said of the Cubs who held first place from the start of the season until the surging Mets clawed to the top spot on Sept. 10.

"I've been keeping my fingers crossed since the season opened," said Wrigley who last had a pennant winner in 1945.

Judge 'Admires' Apology

Although David Manhas, 29, of 721 Cloverdale, behaved in "a most disgraceful manner," according to Judge William Ostler, a charge against him of assaulting a police officer was dismissed Wednesday in Victoria Provincial Court.

Saanich Constable John Adams told court that he was struck by the accused on Aug. 23 while he and another police officer attended at the accused's residence following a domestic quarrel.

WITH BABYSITTER

He said Manhas' wife had requested police assistance. After they arrived, Mrs. Manhas stated that she wanted to leave the house to stay with her babysitter.

When Constable Adams pulled the accused aside to clear the way for Mrs. Manhas, he was struck by her husband, court was told.

Manhas, who had pleaded not guilty to the charge earlier, told court that he might have struck the officer accidentally.

WOMAN SCARED

Mrs. Manhas said she didn't see her husband strike the officer, but she admitted under cross-examination that she was scared of her husband that night.

"I wanted the police to take him away until he sobered up," she said.

Judge Ostler said it was the old story of the husband who had too much to drink and who was abusing his wife and his family while under the influence of alcohol.

'HOSTILE HUSBAND'

"The police are usually called by the wife and met at the door by a hostile husband," the judge said.

"Time and again, these domestic incidents bear out the old saying that the policeman's lot is not a happy one. While there is trouble, the wife will call the police and place herself under the officers' protection, but when the case goes to court, she will line up with her husband against the officers."

He said there was not enough evidence to find Manhas guilty of the charge.

APOLOGY GIVEN

When it was all over, Manhas apologized to the court for the inconvenience he might have caused the police. He then went over to Constable Adams and shook hands with him, again offering his apologies.

Judge Ostler said he was impressed with Manhas' attitude.

"I admire you for apologizing. You have behaved in a most disgraceful manner, and it is good to see you regret your behavior."

A 35-year-old man serving a four-month sentence at Oakalla for false pretences told court he was running his business from prison.

Frank Eckersley of Vancouver appeared before Judge Ostler on an additional charge of false pretences involving a bounced cheque for paint supplies and was sentenced to two months after pleading guilty. The sentence, however, will run concurrently with his present sentence.

Eckersley told court he got into "this mess" because he had too many accounts receivable.

A short while ago, he said, the prison authorities had given him permission to run his business, a Vancouver painting and remodelling firm, from prison.

"Once a week, I send out invoices from prison, and business seems to go well," he said with a smile.

MAN PRAISED

Judge Ostler praised Eckersley for his actions.

"I have great admiration for you. It is refreshing and encouraging to see you try to get on your feet instead of sulking in prison trying to get back at society," he said.

"Your chances for rehabilitation are excellent indeed," he added.

Michael J. Reynolds, 43, of 1109 Collinson, was fined $25 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of causing a disturbance. Court was told Reynolds had come home with his wife from a party. While the taxi waited outside, the accused went into the house and emerged a short while later carrying a rifle. Court was told the police were called by a worried neighbor.

CAB DRIVER

According to the cab driver, Reynolds wanted to show the rifle, court was told.

Judge Ostler warned the accused not to touch weapons while under the influence of alcohol.

"It can be a very dangerous thing even if your intentions are perfectly innocent, which I'm prepared to believe in this case," he said.

A charge of fraud against Brian C. Holley, president and general manager of Brian Holley Motors Ltd., was dismissed by Judge Ostler.

Holley was accused of defrauding Michael A. Sudul, 1250 Monterey, of approximately $460 in July, 1968. Mr. Sudul complained that he was told a car he was purchasing was a 1966 model when in reality it was a 1965 model.

Judge Ostler said there was absolutely no evidence of fraud. He said the crown had failed to prove that the 1965 model was worth $460 less than a 1966 model.

"There is no doubt that a used 1965 car in good condition can be worth infinitely more than a used 1966 car of the same make in poor condition," he said.

Ramsey Gramson, a former salesman for Holley, said there was no difference between a 1965 Rover and a 1966 Rover. All cars in stock at the beginning of a new calendar year, he said, would be classified as new models although they had left the assembly line at the same time as the cars sold at the end of the preceding year.

Up with People Singers Set

More than 100 Victoria young people will sing their way through the city Saturday in a program of songs to publicize Up With People Day.

The group — Sing-Out Victoria — was organized 2½ years ago for Centennial Year and has since performed for the IODE, Catholic Women's League, Wilkeson Road Prison and at Butchart's Gardens.

The singers will give 20-minute concerts in the following locations: 10 a.m., Centennial Square; 11 a.m., Bastion Square; 12:30 p.m., Hillside Shopping Centre; 1:30 p.m., Mayfair Shopping Centre; 3 p.m., Town and Country Shopping Centre.

The final show of the day will be a two-hour concert starting at 8 p.m. in McPherson Playhouse.

Terry Lewis, one of the singers, said this week that Up With People Day is being held to involve Victorians in the spirit of the movement.

"In case you are unfamiliar with this organization," she said, "we will explain."

Sing-Out Victoria is part of the international Up With People movement, she said.

"We are a group of young people who strongly believe that we can play a significant and creative role in the community. We want to make as many people as possible aware of this lively spirit and to encourage the growth of this spirit in people everywhere."

It May Really Exist

Two-Toed Tribe of the Zambesi

Remarkable evidence of the existence of a strange tribe of two-toed people who can run like the wind on a staple diet of honey, corn and mushrooms, has been obtained by a few European travellers who independently ventured into the wild, under-explored region of the Zambesi Valley on the remote northwestern borders of Rhodesia.

For many years the existence of the tribe has been regarded by most Rhodesians as simply a sundowner myth and a topic to get strangers talking at social functions.

The first proof of their existence has come in the form of x-ray photographs showing the splayed feet. The plates were taken in Salisbury by a radiologist when a hunter, fascinated by the peculiarly shaped feet of one of his black carriers, brought the man with him on his return from the region.

The man was later taken back to his habitat, but left behind him an anthropological controversy, with some leading specialists contending that the case was an isolated one of a deformity known in America and Britain as "lobster feet" and others holding an equally strong view that the splayed feet were hereditary.

Then a pilot, Flying Officer Mark McLean of the royal Rhodesian air force, produced a photo he had taken of a member of the Vadoma tribe inhabiting an area west of Kanyemba, a remote Rhodesian outpost between the Portuguese border and the confluence of the Hurumani and Zambesi rivers. The photo clearly showed a two-toed tribesman with feet not unlike those of an ostrich.

"I know of two of them at Kanyemba. One is seen fairly regularly near the airstrip. They are shy, expert trackers, and their tribe lives in the hills between Kanyemba and the Chewore River," said McLean.

Another to produce a photo of the two-toed tribe is Goggie Olsson, a borehole engineer of the Midlands town of Hartley. He says he first heard of the tribe many years ago when he was working in the valley. After making many attempts to find the tribe, he eventually surprised a group of 50 or 60, who fled from him at fantastic speed.

"They don't climb trees," he said. "They run up them. I am convinced they can outrun and outclimb baboons."

A former Rhodesian miner, Buster Phillips, now living in Salisbury, had a two-toed tribesman working for him while he was mining mica in the Mpata Gorge near the river town of Feira. He says he met several of the tribesmen in the area.

"These sturdy two-toed men spoke in a corrupted

By GEORGE NICHOLAS from Salisbury, Rhodesia

Chinyanja dialect and told me they lived in the hills," he said. "It seems their staple diet consists of honey and mushrooms, although they also grow some corn up in the hills."

Phillips says the tribesmen have normal feet but, instead of the normal five toes, they have two, one bigger than the other and splayed.

"The men were about six feet tall, very shy and reticent. The first group I saw were up a tree. As soon as I got near them in the small clearing they were down and off. Their speed over the rough ground was astonishing; they ran like the wind."

It was some time before he saw them again but when he did he examined their feet.

"They were so shy that whenever I and my own Negro helpers tried to sit down with them they moved away. But I did finally make successful contact with three of them, and one of them subsequently worked for me a while."

Members of other tribes on the Zambesi claim to have seen the two-toed Vadomas at regular intervals. They believe the Vadomas cut off the three middle toes of all babies born in the tribe, so that as the children grow up the two remaining toes play out to make tree-climbing easy.

They also claim that Vadomas have no fixed villages but live in caves, trees and antbear holes; and that they can creep up on a man without being noticed. Occasionally they venture from their wild domain to find a wife among nearby tribes.

Olsson, the borehole engineer, disagrees with the claim that toes are removed from babies. "Their toes are definitely not chopped off nor affected by any disease," he says.

"Their bone structure is quite different from the normal because their feet split high up on the instep and splay out in two big toes like an ostrich foot."

until they grow up and start climbing trees. Originally the tribe probably lived in swamps and marshes far up the Zambesi Basin and later trekked down to avoid civilization."

Another view of the two-toed tribe comes from a former history lecturer at Rhodesia's university, D. P. Abraham, who claims he met the Vadoma some years ago, spoke with them and studied their history.

"Their condition is actually an environmental asset," he said. "They can outrun any five-toed man because they can get a much better purchase with their feet. The condition is definitely hereditary."

Stabbing Death Still Unsolved

CHICAGO (AP) — It's been three years since Valerie Percy was murdered in an elegant North Shore mansion, but the state's chief investigator in the unsolved case is still looking for "that one little thing."

"That might be all we need, just one little thing that ties to another little thing," said Robert Lamb, an Illinois state police corporal and head of the three-man team assigned to the Percy investigation.

Lamb joined the case a week after Valerie, 21, the twin daughter of Senator Charles Percy, Illinois Republican, was stabbed and beaten to death in her bedroom just before dawn Sept. 18, 1966.

"We've talked to burglars, home invaders, sex offenders, as well as relatives, friends and anyone who might have known Valerie," Lamb said, "but we don't know who did it or why."

Lamb and his associates have checked out 1,276 leads, questioned more than 10,000 persons and administered 49 lie detector tests.

Dog Dies to Save 10

SAIGON — A U.S. army sergeant has credited his gallant German shepherd scout dog with saving a 10-man patrol by charging Viet Cong troops in a jungle ambush.

The dog, Alex, drew all the guerrilla fire and didn't stop his charge even after he was hit by a hail of bullets. The dog collapsed and died within a foot of the ambushers, said Sgt. Thomas Smith of Fitzgerald, Ga.

MIAMI BEACH — Retired newscaster Gabriel Heatter, who kept Second World War audiences tuned to their radios with "There's good news tonight," said on his 80th birthday there is still good news in the world. He explained: "If I could say there was good news during the darkest days of the Second World War, I can sure find good news in the exciting events of this year."

ZERMATT, Switzerland — Police said a British climber and his eight-year-old son have been missing on the 14,780-foot Matterhorn for a week and there is little chance of finding them alive. Arthur Clarkson, 33, and his son Roy were last seen climbing at an altitude of 13,000 feet, 600 feet from the top.

WASHINGTON — President Nixon said he will ask Congress next week for an increase of 10 per cent in U.S. social security payments effective next April 1.

VENICE — Giovanni Cardinal Urbani, Roman Catholic patriarch of Venice and president of the Italian Bishops Conference, died at 69.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Ralph Smith, a Republican and Speaker of the Illinois House, was named by Gov. Richard Ogilvie to fill the Illinois seat in the U.S. Senate left vacant by the death of Everett Dirksen. The appointment is until January, 1971, when the winner of the 1970 election will take office.

SAN FRANCISCO — An applicant for the city police department was turned down because he doesn't have enough ribs. A medical examination showed Paul Makavekas, 23, who studied criminology in college, was born with one less rib than the usual 12 on each side.

TORONTO — Constable Sydney Brown, a Grade 10 dropout and president of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Association, is going back to school as a college lecturer. Also head of the Ontario Police Association, the Canadian Police Association and the International Conference of Police Associations, he will be one of several lecturers on law enforcement at Humber College.

PARIS — Rev. Paul Lingstrom, chairman of the Re-member the Pueblo Committee, said he had received information that the three U.S. helicopter crew members shot down over North Korea a month ago "very likely" will be released today.

SANTIAGO — President Eduardo Frei of Chile signed into law a bill giving 30,000 blind Chileans, previously disfranchised, the right to vote.

Fate of Husbands

Hanoi Will Be Asked Weeping Wives Told

PARIS (AP) — The wives of four U.S. pilots reported missing in action over North Vietnam said Wednesday night a North Vietnamese spokesman promised to ask Hanoi and let them know the fate of their husbands.

The women, all from the Dallas, Texas area, met for two hours with Xuan Oanh, a member of the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris peace talks.

Oanh called their husbands "war pirates" and "war criminals" and showed them photos of alleged U.S. bombing destruction in North Vietnam.

Two of the wives were weeping when they left the meeting. Their spokesmen, Bonnie Singleton, told a news conference that Oanh said he would inquire and let them know individually, when they got back to Dallas, what had happened to their husbands.

She said Oanh added that any other wives or other persons seeking information would be welcome at the North Vietnamese delegation headquarters, providing they came independently and were not sponsored by the U.S. government.

Mrs. Singleton said that during the meeting with Oanh and two other North Vietnamese, the wives answered they had come to Paris only to discuss the fates of their husbands and not to talk politics or military subjects.

Mrs. Singleton, Joy Jeffrey, Sandy McElhanon and Paula Hartness had arrived here Sunday to try to learn "whether we are still wives—or if we are widows."

Fire Prevention Week

Schools Getting the Drill

Students from more than 60 schools in the Victoria area will observe fire drill procedures during a three-week period starting Sept. 23, including Fire Prevention Week.

During visits to the schools firemen will demonstrate fire fighting equipment and judge each school's fire drill. Two trophies will be awarded to the schools judged most proficient.

The Victoria fire department said Tuesday it is expected that Mayor Hugh Stephen will proclaim Fire Prevention Week Oct. 6 in a ceremony at city hall.

On Oct. 8 evacuations and fire drill procedures will be carried out in five federal buildings. Fire department officials will observe the drills.

MP Pay-Raise Prospects Dimming

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau may have brought members of Parliament one step closer to higher salaries when he said he was sympathetic toward the idea, but several MPs said Wednesday they don't foresee any immediate increase.

It's a dicey subject for MPs to discuss publicly, since a strong argument for higher incomes often sets up ripples of resentment in home ridings. As one said Wednesday: "How can I argue for more than $18,000 a year when many of my constituents don't earn a quarter of that?"

EARLIER HOLLEE
The $18,000, incidentally, is made up of $12,000 in annual salary and $6,000 in tax-free allowances. It was raised from a total of $12,000 in 1963, setting off a mild public controversy that MPs don't want to see repeated.

At the time, Conservative leader John Diefenbaker and several members of his party, came out against the increase. Without this opposition, the measure would have slipped through the Commons with a minimum of fuss, since a vast majority of members favored the additional money.

LITTLE SUPPORT
It was freely predicted at that time, that further salary increases would not be implemented without all-party agreement for unanimous support. At the moment, there doesn't appear to be that support.

Not long ago, Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said salaries for MPs should not be increased until older people are looked after. "Pensions for the elderly and for retired civil servants should be raised first."

Earlier this year, a committee of Liberal MPs prepared a report for Trudeau which, among other things, recommended higher salaries. No specific raise was asked for, but several alternatives were suggested as a means of bringing salaries more in line with senior public servants.

The report contained a series of other recommendations for such improvements as more office space, additional staff, moving expenses and transportation subsidies within ridings.

The report was scarcely in the hands of Trudeau when the government moved to tighten the reins on government spending.

In the face of such government restraints, a salary increase for MPs would have been unthinkable.

The reins remain tight, and for this reason alone, many MPs are pessimistic about the chances for early improvements in their standard of living. But apart from this, they say, it is unlikely anything will be done until there is all-party agreement—or at least agreement that no one will speak out against the measure—and so far there have been no steps taken in this direction.

"In the meantime," said an MP, "the less said about it the better."

Soviets Deny Default On 1966 Wheat Pact

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government has denied defaulting on an agreement to buy wheat in huge quantities from Canada, although purchases have fallen behind original expectations.

The agreement, signed here in June, 1966, called for delivery of 336,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat for an estimated $800,000,000.

But as of July 31 last, when the three-year period provided in the agreement ended, the Soviet Union had taken only 201,000,000 bushels.

The Soviet government maintains that the agreement represented only an intent to purchase not strictly limited to a specific period of time.

A government spokesman said Wednesday in denying unofficial reports of default, that talks with Canadian wheat authorities on further purchases will be held in the fall.

Canada has not declared the agreement in default. Its officials expressed hope in Ottawa this week that the Soviet Union will eventually take the full amount provided for in the agreement.

SOME CONCERN
But the delay has caused concern in Canada, which faces a loss of sales estimated at $250,000,000. The latest interpretation of the agreement has also raised some doubts about Soviet commercial integrity, after the Kremlin for years claimed it never went back on a deal.

The agreement was entered into after the Soviet Union went through years in which it was unable to grow enough wheat to meet its own needs. The prolonged failure, which forced embarrassing purchases abroad and expenditure of precious foreign currency, figured in the fall of Nikita Khrushchev, as premier.

NEW LEADERS
The new Kremlin leadership apparently wanted to protect its political position by ensuring an adequate wheat supply for a long period.

But starting in 1966, the year of the agreement, grain harvests began reaching record levels. Even this year, plagued by bad weather, the harvest is expected to be only about 5 per cent less than in 1968.

The result was that Canadian wheat became less necessary and purchases fell steadily.

Now, according to available information, Soviet storage facilities are taxed to the utmost. That would mean there is no place to put more Canadian wheat even if the government decided to buy to protect its commercial reputation.

Such a decision does not seem likely within the near future. Soviet-Canadian talks are not expected to start before November when the Kremlin knows definitely the amount of this year's Soviet harvest. More time will have to pass before a deal, if any, is concluded and shipments start.

Canada apparently has no real choice but to accept the situation and hope that the Soviet government will eventually take the full amount mentioned in the 1966 agreement.

The agreement was signed between two ostensibly non-governmental agencies, the Canadian wheat board and a Soviet trading body called Exportkhleb, and lacks treaty force. It also lacks the detailed specifications of prices, delivery dates and other similar matters common to a regular commercial contract. And no penalties are provided for failure to fulfill terms.

Nigerian Jet Kills Irish Nun

OWERRI, Biafra (Reuters) — An Irish-born missionary nun was killed and another wounded in a raid by a federal Nigerian jet plane here Wednesday, Roman Catholic sources said.

The two nuns were on their way to a refugee clinic when the lone jet swept over the city.

An eyewitness said the dead nun, her companion and their Biafran driver and a Biafran woman nurse leaped out of their car into the forest as the jet attacked with cannons blazing.

The driver was also killed.

Pope Voices Alarm

'Grave Calamities' Seen Threat to Catholicism

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (UPI) — Pope Paul said Wednesday the Roman Catholic church is threatened with "grave calamities" because of rebellion in her ranks and questioning of traditional beliefs.

He also warned some priests may have gone beyond permissible limits in forsaking clerical dress and changing their way of thinking and living, and said there is "too much" free discussion on priestly celibacy.

The Vatican conciliar council, he said, gave rise to new impulses in the church, "but not all are directed in the right way."

"Not a few symptoms seem rather to foreshadow grave calamities for the church itself," he said. Among such symptoms, he said, are challenges to doctrinal orthodox coming from "some schools and some scholars" and the tendency to rebellion in the church.

"One cannot observe without apprehension the ease with which the virtue of ecclesiastical obedience is contravened," he said.

"Perhaps the permissible limits have been exceeded in the effort — in itself praiseworthy — to insert the priest in his social setting, secularizing entirely his dress, his way of thinking and living... there is too much free discussion of his celibacy."

The Pope also said some priests may have given way too much to pressures of public opinion and said there has perhaps been too much attention given to "excessive forms of publicity, opinion surveys and irregular experiments" in priestly life.

OLDEST CITY
The oldest city in Finland is Turku, which was founded in the 13th century and was the country's capital until 1812.

Pompidou Gets Tough

PARIS (UPI) — President Georges Pompidou warned Wednesday he would promptly crush any attempt to turn France's mounting labor trouble into a subversive movement against the regime.

The 56-year-old chief executive told his cabinet that "republican order" will be maintained at all cost.

The president's comment, made public by information minister Leo Hamon, appeared directed at Georges Seguy, secretary general of the communist general labor confederation.

NEW BLOW
Seguy said during the weekend that Pompidou would not serve out his full seven-year term and that a big strike wave might deal a new blow to the Gaullist regime.

Referring to "certain people" who allegedly sought to use the strike as a political weapon Pompidou said, "I warn everybody of the firm determination of the authorities, and in particular of the chief of state, to ensure that in all circumstances the law will be respected and republican order maintained."

The elegantly spirited 1970 Cadillac

The brilliant new 1970 Cadillac is styled to reflect both the quality and the mood of life in the spirited seventies. Its striking new beauty suggests the tempo of people on the move. Richly tailored appointments and refinements welcome you to a new era of Cadillac taste and elegance. Sparkling performance invites you to experience an entirely new dimension of motoring pleasure. All told, it sets new standards of excellence for a great decade. In all eleven Cadillac models for 1970, you'll discover new ideas attuned to the spirited seventies. You may, for example, choose a new radio system that will seek out your favorite AM, FM or stereo-only station. The aerial is neatly concealed in the windshield, out of sight and out of the way. This year, Cadillac engineers have again made sure that the Cadillac ride continues to be the smoothest, the quietest, the most enjoyable in motoring history. Cadillac... Standard of the World.

The newly spirited 8.2 litre Eldorado

The Spirit of the Seventies is nowhere more evident than in the handsome 1970 Eldorado. Behind its smartly recessed grille is a great new V-8 engine with a displacement of 8.2 litres (500 cubic inches), the largest V-8 ever offered in a production passenger car. Created specifically and exclusively for the front-wheel-drive Eldorado, this new power plant harbors an ample reserve to operate the power assists one usually associates with a luxury car, while yielding a new kind of performance that will set the pace for personal cars for many years to come. The instant you feel the new 8.2 litre V-8 in action, you'll know that the Fleetwood Eldorado is, more than ever, the world's finest personal car. The moment you drive it, you'll know that Cadillac has left the status far behind!

See the spirited new 1970 Cadillacs at your authorized dealer's—they herald a decade of motoring excitement!

ERMA BOMBECK Watches Garden Go

Little Woman
Great Spender

EDMONTON (CP) — Gentlemen, what you have been telling your wife for so many years could be true — women don't know how to handle money.

A series of interviews with lawyers, investment dealers, accountants, trust company officials and insurance company workers back up your point that all the little woman does is spend the money you work so hard to earn.

Of course, the interview may have been a little biased because most of those interviewed were men.

However, one woman agreed that most females have little business sense.

"It's shocking that a wife takes so little interest in what her husband works so hard to put together," said Adlynn Hewitt, wife of a judge. "If they were both involved, she would play a much bigger part in his life and they would be much happier."

A stockbroker was even harsher in his criticisms.

He said: "Women possess wealth, receive income from it and enjoy its benefits, but the majority choose not to be bothered with investment or financial details — just spending money."

Mrs. Hewitt said a lack of interest in financial matters leaves many women in a vulnerable position and jeopardizes children should the husband die.

One woman was left a large settlement when her husband died and squandered it within a few years. The woman was on welfare when she died, said Mrs. Hewitt.

"They are very vulnerable during that first period of grief and often get a grandiose feeling of wealth. Through poor management and advice it can be lost within a year or two."

A partner in a firm of chartered accountants said that wives often are not prepared to handle financial matters after a husband's death.

A trust company branch manager said a sole-support mother is usually more capable than a widow of looking after a financial crisis.

He added that the single career girl as well as the sole-support mother and widow should become more conversant with financial matters.

Hot Dog

LONGMONT, Colo. (AP) — Fireman said no one was there but the family dog when they arrived to put out a fire at the home of Kirby Axtell. They said the dog bit four firemen before they could bring him under control.

Mad Pruner Whacking Loose

There is something about a pair of pruning shears that turns a mild, conservative husband into a raving madman.

If you watch closely you can almost see the physical features change. His ears become pointed, his teeth extend over his lower lip and his muscles fairly ripple with the excitement of levelling all the trees and bushes to the ground.

There is rumor that seven states are considering over-pruning as cause for divorce, second only to incompatibility and adultery. I hope our state is one of them.

No judge would dare deny me freedom after he heard the story of my privet hedge.

The first year I planted the privet hedge my husband knocked it down with a hose spray. The second year he inadvertently ran it down with his power mower. By the third year it had barely strength enough to grow leaves when he said "They look a little raggy. Maybe I should prune them."

"You won't prune them as severely as you did our maple tree, will you?"

"What maple tree?"

"That's what I mean."

"Women do not understand the principle of development," he explained. "If you want the hedge to become bushy, you must prune it to promote growth and fullness."

Whack!

"Murderer."

"Look," he said, "Didn't I prune your roses back last year and didn't they do better this summer?"

"Better than what? I had to re-pot them and give them penicillin shots."

Whack!

"Now you've done it," I said. "That side is lower than the other."

"So what's the problem. I'll just even it up a little."

"The last thing you evened up were those evergreens on either side of the garage."

"What evergreens?"

"That's what I mean."

Whack!

"Did anyone ever tell you you're vicious? I mean there has to be a sadistic streak in a man who destroys beautiful things . . ."

"For heaven's sakes will you keep your voice down. They'll grow back."

"Hah! Look around you

I rest my case.

Coffee-Party Kickoff Precedes Chest Drive

Community Chest time is almost here. The actual campaign starts Oct. 6 and will continue until the objective of $694,000 is reached.

Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. John Nicholson gave a coffee party at Government House Wednesday morning for area chairmen and captains. This has become an annual event — a sort of kickoff before the actual campaign.

"This is really a workhorse job," said Mrs. S. J. Cunliffe, residential chairman. "But the Community Chest is something I strongly believe in."

Mrs. Cunliffe also said that until you are into work like the Chest, you just can't imagine how great is the need.

I know what she meant when she referred to "so many headless families," and that is only one aspect.

DOROTHY WROTNOWSKI

But everyone who turns out to volunteer for the campaign does a big job.

Had to smile when Peter Darling, who is chairman of the campaign this year, told me that in his spare time he was director of the computer centre at the University of Victoria.

Cmdr. R. V. Henning, vice-chairman of the campaign, and Mrs. Henning, William Armstrong, a former campaign chairman, and Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. George Chatterton and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Wallace, and Mrs. Rodney Taylor, were among the many at the party.

Judy Nygaard, handling the publicity, thinks everyone is working harder this year because of the failure to meet the objective last year.

"It's a real challenge this time," says Judy.

Didn't even discuss Community Chest with Joyce Butler. She is up to ears in planning the fun fair at St. Margaret's School Sept. 27.

The fair will be something different this year. It will be held on the new school grounds out on Blenkinsop and everyone has the weather very much in mind. However, they have a large marquee ready for any event.

There will be a pet show at 11 in the morning and again at 2 in the afternoon. Mrs. G. R. Pearkes, an old girl of the school, will officiate at the opening and Gen. Pearkes will plant a tree. Maybe an apple tree, but nothing definite has been decided yet.

They are trying to get away from the bazaar idea with crocheted table mats, etc. There will be pony rides for children and the big deal is to buy the winning ticket on a trip to either Mexico or Hawaii anytime between January and March.

Also different will be the fashion show in the Empress ballroom Sept. 26.

John and Marilyn Brooks who own the Unicorn shops across Canada, are coming from Toronto for the show and they are bringing Doris with them.

Doris is a computing machine.

Marilyn Brooks believes a woman's destiny and the fashions she wears are governed by mathematics.

The inspiration for her fall collection is numerology, one of the oldest magical sciences in the world (forget about astrology). The Egyptians, the Eastern Magi, the Chinese sorcerer and the Greek philosopher all practised numerology.

Concealed in the letters of your name and in the date of your birth is a number whose vibrations rule your life.

That is the reason Doris will be here. You'll be able to feed your name and birth date into her to find out your type.

Marilyn takes the vibration of each number and matches it to fashion.

For instance, if you are a number one, you are a leader... ruthless, influential. You should wear sueded punctuated with steel grommets.

Should you be a number five, you are a daredevil, daring to wear outrageous fashions like a metal dress on free form shapes joined by two welders, (this dress will be shown).

A girl who is number seven is sensual and loves to wear panne velvet.

Tender-hearted girls like number sixes belong in old-fashioned feminine crochets by Aunt Mod.

Number eight girls love money. They luxuriate in chiffons, all the easier to lure wealthy men into parting with their riches.

The glorious number nine wears a dress constructed of house numbers which she mentally adds and subtracts to amuse herself.

There will be fashions for men as well, but so far I haven't heard whether their vibrations are influenced by numbers or not. Only Doris will be able to tell.

Martha Clarke, manager of the Victoria Unicorn is really excited about the show. It will start at 8:30 p.m. but the bar will be open at 8 o'clock. There will be a real party after the show — dancing and all for $2.

Message Loud and Clear

End of the Line Reached

Dear Ann Landers: While waiting for a bus on a morning in November, 1967, an attractive man asked me if I wanted a ride. I said yes, because it was raining very hard and I was late for work. He turned out to be a respectable family man and I was grateful for the lift.

Since that time he has picked me up on the same corner almost every morning. I figure he has saved me over $150 in bus fare.

Yesterday I was just about to get in his car when he handed me a note, slammed the door shut and left me standing there, literally dumbfounded. The note read: "Dear Passenger: I have enjoyed your conversation for a long time. I am afraid, however, that the animal in me is beginning to gnaw upon the man. Let I find myself weakening in the manner of others who have hit the foolish forties, I respectfully suggest that you get back on the bus." It was signed, "Your friendly chauffeur."

I was flabbergasted and still am. Do you think he was trying to tell me something? If so what was his message? — Donabelle.

Dear D.: I don't think we need to page Marshall McLuhan for this one. The message was — "You're beginning to look good to me, Kid, and I don't want to get involved, so please avail yourself of public transportation."

Dear Ann Landers: I married a man who comes from a closely knit family. By that I mean they tell each other everything. At first I thought the family closeness was beautiful, but now I see it is a neurotic dependence and largely infantile. My husband is the worst of the bunch.

Two weeks ago we were told the tragic news that my father-in-law has a terminal illness. My mother-in-law has already made it clear that she cannot live alone. Her oldest son's wife does not get along with her so she is safe. My other sister-in-law has a three-bedroom home and four children, so she is also safe. My husband and I have an extra bedroom.

Twice I have heard my husband say to his mother, "Don't worry, mamma, you won't have to live alone." If this means what I think it means it is the end of our marriage. I love my husband and we have two darling children but I could never tolerate his mother under this roof. Any suggestions? — Trouble Brewing.

Dear T.B.: Your mother-in-law needs kindness and emotional support. It is your husband's responsibility to help her through this difficult period in her life. His principal responsibility, however, is to his wife and children. Remind him that it is unfair to make promises that he will be unable to live up to later. And I urge you to be specific so there will be no misunderstanding.

Dear Ann Landers: If a man is divorced and remarried, is it in good taste for his ex-wife to come to his father's funeral, sit in the front row, cry louder than anybody, go to the cemetery, stand at the graveside with the family, then show up at her ex-sister-in-law's house and drink coffee and eat cake? Or should she go to the funeral parlor very early or very late to avoid the crowd and stay in the background, out of the limelight? — V.G.

Dear V.G.: It depends on whether or not she wants an audience.

A Lovelier You

Smooth Tresses In

By MARY SUE MILLER
You are one up on hair fashions if you've crossed off geometric cuts and styling fantasies. All the tortured teasing, screaming colors and trumped-up effects are gone. Doomed!

New do's are conceived in naturalness upon healthy, shining hair. The hair's the thing! Styles vary in length, but are always sleek. Short hair caps the head like a cologne of smooth, glossy feathers.

More often than not, shoulder lengths have a side part with full ends brushed under. Long hair falls like weighted satin and, for an unruffled life, wears a golden barette.

Occasionally hair is piled atop the head, but it goes up and ends up with the slickest possible finish. When waves or curls are used in any style they are soft and relaxed. Like nature's best effort!

Your other hair — a wig or wiglet — will follow the natural theme, too. Little "teakup" wigs are light as air and spring into soft waves with the flip of a comb. Long falls and braids are designed more than ever to mix, match and infiltrate with your own locks.

Hair fashions, like makeup and clothes, give you the feeling of being — naturally — a very pretty girl. Now I ask you: Who can object to your looking a natural beauty? Not you! Not the male!

Beef Prices Hold, Pork May Drop

OTTAWA (CP) — Beef prices are expected to show little change in October, the agriculture department reports in its food outlook for the month.

The detailed outlook shows: Pork: Prices may weaken somewhat with increased supplies. Eggs: Supplies will increase but prices will be seasonally high.

Poultry meat: Supplies of broiler chicken will be plentiful and prices may be lower. Turkeys of all weights will be in adequate supply at firm to possibly higher prices.

Apples: Heavy supplies with weakening prices.

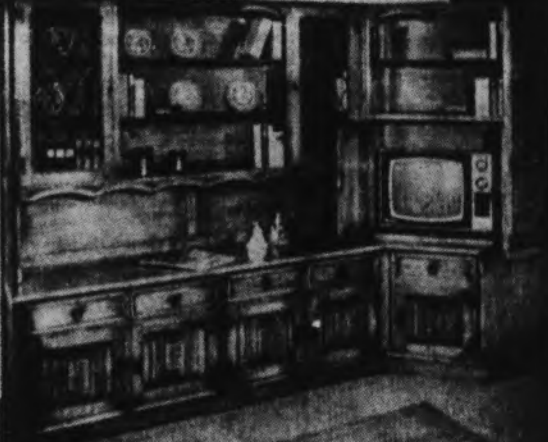

Pears: A large crop and lower prices are in prospect.

Table grapes and cranberries: Supplies will be heavy in the east, with lower prices. Western supplies will be lighter and prices strong.

Potatoes: Larger supplies are expected with weaker prices. Onions: Supplies lighter with stronger prices.

Trevana Wall Units
By Jaycee

TREVANA—The unit range, created to provide maximum storage and working surface in minimum floor space, is a modern phenomenon.

Trevana is designed to harmonize with all other Tudor furniture series. Other traditional features include wrought iron fittings and windowed doors of diamond glass panes set in lattices of lead.

Trevana units are free-standing and require no wall fixing. The 22 models, in five basic widths, are designed to suit all shapes and sizes of room. Pieces may be purchased singly or in any easily assembled combination.

Some Trevana pieces are illustrated here, but many more are possible. With its individual character, economic use of floor space and spacious storage, this range is an asset to any home—a perfect background to traditional or modern settings.

OF VITAL INTEREST TO ALL DENTURE WEARERS! An independent consumer study of denture cleaners just released confirms that ANSO DENT—manufactured by Pharmaco (Canada) Ltd.—is the leader. Yes, the study shows that Anso Dent is not only the most effective denture cleaner, but is more economical to use, too. It is incredible—but true—that Anso Dent deep cleans your dentures, removing all stains, odours and germs, in only 10 hours! Yes, as other denture wearers in the family, will, I know, enjoy the refreshing efficiency of Anso Dent—sold at retail stores everywhere.

They call it "THE NEW NECESSITY" and I think that best describes a wonderful new product—DEMURE FEMININE HYGIENE SPRAY DEODORANT. Necessary? Yes. Because today's active woman needs more than a bath and more than an underarm deodorant to stay fresh and confident all day. Demure is a light spray mist specially made to eliminate odour from the external vaginal area. Safe and gentle to use, its delicate fragrance vanishes soon after application, so you can be confident that the Demure deodorant formula is really working—not just covering up. Try Demure Feminine Hygiene Spray Deodorant and you'll know why it's called "The New Necessity".

Christian World Told of Role

Extending to the entire world the "obligations and responsibilities of domestic society" should be the top priority of political action of Christians, a former nun told more than 250 Catholic women Wednesday.

"If Christians have, as we continuously say they have, some special vocation — a salt, a leaven, a light set apart — may it not be to accept and create a moral world community to match the physical community which is already ours?" asked Catherine Cannon, one of the founders in Saskatchewan of the Sisters of Missionary Service.

"If this is our insight and our vocation, then to extend to the whole world the obligations and responsibilities of domestic society becomes the first priority of our political action," she said.

"The transfer of 1 per cent of the gross national product, revised trading patterns, greater liquidity, a world strategy for development, become simply our eager response to the Lord's command to feed the hungry and find God himself in the least of these little ones," Miss Cannon said.

She conducted a workshop on communications at the morning session of the 49th annual Catholic Women's League of Canada Convention at the Empress Hotel.

Miss Cannon, a nun for 17 years, left the convent in June of this year to set up a Christian renewal centre in London, Ont. She is a native of Saskatchewan, where she taught school for several years, and she served in the RCAF for three years. She has a B.A. from the University of Saskatchewan and an M.A. in history from Toronto University.

Accelerated spending during wartime has speeded up the "industrial economies" of such countries as the United States and Canada, Japan, Korea, Thailand, Formosa and Turkey, she said.

"Now all this is no pean of praise for we need its by-products. The point is not that such funds are well spent, but that spending funds on that scale does, in fact, stimulate growth," Miss Cannon said.

"Money for tractors stimulates an economy fully as much as money for tanks. Money spent building a town is no less effective than money spent destroying it. In short, a world spending an extra $150,000,000,000 on its own, economic growth and education, on the productivity of its farms and the beauty of its cities, would have an infinitely higher chance of basic security and survival, than the missile ridden, rocket-threatened, doom-laden world we know today," she said.

"I'm sure that we all see intellectually that our domestic reforms must be carried on at the international level. There is no economic reason why they can't be.

"There is only one reason why they won't be: we simply do not think about our world as a community," Miss Cannon told the women.

"No doubt we cannot hope to persuade in a day either ourselves or our fellow citizens to break out of our national restrictions. But we can start.

"It takes only a dedicated, organized minority to worry legislators, to swing elections, to work in and out of season to convince ourselves and others that the world's miseries come before our own comforts and before a stupid, sterile defence program."

She suggested that such pressure could start to repeal "our present slaveries — malnutrition, sickness, ignorance, unemployment, the death of children, the despair of breadwinners, the deserted misery of old age."

"The only defeat is not to try, so let us mobilize ourselves to recreate, and not destroy, the face of the earth," Miss Cannon said.

Miss Cannon spoke about the problems of world poverty and the Christian conscience and used examples from the writings of Barbara Ward.

Group discussions followed her talk, and the primary recommendation of CWL members was to start by furthering the education of the people of developing countries.

'Adopt Spiritual Poverty'

Catholic Women Hear What Makes Leaders

Spiritual poverty is a quality Christians should seek to develop at the same time they work to eradicate material poverty, Sister Lina Gaudette of Edmonton told members of the Catholic Women's League in a workshop Wednesday.

Material poverty is easy to recognize — it hurts, it's not very attractive, so people want to get it out of the way and try to forget about it, Sister Lina said.

But spiritual poverty is a "credit to Christian maturity." Willingness to adopt spiritual poverty is a credit to the Christian personality, she said.

Sister Lina, a co-ordinator of adult education in Edmonton, spoke at the 49th annual CWL convention in the Empress.

The more a person has received in health, intelligence and personality, the more she has to give, Sister Lina said. "Development is ongoing," and it keeps a balance in the personality.

Spiritual poverty and humility are necessary attributes for leadership, but leaders also must learn to keep their feet on the ground, she said. "We need to start from where we are."

It is possible that "you will soon face the responsibility of leadership — what we're all afraid of," she told the women.

"We must educate some of their people in our universities, so they can go to other countries to help in development," one group suggested.

The developing countries should be taught about handling money, and should be able to use credit unions and co-operative stores. This way they could learn to spend and save money.

Another group also said education was the first step. The CWL brings students to Canada, and must then make sure the students go back to their countries and not stay here.

They suggested a certain sum should be set aside by the federal government from the national income each year to be sent to the developing countries.

The number of agencies involved in helping the poorer nations makes for overlapping and "a lot of waste on our part." Combining the agencies would provide better use of funds.

All work done should be out of the "Christian motive — love," members said.

Passengers

CNR Still Loser

HALIFAX (CP) — Norman MacMillan, president of the Canadian National Railways, said Wednesday the company's railway passenger service continues to operate at a deficit.

MacMillan told a news conference that operating expenses and revenues are not balancing.

"With operating expenses continuing to increase, and wages on the upswing, it's difficult to keep costs and revenues at a balance."

VALIANT TRY
"We're still making a valiant effort on our railway passenger service, although it still remains a money-losing proposition."

He said that a large part of the expense comes from maintaining idle equipment.

MacMillan said a land-bridge system, linking Europe with Asia through Canada, would be extremely beneficial to Halifax and Saint John, (N.B.) as points of origin in the system.

"GREAT IDEA"
"It is a great idea," he said, "should Canada become the vehicle for this concept."

He said he was uncertain if the concept of the land-bridge system would be realized "in our time."

MacMillan thought that Canada's chance in providing the link is "very good." He said that where the United States has a two-railway system, split at Chicago, "Canada is a one-line operation."

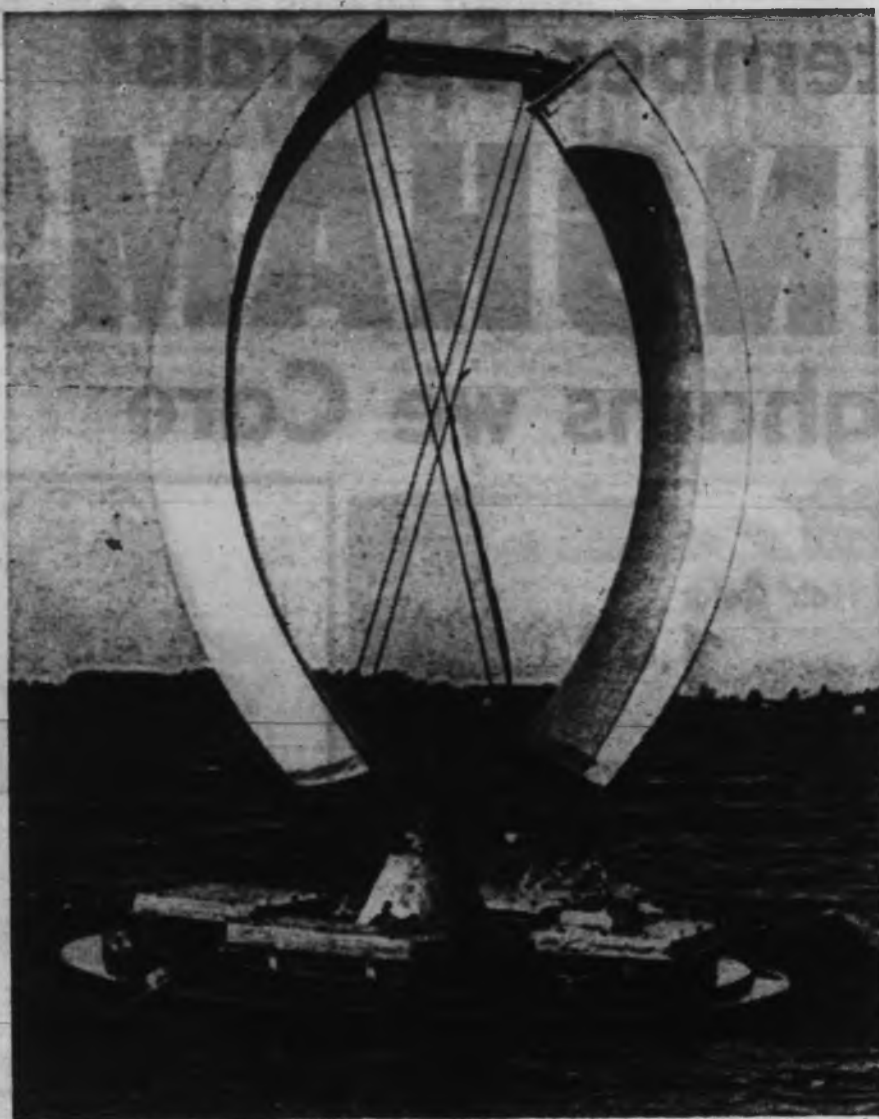

Booths Aid Projects

Local community organizations wishing to raise funds for various projects can get free tables and mall space at the Hillside Shopping Centre from Oct. 14 to 18 to sell flowers, paintings, cookies, and other miscellaneous items.

Hillside manager Dick Lawson emphasized that "there is absolutely no charge for this service. The participating organizations keep the entire funds raised by their sales. Hillside will advertise the event to the public as a Community Bazaar."

Space will be booked on a first-come, first-served basis. Inquiries are being handled by Mrs. V. Hughes, at the Hillside administration office, 384-8823.

Unpaid Bill Cuts Air Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An electronic landing aid at Washington's busy national airport was shut off because the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration forgot to pay its electric bill, an Air Traffic Controllers Union official claimed Tuesday.

Kenneth Lynons, president of the National Association of Government Employees, said a localizer directional aid used by planes during a landing approach failed suddenly Monday.

Airport officials called the Virginia Electric Power Company to complain about what they thought was an electrical breakdown in the navigation aid which is not crucial for a pilot's landing approach.

Lynons said a power company official denied there was anything wrong with the aid. He pointed out that the FAA was advised its electric bill for the circuit was overdue. When the 90-day warning period was over, and the bill still unpaid, the power company shut off the electricity, the airport officials were told, Lynons said.

The FAA admitted the aid was out of service from noon Monday until 4 p.m. Tuesday.

A spokesman said the incident still was being investigated, but said the shut down was due "to some type of administrative error."

Canadian Labor Head:

Winter Works Needed To Cut Unemployment

OTTAWA (CP) — Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, called Wednesday for the re-introduction of a carefully planned and highly flexible winter works program to help reduce unemployment in Canada.

In a statement issued after a meeting of the 1,650,000-member labor organization's executive council, MacDonald said such a program is necessary "if a satisfactory level of employment is to be maintained in winter months."

The federal winter works program was dropped by Prime Minister Trudeau in August, 1968, as part of reductions in government spending and because, in the government's view, projects in the program were becoming less useful and more of the make-work type.

The program, begun by the former Conservative government of John Diefenbaker, paid half the payroll costs of almost any capital project undertaken by a municipality in winter.

NDP Proposes White Paper on Tax Reform

Regional Economic Policies Blasted

OTTAWA (CP) — In papers prepared for the NDP national convention next month, the party's national research director blasts present regional economic policies and proposes his own white paper on tax reform.

Mare Ellen, an economist with the party's federal caucus, says in one of his two papers released Wednesday that regional development policies "have twisted and turned and have been completely unco-ordinated with agencies and boards coming and going."

The papers will be presented for discussion at the convention in Winnipeg Oct. 25-31.

He holds out some hope for the new regional economic expansion department "but it is still not certain how it will integrate its various functions or where it will place its emphasis."

His suggestions:

- The allotment of more federal resources to areas needing regional development.
- Extensive public involvement in planning regional development programs, as opposed to the past tradition of providing juicy carrots to private enterprise to perform this function.
- More research into problems of regional disparities and inter-regional relationships and the determinants of growth.

In proposing his own white paper on tax reform, Ellen says society "must afford more public goods if we are going to meet the problems of urbanization... but we can afford them only if we finance them by fair-share taxes based on ability to pay."

To this end he proposes these tax-system principles:

- Equity, as expressed by the Carter commission report on tax reform, must permeate the system. People in like circumstances should be treated alike.
- A comprehensive tax base must be established with no type of income excluded.
- The tax system should be regarded as a major instrument in planning economic growth and assuring full employment.

Pre-Election Ad Extras 'Deterioration of Ethics'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Allocation of an extra $50,000 to a government department to pay for advertisements placed during the election campaign represents a deterioration of ethics in government, Liberal leader Dr. Pat McGeer said Wednesday.

"I hope this is not something that is going to be continued," Mr. McGeer said in an interview.

Industry Minister Waldo Sillings said Monday that $50,000 had been authorized by the cabinet to pay for advertisements about pollution placed by his department at the time of the provincial election campaign.

The amount, over and above $5,000 already budgeted for publicity for the department, was described in the cabinet order as being "urgently and immediately required for the public good."

"I would hope that the minister of industrial development would have a more imaginative approach to industrial development in the future than advertising in order to keep the government in power."

Caucus

Berger Fate Topic Friday

The New Democratic Party caucus will meet Friday evening in Vancouver to discuss the question of House leadership following the defeat of party leader Tom Berger at the polls Aug. 27.

An announcement Wednesday simply stated the caucus would meet at 7 p.m. on that date in the NDP headquarters at 517 East Broadway to discuss this main topic.

Since the party's provincial executive is scheduled to meet in Vancouver on Saturday, however, it isn't expected there will be any announcement following Friday's meeting.

After meeting with the 12 MLAs who were elected last month, Mr. Berger will tell the party executive whether he plans to resign as party leader or seek a new seat in the legislature in a byelection.

If he steps down, as seems likely, the executive will have to decide whether to call a special leadership convention this fall or continue, possibly under Deputy Leader Alex Macdonald, until a regular convention is held next April.

Mr. Berger had been provincial leader for only five months when he lost his seat, together with that of his running mate Dr. Ray Parkinson, in a Social Credit sweep of the Vancouver Burrard riding Aug. 27.

The NDP dropped from 17 seats to 12 with the results of an official recount awaited in one of these seats — Kootenay, where New Democrat Leo Nimick leads by 12 votes — The final result will be known early in October.

Social Credit got 38 seats and the Liberals have five, a loss of one.

Health Chiefs:

Optometry Needs Coverage

HALIFAX (CP) — Provincial health ministers want the cost of eye examinations by optometrists included among the benefits of medical-care insurance.

At the end of their fifth annual conference here Wednesday, the health ministers asked chairman R. A. Donahoe, Nova Scotia's health minister, to make this recommendation to the federal health minister.

Donahoe said that, following the two-day conference, which was closed to the news media, many people who never go to ophthalmologists (eye doctors), use the services of optometrists, non-medical persons who measure for eye refractions.

At present, medical-care insurance pays the fees for the services of eye doctors but not those of optometrists.

Donahoe said the ministers expressed regret the federal government is withdrawing from shared cost programs in the health field.

The federal government will discontinue help in paying hospital construction costs at the end of April and is phasing out health grants over three years, beginning this year.

The conference considered the desirability of utilization fees in medical-care insurance plans whereby the patient pays the first dollar or two of a physician's fee.

Saskatchewan is the only province which uses the utilization fee at present.

Next year's annual conference will be held in Alberta.

Lynch Law Aired In School Case

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (UPI) — Three teenagers were indicted Wednesday under a rarely used charge of lynching in the second degree.

The three were accused of beating their high school biology teacher when he told them to take their hats off and button their shirts in the classroom.

Indicted were Donald Ray Higgins, Charles Young and Robert Mack, all 17. Mack turned 17 over the weekend.

becoming eligible for indictment as an adult. Each was held in the Wichita county jail under $2,500 bond.

Lynching in the second degree was put on the state law books in 1949 in an effort to curb mob action. It is punishable by from one to 10 years in prison.

The teacher, C. H. Dodby, who instructs at Wichita Falls Hirschi High School, was not seriously injured in the attack.

Three other youths implicated in the incident are juveniles, and their cases were being handled in the juvenile courts.

Autograph Antics Enlivened

One Touch—True Love

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Singer Tiny Tim said Wednesday he found teenage love at John Wanamakers department store in Philadelphia and he is going to be married.

The singer with shoulder-length hair, performing at the Trenton State Fair, said his bride-to-be is 17-year-old Vicki Budinger, a recent high school graduate from nearby Haddonfield.

Tiny Tim, whose vocal antics range from trembling soprano to rolling baritone, said he met Miss Budinger while signing autographs at the store.

"I reached my hand out for a piece of paper, and instead she put her hand in mine. One touch and I knew it was true love," he said.

Tiny Tim, who refused to divulge his exact age but is in his mid-40's, said he did not think the difference in years mattered because "I'm 16 years old at heart."

Mrs. Allan Budinger, mother of the bride-to-be, said she and her husband, an artist who also sells art supplies, were "elated" over the planned marriage.

"We're extremely fond of him," she said, in a telephone interview.

Mrs. Budinger said no date has been set for the marriage. "We spent a week together in Atlantic City with him when he was appearing there this summer and we're just elated," she said.

CAPE TOWN (Reuters) — Four men were killed and several others injured when 80 Japanese and Chinese seamen clashed in a street fight in this South African city with knives and other weapons.

'Young Punk' Escapes

Senator, 70, Hit First

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "I just hauled off and popped him one," said Len Jordan. "I figured I was slipping when he got up again."

Jordan is 70 and a Republican senator from Idaho. He was describing how he reacted when he was accosted Wednesday morning in the elevator of his apartment building by a "young punk" carrying a blackjack.

Jordan declined to claim any heroism on his part. He said he would have been "glad to part with anything of value," but that he fought back because he was frightened for his life.

Jordan said the youth, whose right hand was in his pocket as if he had a gun, punched the fourth floor elevator button after slipping into the elevator on the fifth and said: "This is where we get off."

That is when Jordan knocked the youth down with one surprise punch. When the assailant got up, Jordan said, he pulled a blackjack out of his pocket and hit the senator a glancing blow on the head.

The struggling men spilled out of the elevator into the fourth floor corridor in front of the apartment of Maryland Democratic Senator Joseph Tydings, who looked out to see what the commotion was.

Jordan said Tydings, who is 41, came to his assistance but that assailant slipped away and ran down the stairs.

Jordan said the blow on his head had not injured him. "My knuckles are a bit bruised," he said.

The management and staff at the "Mary" hope you all had an enjoyable summer and we look forward to serving you again in the near future.

Alcohol Clinics 'Not Too Good'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia psychologist, research consultant to the British Columbia Alcoholism Foundation said Wednesday that most of the alcoholic treatment programs in B.C. don't seem to do much good.

Dr. Thomas Storm, reporting on a study of outpatient clinics run by the foundation, said the apparent success of alcoholism clinics must be attributed in large part to the patients themselves.

"I would suggest that recovery or improvement when it comes is a spontaneous process that is part of the alcoholic problem itself."

"I qualify this by saying that improvement (in the clinic) occurs in a reasonably high percentage, but the evidence that this is the clinic's is pretty poor."

Earlier Planning Next Year

Encore for Victoria Fair

By BILL THOMAS
The highly successful Victoria Fair will be back again next summer but it will need greater community support. The announcement that the summer season of music and theatre would continue was made Wednesday by University of Victoria president Bruce Partridge.

"We were delighted by the community's response over the past two months, at the box office and in many other areas," Dr. Partridge said.

"The board recognized that the 1969 season would involve a deficit and was prepared to meet this in the trial year.

READY TO INVEST
"It is ready to invest a reasonable amount in 1970, as it does for activities in the fine arts each summer season. The project can continue, though, only if there is adequate financial support from the community."

A state member of the Roten gallery is travelling with the show and will be available to answer questions.

"I have decided that I will not direct the first play of the university season this year, as I want to spend time exploring the community's theatre resources. We have been able to use a great many local people, and I would like to involve even more people next year. We want to take advantage of as many community talents as possible."

PLAY MEETING
"In the next week I hope to have a meeting to decide what plays we will offer. As we did with Tartuffe, we hope to show one of the festival plays in preview next spring."

Dean Garvie said he was pleased with the audience the fair had attracted. "We have everything from blagues to bigness at the plays, and people attended from all areas of the community. Looking back at the three plays, Hamlet built its audience, Merchant of Venice was steady, and Tartuffe was a winner all the way."

"We have started planning our program and we certainly won't have the problem of last time when we tried to plan so much at such short notice."

Baltimore Gallery Offers $5 to $1,000 in Artwork

More than 1,000 original graphics by classic and contemporary artists will be offered for sale at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria today and Friday.

Prices for the works range from $5 to $1,000, with most priced under $100. The collection, presented by the Ferdinand and Roten Galleries of Baltimore, contains works by Picasso, Chagall, Miro, Goya, Renoir and Rouault.

A state member of the Roten gallery is travelling with the show and will be available to answer questions.

THE BUTCHART GARDENS... RESTAURANT
FASCINATING GIFT AND SEED SHOP... MAGNIFICENT SHOW GREENHOUSE, GORGEOUS FUCHSIA ARBOUR... SPECTACULAR ROSS FOUNTAINS. Open every day of the year from 9 a.m. (now 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.). Ever changing, always lovely. Planned and frequently replanted so that each day brings fresh blooms. September is very special in these 30 acres of heavenly beauty. Surrounded by sheltering hills, the gardens are usually warm and balmy. Should it turn cloudy, don't worry. Showers only serve to enhance the beauty of these gardens and there's free use of umbrellas for everyone. Developed from an abandoned cement quarry to become one of the world's most admired showplaces, the Butchart Gardens are actually six gardens in one—fabulous Sunken Garden, Lake Garden featuring the spectacular "Ross Fountains", English Rose, stately Italian, quaint Japanese and the great Stage Show Garden. Plus the magnificent show greenhouse, gorgeous fuchsia arbour and the fascinating gift and seed shop. BUTCHART GARDENS RESTAURANT. Take time out during your visit to enjoy a delicious lunch or afternoon tea. Served every day, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. In the flower restaurant located in the original family residence overlooking the gardens. Continuous coffee bar service 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. every day.

BUTCHART GARDENS GIFT SHOP. A "must" before you leave. Purchase gifts, postcards, slides, Butchart Garden seeds of your favorite flowers, etc. PLAN TO VISIT THE GARDENS BEFORE ANOTHER DAY GOES BY. Share your pleasure, invite a neighbour, out-of-town guest.

FIDDLING AMOUNT
"It would be a tragedy if the community allowed an opportunity like this to slip away for what is a piddling amount of money."

"This is about 20 per cent of our total budget. It seems a reasonable goal, and we are presenting it to business groups who have already agreed that the whole region benefits from the fair's existence."

The Victoria Fair directors will make appeals to the Canada Council and to the Provincial Cultural Fund, and an appeal for guarantors is being considered.

IN TWO YEARS
Dr. Ralph Allen, who directed the theatre program, said, "It is quite possible that Victoria Fair could pay its own way in another two years. We don't plan a longer season, though it is possible that the music program will be expanded. We need three plays to make it a festival, but any more would tax our resources."

U.K. Wins Delay In Ulster Debate

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Britain won delay Wednesday in her fight to keep the controversial and potentially explosive situation in Northern Ireland off the agenda of the United Nations General Assembly.

The assembly's 25-member steering committee decided to postpone consideration of the matter pending a reply by the Republic of Ireland to an appeal from Britain's Lord Caradon for withdrawal of the proposed item.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union supported UN debate on Northern Ireland, saying that the Belfast government discriminated against the overwhelming majority of the "oppressed" people of Ulster.

Many members of the committee appeared uncomfortable with the application of the Irish Republic, which had failed to have Ulster debated in the Security Council, for General Assembly debate.

Caradon had made a strong argument that the matter was an internal affair of Britain and thus out of the jurisdiction of the UN. But Ireland has argued that it is a matter of human rights which is an area of UN concern.

ACTION TAKEN CITED

Caradon said that Britain has taken positive and urgent action to deal with a situation of difficulty and delicacy. British troops, signed to keep Protestants and Roman Catholics from battling each other, had been welcomed by both sides and reforms to overcome past civil rights deficiencies were being pushed with urgency.

In the circumstances it would do great harm to press for a discussion that could inflame controversy in the UN.

External Affairs Minister Patrick J. Hillery of the Irish Republic said reforms have been promised in Northern Ireland for 50 years but little has been done.

for withdrawal of the item.

In reply to Caradon's appeal Hillery said he could not immediately determine the consequences of such a move. Nigeria then proposed a postponement and the matter probably will be brought up today.

The Communist countries were silent when the question of admittance of Red China was approved.

Court Defied

Station Holds Out St. Leonard Tapes

MONTREAL (CP) — Radio station CKLM Wednesday refused to comply with a court order that it turn over tapes of interviews taken during last week's school language riot in suburban St. Leonard.

The order was presented by two police officers who said they were seeking evidence against persons arrested during the violent demonstration after the Riot Act was read.

Guy D'Arcy, director-general of CKLM, told a news conference he refused the request "because in my soul and conscience, I consider it a dangerous precedent for collective freedom to submit... to an order inadmissible in a free nation."

Other Montreal television and radio stations put up little opposition to the order. The Canadian Radio-Television Commission requires stations to keep tapes of all broadcast films and interviews.

Nearly 40 persons, including Raymond Lemieux, leader of a group advocating French-only instruction in the east-end suburb, have been arraigned on charges stemming from the riot. All but one have been released on bail.

Italy, France, Argentina

Labor Troubles Spread

From AP — Labor union strikes gripped France, Italy and Argentina Wednesday, crippling public services and creating deep concern in the councils of governments.

In Italy, doctors called a country-wide strike for next week as more than 1,000,000 construction, chemical and cement workers tied up their industries and general strikes continued in scattered cities.

Before the weekend, 2,500,000 Italian workers will have been on strike. They are among 4,500,000 workers whose contracts come up for renegotiation this fall.

In France, a walkout by 32,000 train crew members paralysed national rail traffic for the seventh day. Strike committees voted acceptance of a management package to reorganize working hours and union leaders appealed to their followers to return to work today.

Brother Held

CAMPBELL RIVER — Andrew Howard High, 22, of Nanaimo, charged with manslaughter in connection with the shooting death of his brother, Roger John High, 23, in a hunting expedition Friday night, appeared before Judge R. L. Haig-Brown in Courtenay Provincial Court Tuesday. He was remanded to Oakalla for 14 days.

Subway and bus workers brought public transport system in Paris to a near standstill. They, too, are demanding a reorganization of the work week that will give them consecutive days off after six days of work.

In Argentina, strikes and rioting crippled Rosario, the nation's second-largest city, and Cordoba, the third-largest. The violence grew out of a national railway strike. A woman was killed by a stray bullet fired during a fight between police and snipers Tuesday night and two youths were killed Wednesday night in riots in Rosario.

Railway union leaders were being sought by police for defying a government order to get the workers back on their jobs.

Pre-Invasion Activities

Dubcek Asked to Give Explanation to Public

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Staunch pro-Moscow Communists Wednesday demanded a public explanation by former party leader Alexander Dubcek of his political activities in the days before Warsaw Pact troops invaded the country in 1968.

In an open letter read over Prague Radio, members of the Czechoslovak-Soviet Friendship Society also demanded statements from prominent reformers Josef Smrkovsky and Cestmir Cisar.

Dubcek has been accused of ignoring Soviet warnings that unrestrained pro-Western radicals in Czechoslovakia were endangering socialism within the country and thus in the whole Communist camp.

Some conservatives have accused Smrkovsky of organizing the anti-Soviet demonstrations in March following a victory celebration when Czechoslovakia beat Russia in the Stockholm world hockey championships.

Turning to Cisar, now president of the Czech Republic national council and a former party secretary, the letter described him as among the ideological leaders of the progressive movement.

The letter was the latest in a series of conservative demands for explanations and public confessions by the leaders of the 1968 liberalization drive. Hardliners have also demanded their removal from party life.

Introducing automobiles to light your fire.

GS455 Sport Coupe.

Electra 225 Sport Coupe.

From Buick for 1970. The GS. The GS455. The Skylark Custom Sport Coupe.

They're what you've been asking for, right? Automobiles to really light your fire.

And plenty of performance.

The GS455 (up top), equipped with the Stage 1 performance package, has a big 455 cubic-inch 360 horsepower engine with real hood-scoops. Four-on-the-floor or a three-speed automatic transmission is available. It's up to you.

All these light-your-fire Buicks simply drip with luxury. Carpeting front and rear.

Rich, lush fabrics and vinyls. Instrument panels a spaceship would be proud of.

Altogether lots of features to excite you.

It has an improved three-speed automatic transmission. A new cooling system that should never overheat. A new radio antenna hidden in the windshield. A new, more powerful engine. And AccuDrive—the suspension that gives all big Buicks such a superb ride.

Here's the same kind of traditional Buick quality you'll find in all 1970 Buicks.

In Wildcat. LeSabre. Riviera.

It's this quality that's made the Buick name mean so much.

The kind of quality that keeps Buick owners buying Buicks time after time after time. We call it building with product integrity. Maybe it puts us out of step with the times. But we want to be something you can believe in. And we hope we always will be.

Murder of Motel Keeper

Couple Waiting for Trial Captured After 12 Hours

PERCE, Que. (CP) — The jail escape of a French-born couple, awaiting trial for the non-capital murder of a Perce woman motel keeper, ended after 12 hours with their capture by provincial police Wednesday.

Jacques Mesrine, 32, and Jeanne Schneider, 28, of Paris, were found by three policemen after they lit a small fire in woods a few miles from the jail where they made their escape Tuesday night.

Police said they escaped about 10:30 p.m. and were recaptured about 10:40 a.m. Wednesday.

NO RESISTANCE

Police said Mesrine and his wife offered no resistance and were taken back to the Perce jail. Officials had still to decide where they should be held to await trial for the slaying of Evelyn Lebonheur, 58, a Perce motel keeper found strangled June 30.

The couple escaped from prison only a few hours after they were committed to stand trial for the slaying of the motel keeper.

ONLY GUARD

The escape began, police said, when Mesrine coaxed the only guard on duty into his cell by claiming the toilet was blocked. Once the guard was in the cell, Mesrine overpowered him and took his keys.

Schneider

Mesrine

After locking the guard in the cell, Mesrine went to a women's section of the building, overpowered a matron and freed Miss Schneider.

Police began a search of the woods early Wednesday.

The couple also faces trial in St. Hyacinthe, Que., for the kidnapping of millionaire Georges Desautels, 55, of St. Hyacinthe, Que., June 23.

Desautels, 55, told police he escaped from a Montreal apartment after being held captive for one day. He reached police before a $200,000 ransom demanded from his brother could be paid.

The Mesrines were arrested in mid-July in Texarkana, Ark., on a charge of violating U.S. immigration laws. A provincial police officer escorted them back to Canada.

Another Paris man is in jail awaiting trial on the kidnapping charge.

Jury Gets to Bottom of the Case

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Municipal Judge Earl Warren, Jr., presided from a bar stool in the Pink Pussycat tavern Wednesday while a shapely go-go girl danced in the nude except for golden sandals and a silver ring.

After the son of retired Chief Justice Earl Warren gavelled the unusual courtroom into order, 22-year-old Susanne Marie Haines danced on a red-lighted six-foot-square stage.

Warren moved the trial of Miss Haines and Sheila Brendenson, both charged with indecent exposure and lewd and obscene conduct, from his wood-paneled courtroom to the beer bar at the request of the defense attorney. He wanted to give the jury of 10 men and two women a close-up look at the performances that got the girls arrested.

Warren sat about 10 feet from the stage, his chin propped in his hand. He occasionally sipped water from a beer glass. His face was expressionless throughout the 45-minute performance.

The jurors also clutched their water-filled beer glasses and smoked heavily while the dance was under way. Fifty bar patrons watched the performance and imbibed soft drinks. Warren had forbidden beer drinking during the court session.

Red-haired Miss Haines chose Kansas City, Israelites, Revolution and Foxy Lady for her bottomless numbers. She also danced to four numbers topless, wearing red pasties laced with a dainty fringe.

The patrons loudly applauded after each number, despite Warren's warning regular judicial decorum would be observed. But he never gavelled anyone out of order.

Asked after the performance if he thought the jury had been given proper evidence, Warren responded:

"It got a better look than we could have given them with just plain oral testimony or by trying to recreate some of these things in the courtroom."

He deferred his decision in the case.

When she completed her act, Miss Haines said she was "more nervous" performing the charges against two bottomless bottomless dance for the jury dancers in a similar case on and judge than she had been on grounds the U.S. Constitution the nights she was arrested. protected their freedom of Warren recently dismissed expression.

Brothers Accuse Each Other

Actor's Killers Convicted

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two young brothers, who each accused the other of slaying Ramon Navarro, were both convicted Wednesday of first degree murder for the brutal beating of the silent screen lover.

After deliberating a total of eight hours since receiving the case Monday evening, the seven-man, five-woman jury returned the verdict against Paul Ferguson, 23, and Thomas Ferguson, 18.

Neither brother showed any emotion as the verdicts were read but a few minutes later they looked at a spectator, lifted their eyebrows and shrugged their shoulders in resignation.

The star of such silent film classics as Ben Hur, Mata Hari and Student Prince, was found dead, his nude body bound hand and foot, in his $150,000 Spanish-style home Oct. 30. An autopsy disclosed he had choked to death on his own blood after he had been savagely beaten about the head and shoulders with a cane.

The younger Ferguson brother will receive an automatic sentence of life imprisonment because he was 17 and considered a juvenile at the time the crime was committed.

His brother, however, may be sentenced either to life or to death in the gas chamber, and the same jury that convicted him must now decide the penalty for the transient house painter.

During the trial each brother took the witness stand and accused the other of murdering the 33-year-old actor.

The younger brother said he first agreed to say he killed Navarro, because his age at the time of the murder made him ineligible for the death sentence. But he said he changed his mind after he learned Navarro had been beaten with a cane.

Thomas said he was talking on the phone to a girlfriend in Chicago while Paul beat the actor.

The prosecution contended the brothers had gone to the home because they mistakenly thought the actor had hidden $5,000 in his home and that they tortured him to try to make him reveal the hiding place.

Marines Now Wear Shorts

Cuffs Aided Mirror 'Stimulation'

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Recruits in a special disciplinary unit at the U.S. Marine Corps recruit depot at San Diego were handcuffed to a mirror and forced to look at themselves for hours to "stimulate an attitude change," the corps confirmed Wednesday.

A spokesman said the handcuffing was ended last month after a review by the regimental commander.

The disclosure cleared up the charge that marines in the brig at Camp Pendleton, Calif., were forced to stand naked in a "room of mirrors."

The charge was made by the magazine, The Nation, which also accused guards of brutality to prisoners in the brig. The charges led to the sending of two Congressional investigators to Camp Pendleton.

Rev. Alban Rosen of San Diego disclosed that he was the source of some of The Nation information and said the reference to the "room of mirrors" was an error.

The spokesman said that during the past 12 months, 21 privates in a special correctional platoon were ordered to undergo the mirror treatment. Five had to be handcuffed to the 70-inch high, 26-inch wide single mirror in a position that forced them to look into the glass.

They were handcuffed to a protective wire covering placed there to prevent recruits from kicking out the mirror.

"I could find no case where they had been forced to stand in front of the mirror naked," he said.

Recruits have stood at the mirror for as long as two days, spending about eight hours in that position. He said those given that discipline were men who freely admit their goal is to get a discharge in any way possible.

The spokesman said recruits in the unit still occasionally are ordered to stand before the mirror for hours at a time "for self appraisal and to stimulate an attitude change." He said they were no longer handcuffed and are dressed at least in shorts, T-shirt and shoes.

Red, Bronko Top Voting

NEW YORK (AP)—Harold "Red" Grange is the only unanimous choice on the modern all-time college football team named today by the Football Writers of America.

Grange ran to college football immortality from 1923 through 1925 as Illinois Galloping Ghost.

Just one vote shy of unanimous selection was Bronislaw "Bronko" Nagurski who starred at tackle for Minnesota from 1927-30.

Double Honor

PHOENIX (AP)—Eugene Emmerald second-baseman Denny Doyle has been named both the most valuable player and rookie of the year in the Pacific Coast Baseball League. Doyle came to Eugene from class AA Reading, Pa., and batted .310. He led the league in hits with 182 and total bases with 257.

English Friend Foiled Execution

Grateful Gestures Continue After Ho's Death

HONG KONG (Reuters) — His lawyer was Francis Loseby. The day after Ho Chi Minh died in Hanoi, the North Vietnamese mission here telephoned an elderly Hong Kong English woman to break the news.

The telephone call was perhaps the last in a series of grateful gestures over the years from both Ho Chi Minh and North Vietnam to the family of the late Frank Loseby, who saved Ho from certain execution nearly 40 years ago.

Mrs. Loseby, whose husband died two years ago, knew the North Vietnamese president as Sung Man Cho, a lover of children and flowers and a hater of the French who controlled his native Indo-China.

Sung Man Cho, to call Ho by just one of his countless revolutionary pseudonyms, arrived in Hong Kong in 1930, undersense of death by the French, to head a conference of Vietnamese political parties that united to form the Communist party of Indo-China.

Hong Kong authorities arrested him in 1931 for engaging in Communist propaganda.

Ho

During the 10 months Ho spent in Hong Kong after his arrest, he was befriended by the Loseby family. The lawyer and his wife took their baby daughter, Patricia, every Saturday afternoon to see the serious dark-haired young man in custody in a special ward of the government civil hospital.

"We appreciated the chance to talk to somebody intelligent," Rosa Loseby said recently. "His English was very good."

To throw French agents off Ho's trail, the Losebys started a rumor that he had died of tuberculosis. After he was freed from jail, they hid him in a house in the rural New Territories.

"We used to take him for car rides around Kowloon after dark. And he used to come to our house for dinner," said Mrs. Loseby, now in her late 60s.

In early 1932, the Losebys tried to smuggle Ho out of Hong Kong. He grew the wispy beard that later became his most memorable feature, dressed in blue silk and, disguised as a Chinese professor, boarded a ship for Singapore. In Singapore he was arrested and sent back to Hong Kong.

A few weeks later, the young couple hid Sung Man Cho aboard a sampan and a clerk from the family law firm ferried him out to a ship which took him to China.

The Loseby family lost all touch with Ho until 1957, when they received a photograph signed by him. "Since then he's sent lots of things to us, and when my husband died two years ago we received the most enormous wreath," Mrs. Loseby said.

From her handbag, Mrs. Loseby produced one of the New Year cards the president sent them every year.

In 1959 the family received a personal invitation from Ho to visit Hanoi. In January, 1960, accompanied by their daughter, they travelled via Canton to the North Vietnamese capital.

The Losebys were met by Ho on arrival and stayed in a big house in suburban Hanoi. Ho wanted to give it to them, but they declined. "They were all very poor, but it was a lovely house," she said.

Municipal Bond Plan Unveiled by Campbell

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Wednesday told municipal leaders they will have to increase their responsibilities and change their concept of municipal government if they want to be in control of British Columbia's environment in the next decade.

At the same time, speaking to the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention here, he outlined plans for a financing authority to sell municipal bonds under control of regional boards.

MOST IMPORTANT
"Environmental management is the single most important issue facing all levels of government today," Mr. Campbell said.

This included housing, land use, pollution, transit problems and all structures under which government has been doing business for many years.

"Our young people will no longer accept the proposition that pollution and transit problems are outside the scope of man to solve," he said.

"Local government in the 1970s will have to assume roles which traditionally have been roles of federal and provincial governments."

HAVE TO FIND IT
"They will have to learn that if they don't have the apparatus now, they will have to find it."

"What we do today may have to be changed tomorrow — no government has all the answers."

Mr. Campbell said municipal government "must divorce itself from the idea that it is not responsible for services to people."

If they keep following this line government will be travelling down a complete and utter tunnel of destruction."

PROVINCIAL BOARD
The municipal financing authority would work as a self-insuring fund, run by a provincial board to raise capital funds.

The 138 municipalities in B.C. would be represented on the board by appointed officers from the province's 28 regional districts, with a heavy voting majority from Greater Vancouver and the capital region.

An insurance fund to back the bonds sold through the authority would come from municipalities.

Several municipalities represented at the convention had earlier asked the provincial government for a government-operated financing agency, similar to ones in Alberta and Saskatchewan, where the provincial governments back the bonds.

But the B.C. government "has no intention of centralizing the financing of local governments," Mr. Campbell said.

"Municipal government should not abdicate its sense of direction in the financial market."

"The financial position of municipalities in B.C. happens to be second to none" and is recognized in major financial markets.

"For them to go to the provincial government is totally repugnant to my view of municipal government," Mr. Campbell said.

HIGH RATING
He said the authority could command the highest rating in financial markets in Canada and the United States and those in the bond market had already indicated their acceptance of the government's plan.

The proposal will be presented to the next session of the legislature.

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich said in a later interview B.C. has an assessment base of $6,923,000,000 and this "will stand up in any financial market as backing for bonds."

Mayor Don Morton of Cowichan, who is the current president of the UBCM, called the plan "an honest attempt" to supply the sort of agency municipalities have asked for.

CAMPBELL OPPOSED

But Vancouver Mayor Tom Campbell said he was opposed to the plan, which he said was divisive and would tend to lower his city's rating on the financial market.

In a later talk on municipal financing, Vancouver investment dealer Malcolm Brown, of Odkum, Brown and T. B. Read Ltd., said regional district financing was the best solution to the problems now faced by municipalities.

Mr. Campbell said about $50,000,000 worth of capital bonds offered by B.C. municipalities have not been purchased. The UBCM gives an estimate of $30,000,000-$100,000,000 of debentures approved by voters but still unsold.

Pot Parties Probed

Drug Squad Inspects Piccadilly Squatters

LONDON (UPI) — Drug squad police visited the lavish Piccadilly Mansion occupied by 300 homeless hippies to investigate reports the youths and their women and children were holding pot parties in the 100-room estate.

The move sent a wave of panic through the conglomerate, carefree household who earlier in the day were delivered in edict by a London high court ordering them to return the property to its owners.

Judge Robert Eveleigh granted the order in answer to a summons by the owners, Amalgamated West end Development and Property Trust, asking the hippies give up possession of the spacious mansion, which has been empty for several months.

Scotland Yard drug men entered the building late Wednesday, questioned a number of the squatters, asking whether drugs were being smoked on the premises.

The drug squad left after about an hour, but police sources said they would be keeping close watch on the commune and possible carry out a raid to search for hidden drugs.

Cuba Closes Wires

NEW YORK (AP) — News services offices of Associated Press and United Press International in Havana have been closed without warning by the Cuban government. A Cuban spokesman said the offices will be closed "until the correspondents' situation was solved."

Get a whole term's reading under your belt in only one week!

If you are an average student carrying a standard study load, you have the capacity to read—in just one week—every single textbook for every single course in your curriculum. What's more, you will fully understand and remember what you read for a long, long time.

The way to this singular accomplishment is via Reading Dynamics—the educational breakthrough that enables people to read thousands of words a minute without skipping or skimming; with excellent comprehension, great enjoyment and remarkable recall. Learning to read dynamically is like making the transition from a bicycle to a Jaguar XKE.

Reading Dynamics really works. In fact, it works so well and with such consistent success that every course is backed by The Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics Institute's firm Performance Warranty to at least triple your reading efficiency.

This is a minimum promise, for literally thousands of the Institute's graduates have learned to read four to ten times faster. They read an average novel in about an hour—all the articles in TIME magazine in 25 minutes—textbooks at the rate of 15 to 20 pages a minute.

These people aren't "bains" or mental freaks. Many are individuals who once read as slowly as you—poking along at the national average reading rate of 250-400 words per minute. So don't be embarrassed about your slow reading. Most of your friends—even your parents and teachers—can't read any faster.

Reading Dynamics offer you a permanent escape from the sluggish reading rut and the negative effects it has on your grade average and free time.

Although learning to read dynamically requires no special talent or aptitude, mastering this wonderful skill is a lot like learning to play a musical instrument. This means that just acquiring the simple, basic techniques won't turn you into a speed phenomenon overnight. You have to practice everyday—No great difficulty—since you can apply some of this Reading Dynamics "homework" to your normal school or pleasure reading.

Best of all, once you attain and continue to use your new reading skills, your speed gains are permanent.

Reading Dynamics is the definitive rapid reading system in the world today. And the most flexible. You can use it for all kinds of reading—even detailed, complex materials like science, history and economics texts—in one-third the time it takes you now.

Come to one of the free demonstrations listed below and find out how Reading Dynamics can work for you.

The heart of the Zenith pioneered and developed Chromacolor TV system is the patented Chromacolor picture tube. Where previous giant-screen color pictures have been made up of thousands of tiny color dots on a gray background, Zenith reduced the dots in size, surrounded them with jet black, and fully illuminated every dot. You'll see a color picture over 100% brighter, with truer colors, sharper detail, and greater contrast than any giant-screen color TV before Chromacolor.

Alberta Mayors In Four Races

From CP

Four mayoralty contests were assured Wednesday as nominations closed for municipal elections in eight Alberta cities. Elections are to be held Oct. 13.

Electors in Calgary, Red Deer, Camrose and Drumheller will cast votes for mayor. Mayors of Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, Grande Prairie and Wetaskiwin are serving terms which expire in 1971. There are no elections in Edmonton this year.

THIRD TERM
In Calgary, the largest of the cities with mayoralty races, incumbent Jack Leslie will seek his third two-year term as mayor. Opposing him will be Rod Sykes, a former vice-president of Marathon Realty Co. Ltd. and lawyer A. L. Harris whose platform is pollution and environment control.

R. Edward Barrett will seek a third term as mayor of Red Deer. Ald. Robert Banister and Peter Schneider, a newcomer to public life, also will contest the office.

R. L. Dale, sitting Red Deer alderman will try for a seat on the public school board. He is spearheading a campaign against amalgamation of two high schools.

Camrose residents will have a new mayor for the coming term. Rudy Swanson and William Fowler, both aldermen since 1965, will campaign for the seat left vacant by retiring Mayor W. M. Smith. Fowler was defeated during the 1963 mayoralty race.

TWO RUNNING
In Drumheller, incumbent E. A. Toshach and Mike Danyluk will seek the mayor's chair. Persons elected in this year's election will serve until 1971 when all Alberta cities, towns and villages will vote for mayor and council on a three-year basis.

LARGEST CITY

Drug Seller Pleads Guilty

A 22-year-old Victoria man pleaded guilty Wednesday in County Court to two charges of trafficking in narcotics.

Court was told Douglas Allan Toole sold drugs to an undercover RCMP investigator in Centennial Square on Oct. 27 and Nov. 2, 1968.

Crown counsel E. S. Pollard told court the investigator first met Toole outside a youth centre on Broad Street. The accused offered to sell him two bags of marijuana for $30 and asked him if he had "the bread," court was told.

The transaction was completed in Centennial Square. At the same location, court was told, Toole sold the investigator another two bags of marijuana Nov. 2.

Toole was remanded until Sept. 26 for sentence and pre-sentence report.

Greyhound Makes Bid For Coachways Line

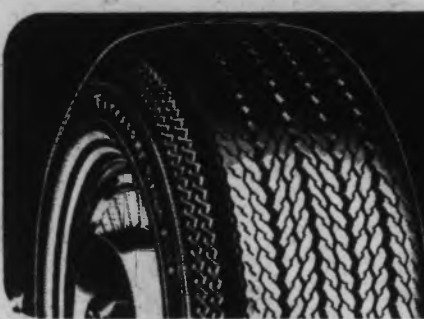

CALGARY (CP) — Greyhound Lines of Canada announced Wednesday it has made a cash offer to purchase the Canadian Coachways bus system in Alberta, B.C., Alaska, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories. Canadian Coachways is operated by International Utilities of Toronto. Vancouver Island Coach Lines is one of its affiliates.

Underweight Entries Causing Headaches

Underweight entries are beginning to plague officials of The Daily Colonist King Fisherman Contest.

In order to qualify for the contest, springs (chubbs) and cubs must weigh five pounds or more. Any entries under the required weight will not appear in the listings and are a waste of time for anglers, weigh-in stations and contest officials.

Same applies to freshwater fish. Bass, river and lake trout must weigh one pound or more to be entered.

The International Salmon Fisheries Commission has relinquished regulatory control of sockeye and pink salmon fishing in the waters of that portion of Area 20 lying westerly of a straight line drawn true south from Sheringham Point Light-house to the International Boundary Line, as of 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 14.

Regulation of the fisheries in the above-mentioned waters "as of that time will be in accordance with provisions of the B.C. fishery regulations," the commission said.

Province Told:

Municipalities Unhappy Over Sewers, Pollution

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities said today his organization has a good batting average with the provincial government on smaller issues, but remains unhappy about larger municipal problems in B.C.

Mayor Don Morton of North Cowichan said in his annual report to the opening session of the UBCM convention in this Interior city that there are still major issues which require solutions.

"We're still unhappy about welfare costs, about our failure to get to grips with other levels of government on cost sharing formulae for sewer plants in particular and for pollution control in general, and about the extremely high costs of borrowing for municipal purposes," he said.

"All levels of government and a great many other factors and conditions have contributed to the present inflationary situation in which we find ourselves and to the existing welfare sort of life we have created."

There will be more consultations with municipalities in the future on federal-provincial cost sharing, he said, although events so far "have not justified this optimism."

T. R. B. Adams, UBCM executive director, said in his annual report that one of the most serious problems facing municipalities today is the current labor unrest in B.C.

"Municipal negotiations entered into this year have been protracted and in some cases bitter."

"In spite of new procedure in the Mediation Commission Act . . . more municipal negotiations took longer to conclude this year than has been the case in any of the past 10 years."

Resolutions approved for presentation at the B.C. Federation of Labor convention in Vancouver Nov. 3 to 7 included:

● That 38 days' notice of a provincial election is inadequate for the speeding out of invasions on the voters' list and addition of others that should be there. For that reason the electoral registration procedures should be overhauled.

● That an attempt be made to establish close fraternal relations with the Japanese trade union movement because of growth of business contacts between B.C. and Japan.

VICTORIA'S DAILY NEWSPAPERS Have Been Growing with the Community FOR OVER 100 YEARS

They Are Deeply Rooted in Community Life . . . its hopes, its joys and sorrows . . . its basic needs!

For over a century, Victoria daily newspapers have played a very special part in community life . . . putting out firm young roots in a settlement that was destined to become a great city with thriving industry and bustling business activity.

Then, as now, we had a community of subscribers, eagerly reading and acting upon the advertisements of Victoria's firms. Other media come and go . . . but for our merchants and business firms NOTHING CAN APPROACH THE "TOTAL" COVERAGE AND LONG-TERM RESULTS THEY GET THROUGH ADVERTISING IN VICTORIA'S DAILY PAPERS.

As the area grows and the population increases, so does CIRCULATION INCREASE BY LEAPS AND BOUNDS!

Marine Science

Victoria Choice 'Appropriate'

Knowledge about the ocean is fragmented and locked up in provincial and federal government offices, a committee investigating Canadian marine science was told in Victoria Wednesday.

The three-man study group on marine science and technology also heard a suggestion that Victoria be the site of the institute which the investigators already have said they will recommend.

The investigators are Dr. R. W. Stewart, an oceanographer at the University of British Columbia; Dr. L. M. Dickie, a biologist who is head of the ecology laboratory at the Bedford Institute in Dartmouth, N.S.; and Science Council staffer Dr. Roger Voyer.

The appeal on behalf of Victoria as a marine science centre was made by Dr. Gordon Fields, head of the biology department at the University of Victoria. He was one of six panellists of different specialties who addressed the study group.

Dr. Fields said Victoria, with a university and plenty of fresh seawater nearby, would be an "appropriate" choice.

Need for a centralized marine science facility was declared by R. G. McMyrn, director of the commercial fisheries branch of the B.C. department of recreation and conservation. Mr. McMyrn said he was speaking as a biologist and private citizen.

Mr. McMyrn said that despite B.C.'s 16,900 miles of coastline, marine studies have been given scant attention by the provincial government because of the relative importance of the forest industry.

"There are signs that in the next decade or so there will be a major aquatic plant industry developing," he said.

Panel discussion

Occasion was a panel and public discussion at the Maritime Museum, arranged by the study group which is touring Canada's east and west coasts on behalf of the Science Council of Canada.

Delicate Blooms

While I have always had the greatest admiration for lily-of-the-valley, both for its delicacy of bloom and for its clean, refreshing fragrance, I very much prefer to have it growing in somebody else's garden rather than in my own.

The plant doesn't remain in bloom long enough to justify its use where garden space is at a premium; moreover, the thing is an incorrigible gate-crasher — as invasive as mint, and almost as pushy as Snow-in-summer. It will even spread into the lawn, given half a chance.

Every plant has its place, though, and if you have a wild garden or a bit of woodland where the plants can ramble and spread to their heart's content, you couldn't make a better choice than lily-of-the-valley. And early fall is the best time to plant the pips.

Position plays a great part in the successful cultivation of lily-of-the-valley. Give the plant a place it likes and you don't have to worry about anything else. It loves a cool, moist spot in partial shade and a soil rich in natural humus. An ideal situation is under leaf-losing trees where the branches are not too low and where the plants will be dappled with spots of sunshine filtering through the canopy of leaves.

Another good place — where no woodland is available — is the north side of a fence or house wall, with the open sky above. Not that the lily-of-the-valley insists upon shade — it will grow and bloom perfectly well in full sun providing they get enough moisture and an annual mulch of sifted leafmould or old manure to keep the roots cool.

The ground to receive the plants should be dug over, incorporating half a bucketful of old manure and the same amount of rotted leaves to each square yard. If you can't lay your hands on these materials, substitute half a bucket of dampened peat moss or fir bark plus a cupful of bone meal per square yard.

With these humus-forming materials thoroughly mixed into the soil, the next job is to tread the bed until it is moderately firm. These plants don't care much for loose, puffy soil.

In lifting the plants — if you are transplanting from an old bed — you will find the roots hopelessly matted together. These should be torn apart with the fingers, selecting pieces containing three or four plump, strong pips. These are easily recognized, as they are fat, oval little growth buds situated in the top of an underground, root-like stem.

If you are breaking up an old patch, you'll have far more of these pips than you can use, so it pays to be discriminating. Save only the really plump ones, consigning the small, weedy material to the compost heap.

Just as in planting strawberries and in potting African violets, a very common mistake with lily-of-the-valley is to set the plant in the ground with the roots all matted together and pointing straight down in a narrow planting hole. The mass of roots should be fluffed out with the fingers and spread out almost horizontally. The roots themselves can be fairly well covered, but the pips on top should be just below the surface.

With the new bed all planted up, an added refinement much appreciated by the plants is a top dressing of coarse leafmould or half-rotted leaves to conserve moisture and to give the emerging buds a bit of protection from our chilly spring winds. For best results, this surface mulch should be topped up every fall with a little fresh material.

ART BUCHWALD

For Hearts, Dollars

A lot of people are being shaken up these days by receiving unsolicited plastic credit cards. In the past the consumer had the option whether to ask for credit or not. But now in the great battle for the hearts and dollars of the customer, the banks, oil companies and hotel chains are shoving their credit cards at you whether you want them or not.

It isn't just the spectre of a wife or teenager receiving a credit card and going berserk that bothers most breadwinners. It's the principle of the thing, and where will it all end? What is to prevent a company that sends unsolicited credit cards to your home from sending merchandise instead?

I don't believe it is too farfetched to see this happening in a few years.

You come home, and there on your front lawn is a complete dining room set with table, 12 chairs and cabinet. Attached to leg of the table is a note:

"Greetings. We are happy to inform you that we consider you an excellent credit risk and, to show our faith in you, we are leaving this dining room set on your lawn. Our credit reports on you indicate that you favor colonial furniture, and we have chosen this particular mahogany wood which we know will go well with the rest of your furnishings. If for some reason this particular dining room set does not meet your requirements, you may return it to our warehouse within 10 days, and you will not be charged for it. If it is not returned, we will assume that we made the right choice, and we shall start billing you monthly."

Or you could wake up in the morning and find parked outside your door a new Fire-

Eater with the following letter taped to the windshield:

"Congratulations. You are now the owner of a new Fire-Eater, the fastest, most comfortable economical automobile on the road. Because of your high credit rating, we have taken the liberty of registering this car in your name with the state vehicle bureau.

"If for any reason you change your mind and decide you don't want to be one of the 'with it' people, please call this number and we will have the car taken away, at no cost to you except for the towing charges.

"Also, if you do not accept this exceptional buy, you must go down to state vehicle bureau and inform them of this decision. Otherwise we will start charging you interest beginning next week."

The final indignity would be to receive a registered letter from a development company which read:

"Dear sir: We're happy to inform you that you are now the proud owner of a new ranch house in Paradise Acres. This extraordinary home (the deed is enclosed) has three bedrooms, two and half baths, a playroom and completely equipped kitchen and will be ready for you to move into within two weeks.

"A check on your credit rating shows that you can easily afford this remarkable buy, and we have taken the liberty of deducting from your bank account the small down payment."

"If we don't hear from you by registered mail within the next 36 hours, we will assume that you will be joining us at Paradise Acres. On the other hand, if you return the deed, then we ask you to contact our lawyers so some equitable arrangement can be worked out for our time and inconvenience."

The Star Haunts

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — If you want to see the stars in Hollywood, you do not wait for them at the corner of Hollywood and Vine. For a long time now, no one of any fame or importance has strolled down the Boulevard to the "oohs" and "ahs" of admiring tourists.

You will do better taking one of the movie star home tours. At least, you might catch Gene Kelly picking up the morning newspaper on his front lawn at North Rodeo Drive.

If it is your lucky day, you will catch a star or two walking into the Polo Lounge at the Beverly Hills Hotel, or bump into Warren Beatty and Julie Christie in the lobby of the Beverly Wilshire. If you want to be sure, you dine at Dave Chasen's on Beverly Boulevard, or lunch or dine at The Bistrot in Beverly Hills.

At the latter, I found Jimmy Stewart and his wife Gloria, and composer Maurice Jarre, dining with the Alfred Hitchcocks — and with Hitch there you know the food is good.

The rotund director showed me the tiny ribbon on the lapel of his capacious coat. "I am an Officer of the Order of the Arts and Letters of France," he explained proudly. "Salvador Dali once called me the Chevalier de la Mort (of Death)," he deadpanned.

He is perhaps the only American to receive this honor. In Europe, Hitch is a god who can do no wrong on the screen. They recently held a Hitchcock Festival on British television where I caught up with all his great films since Thirty-Nine Steps. There is another Hitchcock Festival in Paris.

Joining a beautiful blonde, Connie Joyce, was Hugh O'Brian, who has dated the young buyer for a top Fifth Avenue store for some time now. But I would guess marriage is not on the agenda. Hugh told me facetiously that he is in love with his new leading lady. "She weighs 25 pounds with a seven-foot wing spread." She is an eagle, with whom he stars in his two-hour CBS film, Harpy — "She's from South America and loads of fun." Elizabeth Ashley is the real lady — her first acting job since the break-up of her marriage to George Peppard.

I asked Miss Joyce about the maxi fashion promoted so heavily at the Paris fashion shows. "A maxi coat over a mini dress," she replied. "It will be the long and short of it for the new season."

Long-time director Eddie Buzzell passed by with his wife and promised to call me with anecdotes about the wild playpen for the literary set of the '30s and '40s, known as the Garden of Allah. I am writing a book on the subject for Crown publishers.

Howard Koch and his wife Ruth paused to say hello. Ruth was saved from drowning in Hawaii a few years ago by actor-turned-producer Brad Dexter who at the same time plucked Frank Sinatra from a watery grave.

Sinatra had not been on speaking terms with Brad since the end of their film, The Naked Runner, and I was shocked when I first heard that — not to speak to the man who saved his life!

"Is it true they have now kissed and made up?" I asked Howard. It is true.

"But Frankie never forgives, even an imagined wrong," I said.

"He must have had a soft moment," replied Howard, whose latest production, On A Clear Day (starring Barbara Streisand with Yves Montand), will be released shortly.

At Chasen's, Cary Grant was squiring Charlie Feldman's widow, Clothilde, and there is talk Cary wants to marry the lovely blonde. The now gray-haired most-glamorous star of them all will be 65 and eligible for social security next January. I'll take bets the multi-millionaire thrifty star will be in line to take it. He's entitled.

Best Is Yet to Be

ROSENBERG

Have we hurt? Have we been negligent and neglectful? Have we been thoughtless and impatient with loved ones? Have we been impetuous and hasty?

To refuse to acknowledge these mischievous mistakes magnifies even minor misdemeanors and even minor mistakes become mountains. And what is more: unconfessed wrongdoing leads to habitual wrongdoing. We need to contemplate past misbehavior, before we travel on.

But some there are who linger longer than they should in their remembrance of things past. We must look back to correct our private errors. But not more than necessary. Let us be done with yesterday and try to begin again.

Consider the life-style of those who are obsessed with the need to look backward: they are often consumed with regret, remorse and guilt. Their will to live is seriously to overcome the faults of an old day.

Those who can cultivate future-mindedness are more likely to overcome past failures. A person who can regard the unborn future as even more interesting than his well-known past will find zest in life. He will not tire easily, or regret expended energies on efforts that do not bring immediate reward. Always, for him, there is another tomorrow, to begin again.

Future-mindedness gives a man a sense of curiosity about life and its unfolding. Keenness of mind, yesure-someness of spirit, optimism of heart — these are the scintillating qualities of the man who persists in looking ahead. He gets older, but he never grows old.

To be able to see life as a series of new beginnings, to cultivate the ability to live with the unknown, to press on to the future in spite of all the sadness we may have known — is to remain unafraid and undefeated.

This is the eternal mark of spiritual youth: grey with years, but unafraid and undefeated, because of a faith that "the best is yet to be."

Passengers Trudge Three Miles for Help

'A Sheet of Flame Came Down Aisle'

By BRANT FELKER

CAMPBELL RIVER — "There was no warning at all. We came out of the clouds and there were the trees, all around us."

"We went bump, bump, bump, like a man going downstairs, then spun around and a sheet of flame came down the aisle."

Campbell River lawyer Al Lazerte paused and looked around the lobby of the Campbell River

hospital. Two hours earlier he had been a passenger in the plane that crashed. Five or six other passengers who, like Mr. Lazerte, didn't appear to have suffered more than a shaking up, were walking around the lobby.

Mr. Lazerte pointed to one of them. "He was first out," he said.

He was pointing to Jim Beatty, a Vancouver mechanic.

Mr. Beatty said he ran to the emergency door and opened it. Mr. Lazerte followed him, then Margaret Hemphill of Oakland, Calif.

Meanwhile, other passengers were trying to get the regular back door opened, but it was jammed.

"I gave it a heave with my back," said Wray Compton, a Campbell River millworker. "One of the stewardesses was trying to get it open, and I just pushed over her. She was afraid I would step on her. The door gave, I jumped out and hauled her out after me."

She was followed by Guy Young, a Gold River millworker, and Nils Westahagen, a Vancouver marine mechanic, Mr. Compton said.

"One we were out," Mr. Lazerte said, "there was a small explosion and the plane just burned up in front of our eyes. There wasn't anything we could do to stop it."

Senate Puts Lid on Troops For Thailand, Laos Duties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate voted Wednesday to put a ceiling on overall U.S. troop strength and to limit any U.S. defence of Thailand and Laos to providing supplies and equipment — not men.

The amendments, with the Pentagon's stamp of approval, passed overwhelmingly as the senate drove toward passage of a $20 billion defence procurement bill after eight weeks of debate. A vote on the bill may be held today.

● Lawyer once saved Ho's life. Page 41

Backers of the ceiling measure hailed it as a broad prohibition on the use of U.S. forces in Southeast Asia — "A Gulf of Tonkin resolution in reverse."

But the defence department

contended it did not constitute a legal limitation on U.S. forces and decided not to fight it. It consequently passed 86 to 0. Sen. John Sherman Cooper, (R-Ky.) sponsored the measure as an amendment to the procurement bill, which contains $2.5 billion for support of local forces in Vietnam, Thailand and Laos.

Cooper contended the language in the bill was so broad that it had "the same legal authority as a declaration of war." He demanded a change to prevent the senate from unwittingly approving another Gulf of Tonkin resolution — the controversial 1964 vote which the Johnson administration used as the legal basis for escalating the Vietnam war.

Quebec's 'Pride' Now QC

QUEBEC (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was named a Queen's counsel by the Quebec cabinet Wednesday.

Could this be interpreted as a sign of détente in Ottawa-Quebec relations? a reporter asked Justice Minister Remy Paul.

"Relations between the justice minister and Ottawa have never been strained," he replied.

"It simply means that the bar of the province of Quebec is proud to see one of its members in such high office."

Tars Brawl, Four Killed

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — About 80 Japanese and Chinese merchant seamen brawled in the streets with knives, fists, rocks and chairs. Four were killed and several others injured, police said.

"First reports are that Japanese sailors were flashing a lot of money around. They attracted all the girls and fighting started," said Cape Town criminal investigation chief Brig. J. Visagie.

SOUTHAMPTON, England (UPI) — A thief stole a $2,880 painting, Robert Motherwell's "Beside The Sea," from the art gallery aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth 2, police said Wednesday.

Prisoner Right, He IS Innocent

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Frank Sawyer, 70, jailed 37 years ago for a bank robbery, he said he didn't commit, was pardoned today by Governor Robert Docking. The governor said Sawyer is innocent of the 1932 bank robbery.

Sawyer has been serving a 20-to-100-year sentence for the robbery of a Fort Scott, Kan. bank in 1932.

A former United States public enemy No. 1, Alvin Karpis, now on parole in Montreal, had said that he and several others committed the bank robbery 37 years ago and that Sawyer did not take part.

The man who prosecuted Sawyer also testified. He said he now believes that Sawyer did not participate in the robbery.

Dief at 74 Still bigger than life, no image of frailty now

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — The member of Parliament for Prince Albert turns 74 today and he says he hasn't felt better in years.

"You don't see many days when I am absent from the House of Commons," John Diefenbaker said in a private birthday interview.

"I've had wonderful health in the last 15 years. The Lord has been good to me."

Still running free is the wakeful range of emotions that made him such a tumultuous figure as Conservative leader and prime minister the high-pitched, ebullient as he ponders the amusing story he will tell in his next speech: the mood of some-what reflection, the stern and demanding voice of doom when he deals with current political issues.

Mr. Diefenbaker, even while leaning back with his legs crossed in his swivel chair in his parliamentary office, still seems larger than life. Although less sure of step, there is no image of the frailty of the old.

"I don't know how I look for a man my age," he said. "But I would take on any of these babies for a run — anybody 45 or over."

He still takes a daily 40-minute walk around 6 a.m. "on the double" through treed suburban Rockcliffe, where he lives quietly in a house with his wife, Olive.

It is an ironic footnote that Mr. Diefenbaker lives among the moneyed elite. The kind of people he was never really at home with. Rockcliffe is that kind of place.

A Rockcliffe neighbor is his greatest oldtime political rival, former prime minister Lester Pearson, now retired from politics.

"I never see him although I walk by there," he said. The old man, a little hard of hearing, looked at a First World War picture of himself in uniform on the opposite wall.

"I wouldn't have believed 53 years ago when that picture was taken overseas that I would be here today," he said.

Invalided home to Canada following an accidental injury over there, his weight went down to 128 from 180. It didn't come back easily. He was 140 when

Star Cancels TV Series Over Smokes Commercial

Reynolds

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Debbie Reynolds announced Wednesday she was cancelling production of her new television series because a cigarette commercial was aired on the program's debut Tuesday night. Nine segments of the series already had been filmed and presumably will still be shown.

Mrs. Reynolds said the cigarette commercial was in direct violation of her agreement with NBC. She said she felt she had fully outlined in advance her feelings about cigarettes and commercials which she felt were "directly opposed to health and well being."

Diabetic Nasser Ailing

From UPI

Premier Bahgat Talhouki of Jordan said Wednesday that Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser was too ill to see him during his three-day visit to Cairo. In Beirut it was reported Nasser has started a purge to avert Soviet efforts to oust him.

Talhouki, speaking on arrival from Cairo, said "Nasser is sick and under medical treatment." Nasser is a diabetic but it was not known if this was the cause of his present ailment.

In Beirut, the independent newspaper Al Jarida said the key official dismissed in the Nasser administration was Ali Sabry, former premier and more recently secretary general of Nasser's Arab Socialist Union Party.

The newspaper, quoting unidentified Egyptian observers, said Sabry was the Kremlin's choice to replace Nasser. It said the Kremlin planned to engineer Nasser's overthrow while he was in Russia for medical treatment later this month.

Al Jarida said the Soviet Union wants to topple Nasser because of widening conflicts with him on the issues of armaments for Egypt, Russian influence in Egypt and the overall Middle East problem.

Mr. Wood recalls old days with daughter Dolly

Early-Day Mountie Marking 100th Year

CAMPBELL RIVER — Lewis Ingram Wood, of Shelter Point, Campbell River, believed to be the oldest surviving member of the Northwest Mounted Police, will be 100 years old Sept. 20.

He and his older brother, the late Alexander Gardiner Wood, spent four years in the 1880s on Canada's western frontiers in the mounted police.

Lewis was born in Staffordshire, England, Sept. 20, 1869. He was the fourth in a family of six sons and two daughters. Alec was 2½ years old at the time.

In 1890, the brothers left England to seek their fortunes in Canada. They landed in Halifax, N.S., and were joined shortly after by their parents, two younger brothers and a sister. The family lived for a time in Kentville, N.S.

The following spring, Lewis and Alec applied for admission into the Northwest Mounted Police and learned that recruits were not being accepted in Nova Scotia. So they made their way westward to Fort Gerry — now Winnipeg — applied again, and were accepted into the force Sept. 19, 1891. Meanwhile, the rest of the family returned to England.

The name of the force was changed to Royal Northwest Mounted Police in 1904 and to Royal Canadian Mounted Police in 1920 when jurisdiction was extended over the entire dominion.

Lewis and Alec received their training in Regina after which they were posted to Fort Calgary. Lewis said each man was given a horse when enlisted, and part of their drill was to break and train their mounts.

Lewis said his main duties involved keeping peace among the Indians, and trying to protect them from the depredations and villainies of less desirable white settlers who were flocking into the territory.

The colors of their uniforms were the same as those worn by modern Mounties. However, the style of the scarlet tunic was considerably different from the present jacket. Their hats were pillboxes, worn at a jaunty angle and held in place by a chin strap. It was 1901 before the modern Stetson hat was adopted, although a similar type was worn unofficially as early as the 1880s.

It was a rigorous life into which the Wood brothers were inducted. The hardships and privations were many, and the pay was small — $15 a month and found. Such things as jam and butter were not included in their daily fare so they spent $3 of their monthly salary on these "luxuries."

At the time of their enlistment, the rate of pay for constables was 50 cents per day. To that was added good conduct pay of 5 cents a day for each year of service, after recalls that the hardships they endured on that trek were worse than any of those experienced in the Northwest Mounted Police.

Alec never married. He died in Campbell River in October, 1962.

Lewis married Miss Betsy Fraser on April 24, 1901, and took her to his homestead at Pigeon Lake. They had six sons and six daughters. His wife died in February, 1950 at Campbell River.

During their years in Pigeon Lake, Lewis and Alec operated a general store and rented a building on their land for police barracks. Lewis also acted as overseer for the fisheries department for 23 years and delivered the mail on the Wetaskiwin-Yeolod run for eight years.

In 1938, Lewis and family, and Alec, moved to Campbell River where they operated the Shelter Point Auto Court, seven miles south of town, for 20 years. During that time, Lewis delivered the rural mail for 15 years, retiring in 1954 at 85.

He is patriarch of a considerable family — four sons (two are dead) six daughters, 19 grandchildren and 24 great-grandchildren.

North Cowichan Mayor Reports:

Municipalities Unhappy Over Welfare, Sewers

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities said today his organization has a good batting average with the provincial government on smaller issues, but remains unhappy about larger, municipal problems in B.C.

Mayor Don Morton of North Cowichan said in his annual report to the opening session of the UBCM convention in this Interior city that there are still major issues which require solutions.

"We're still unhappy about welfare costs, about our failure to get to grips with other levels of government on cost sharing formulae for sewer plants in particular and for pollution control in general, and about the extremely high costs of borrowing for municipal purposes," he said.

Pollution and municipal funding are expected to be the two strongest issues during the convention, which ends Saturday.

"This is not suggesting that the provincial government is to be automatically blamed for everything," Mayor Morton said.

"All levels of government and a great many other factors and conditions have contributed to the present inflationary situation in which we find ourselves and to the existing welfare sort of life we have created."

There will be more consultations with municipalities in the future on federal-provincial cost sharing, he said, although events so far "have not justified this optimism."

Morton

T. R. B. Adams, UBCM executive director, said in his annual report that one of the most serious problems facing municipalities today is the current labor unrest in B.C.

NEGOTIATIONS BITTER

"Municipal negotiations entered into this year have been protracted and in some cases bitter."

"In spite of new procedure in the Mediation Commission Act... more municipal negotiations took longer to conclude this year than has been the case in any of the past 10 years."

"If the legislature intended in the act... to create an atmosphere of good faith in collective bargaining that would encourage both parties to continue direct negotiation, then it would appear to have been unsuccessful and neither labor nor management seems to have been greatly impressed with this principle."

Indications pointed to a slowing down of activities in 1969, with an easing in the upward trend of wage rates and wage increases.

TOKEN ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Other municipal requests in the areas of administration of justice and compensation of persons injured while assisting police officers had been met partly by the province. But legislation for pollution control had been "only a 'token acknowledgement' of municipal needs."

P. A. Gagliardi, Social Credit MLA for Kamloops, said in welcoming remarks to about 1,300 delegates that municipalities should not come to the province for more money.

"I hope you find ways to quit spending everybody else's money and find ways of getting along with what you now have," he said.

"It's an easy thing to put responsibility on your senior government to get more money."

He suggested that municipalities work out economical ways of using existing tax revenues thus lightening the burden on the taxpayer.

United Appeal Answers SPCA:

Audit Lack Blocked Grant

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO — Nanaimo United Appeal has refused Nanaimo SPCA's request for a share of appeal funds because the SPCA failed to submit a properly audited set of books, appeal president Jim Griffin said Wednesday.

He said this decision was recorded in United Appeal minutes. Mrs. Griffin said the minutes also record the executive of United Appeal felt the SPCA should get its financial house in order before requesting funds.

Mrs. Jean McGrath, SPCA branch treasurer, disagreed with Mr. Griffin.

ACCOUNTS AUDITED

"Our accounts have always been audited by a qualified accountant — a public accountant," she said Wednesday.

"There's no society that has a better set of books than we have. Every cent has been accounted for," she said.

Mrs. McGrath said that she and other SPCA officials were asked to appear before the United Appeal committee and provide the 1967 audit.

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

"It certainly was not intimidated to me," she said, that the reasons for the grant being denied "had anything to do with our financial structure."

Mr. Griffin explained the United Appeal had a public responsibility to closely scrutinize not only new applications but regular member agencies as well.

"Many don't audit ourselves, but we demand audited accounts. We don't have enough funds to give to agencies that don't meet these requirements."

In fact we've not, in the past nine years, reached our campaign target," he said.

Mrs. McGrath said that at each annual general meeting, the audit was read out and available to membership for scrutiny or question.

During the last branch meeting in March, she said there was confusion about the term "accountant." In the branch constitution one paragraph states the accountant should be a chartered accountant but in another section, it states a "qualified accountant."

After discussion the membership upheld the executive interpretation that the accountant did not have to be a chartered accountant.

Mrs. McGrath's statements were in opposition to those of vice-president Lorne McLaughlin, who said that he had been denied access to information for the past three months.

British Columbia Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals President William Need said in a telephone interview there were some Nanaimo branch items under consideration by the parent body. One group of items was a labor relations board matter presently under review.

Former inspector Reg. Robertson had been dismissed last year and was ordered immediately re-instated by the labor relations board. After several weeks, Mr. Robertson was back at his job and several weeks after that, his wages amounting to about $2,000 were paid, in compliance with a board ruling. That same day he was again suspended with pay and a month later the pay was terminated.

Time Now for Art

Strachan Back in Classroom

DUNCAN — Recently re-elected MLA Robert Strachan has begun to fulfill his lifelong desire to learn art. He enrolled in Malaspina College as an art student and two afternoons a week he goes to school to learn drawing.

On a visit to Duncan Wednesday he said "I always wanted it and since I am no longer the leader of the Opposition I have a little more time."

Mr. Strachan said he combines his desire to draw with two other motives — observing the operation of a regional college which may be useful at future discussions in the Legislature and exposing himself to the atmosphere created by today's generation. The semester system will allow him to interrupt his study during next Spring's legislative session.

Sointula, Alert Bay Petition

All-Year Car Ferry Urged

Residents of Sointula and Alert Bay are pressing the highways department for regular year-round car ferry service to Port McNeill on northern Vancouver Island.

A petition bearing 368 signatures, protesting the fact that Quadra and Cortes Islands with much smaller populations have similar treatment for Sointula, population 1,800, and Alert Bay's 800 residents, has been received by Highways Minister Wesley Black.

A department spokesman, however, indicated Wednesday that the matter would not be dealt with until the minister returns to his office Monday.

The petition said the hospital serving Port Hardy, Port McNeill, Beaver Cove, Kokish, Coal Harbor and other smaller communities was located at Alert Bay. Patients arrived by water taxi or plane, but when friends and relatives wanted to visit the sick they must use more conventional methods of transportation.

The highways department ferry, which runs until 5 p.m. five days a week during the school year, is withdrawn from service during July and August. Even in winter, according to D.

E. Laughlin, chairman of the Sointula Citizens Committee for Adequate Ferry Service, the daily schedule is so restricted "that it is obvious the government is turning a blind eye to its responsibilities in this area."

Mr. Laughlin added: "This past week the high school children who use the Sointula Queen to get to school at Port McNeill from both Alert Bay and Sointula have been able to attend only two-thirds of one day, because no suitable vessel is available. We consider the total situation to be near scandalous."

A department spokesman said the ferry was provided mainly to provide transportation for students attending school on the island. Since there is only one crew, he added, the vessel is taken out of service during the summer vacation for refit, and the men who work on it take their holidays.

When the Sointula Queen was scheduled to return to service at the beginning of the current school year, a defect was found and the vessel had to return to drydock. There was some difficulty in obtaining a replacement. But the official said the regular ferry had been back on the run since last Monday.

Guest List Like Who's Who

'Few of Boys' Boost for Resort

QUALICUM BEACH — When R. A. Brown invites a few of the boys over for a weekend's fishing, fishing guides and hotelkeepers rub their hands in glee, and the Chamber of Commerce knows the fame of Vancouver Island holidaying, and Qualicum in particular, is going to be spread throughout the industrial and investment centres of North America and even Great Britain.

Last weekend, Mr. Brown held his 10th annual fishing weekend, and the guestlist read like a Who's Who of the oil industry and associated enterprises. Among the special guests invited were moon astronauts Armstrong, Collins and Aldrin, but other commitments prevented their attending.

However, that didn't stop about 120 other guests from flowing in from all parts of the United States, Canada and Great Britain.

It wasn't easy to top a decade of impressive hospitality, but Mr. Brown, who is a major executive of the Home Oil Company always has a few ace up his sleeve.

This year the traditional golf tournament at the Qualicum Golf Course (which Mr. Brown happens to own) and an entire marina, its boats and guides turned over to the guests, was supplemented with a skydiving exhibit which delighted dozens of outsiders and local residents as well as the Brown guests.

Coming as it did in the same week as the big Alaska oil-lands sale, the fishing weekend was named in honor of the event — The North Slope Fishing Derby of Qualicum. And just to add to the fun, a special trophy was awarded for the "most Alaska-looking" fish caught off Qualicum during the three-day gathering.

To take care of all the guests, Mr. Brown took over the George Inn entirely, a portion of the Qualicum Inn, and also accommodated guests in his own home.

A sixteen-page brochure, could purchase gift packs of local fish products to soothe their annoyance and impress their friends at home.

The four-day gathering was not entirely unmixing with business. A two-hour session known as the "Pugmash" conference gave the experts a chance to put their heads together and gaze into the future.

But on the whole, the get-together gave people like O. C. Davis, president of the Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America from Chicago, and John King, vice-president of the Forest Oil Company of New York, a chance to cross golf-clubs with men like R. Ross Smith, general manager of the Enterprise Division of James Richardson and Sons Limited of Winnipeg, and Cyrus McLean, chairman of the B.C. Tel from Vancouver.

It gave guests like J. K. McCausland, vice-president and director of Wood Gundy Securities in Toronto and H. S. Romaine, director of Investments, Mutual Life Insurance, New York, the chance to see if they were as good at forecasting where the salmon would bite best as they are at visualizing the potential of a new stock issue.

Best of all, say local businessmen and residents, the annual event gives the Qualicum area the kind of a boost that no amount of paid publicity could purchase.

Eskimos Outscore Lions In Comedy of Errors

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jim "Long Gone" Thomas exploded for a 64-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter Wednesday to clinch victory for Edmonton Eskimos over British Columbia Lions.

Thomas gave the Eskimos a 13-5 decision and saved the Western Football Conference game, before 22,791 Empire Stadium fans, from remaining a comedy of errors.

Corey Colehour, touted as Edmonton's replacement for Jackie Parker at quarterback, tossed a three-yard flip pass to newcomer Tom Nettles early in the second quarter for the other Eskimo touchdown.

Dave Cutler, brought in to strengthen the Eskimos kicking, was one-for-two in conversions for the other point.

Ted Gerela, who generates more offence with his toe than the Lions' offensive unit can muster, booted all five points for the hapless B.C. club.

He hit for a 17-yard field goal at 5:40 of the first quarter and added a single point less than five minutes later when Bayne Norrie was routed on Gerela's three-point try from 31 yards.

The other B.C. single came at 14:05 of the second quarter when the Burnaby-born place-kicker's field goal attempt was wide from 31 yards and rolled to the cinder track.

HOPES DIMMER

The less for the Lions was their eighth in nine starts and makes their chances of making one of the three playoff positions a tough task. Edmonton moved into third place, one point ahead of Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

About the only thing that kept the fans from laughing in the first half was a steady drizzle which turned into a full-fledged storm by the time the halftime entertainment was over.

TELL THE STORY

The yardstick for the first 30 minutes told the story. B.C. had four first-downs and Edmonton three; the Lions picked up one yard rushing, 79 yards passing and quarterback Paul Brothers threw the interceptions.

The total offence for both teams was 141 yards.

The Lions had three fumbles in the first two quarters, the Eskimos two.

Running back Donnie Shanklin and Brothers gave the Lions field position for Gerela's field goal at 5:40 from a bad angle and the Lions went into the second quarter with a 4-0 lead after Norrie was routed.

STARTS WITH INTERCEPTION

Colehour, who completed only two of nine passes attempts in the first half, got his big chance when Dick Dupuis picked off a Brothers' pass deep in B.C. territory late in the first quarter.

He threw to Art Perkins and the big fullback gave the Eskimos first-down yardage on the Lions' five-yard line.

Three plays into the second quarter, Nettles grabbed off Colehour's flip for the touchdown. Cutler was wide on the conversion attempt.

Rich Robinson blocked Roger Kettlewell's punt and Dave Wray pounced on the loose ball at the Edmonton 25.

Gerela was wide from 37 yards, but B.C. picked up a single when the ball rolled through the end zone.

FUMBLE, FUMBLE

After that, it was fumble, fumble for the Lions and Thomas for the Eskimos.

Jim Evenson dropped Brothers' handoff with six minutes gone in the third quarter and only the ineptitude of the Edmonton offence prevented the Lions from paying for it.

Then in the third quarter, Brothers dropped the ball.

Price Chasing Mel Marshall

With only two stock car races left, Mel Marshall holds a negligible lead over Bill Price in the race for top driver honors.

Marshall has 599 points, only three more than Price, who has been coming on strongly in recent weeks.

The issue could well be decided Saturday night at Western Speedway when the 1969 stock-car championship, 24 cars for 75 laps, will be featured. Time trials are at 7 p.m.

SUPER STOCK CHAMP

Garry Kershaw, winner of the Canadian "100", last week's superstock finale, was the champion in the senior division with 348 points, 71 more than runner-up Dave Cooper.

Saturday's race in Monroe, Wash., is the last on the Canadian American Modified.

Coach-Publisher Blasts CTFA

athletic, coach and official for membership fees each year. More funds are available by club affiliation fees.

"Surely we should increase our membership from less than 10,000 to over 100,000," Pickard writes. "Think of the athletes, coaches and officials that a mass membership drive would produce."

"High school coaches are interested in participating in CTFA competition. But they don't know how to go about it and the CTFA doesn't inform them."

He recommends that industrial memberships, service club support and life memberships in the CTFA might be considered.

"Local associations could organize track and field meets at a profit in the same manner they are operated by local clubs. Unfortunately, we seem to favor the most difficult route — making the federal government pay for funds."

He says that track and field should make a new start, become self-supporting and then ask the government for additional funds to widen its horizons.

Track coach and publisher Chris Pickard of Toronto says it is time track and field in this country stopped feeling sorry for itself and started to solve its own problems.

"Our present situation seems to be that if the government does not help, we are doomed and will fail apart," Pickard says in the current issue of Ontario Track Monthly.

He soundly raps this philosophy, recommends that the Canadian Track and Field Association must take drastic steps to become financially sound in 1969-70 and outlines ways of accomplishing this goal.

Jenkins Records 20th Victory But Mets Maintain Margin

Ferguson Jenkins, helping himself as much with his hitting as pitching, won his 20th game of the season Wednesday, but it wasn't enough for Chicago Cubs to gain ground in the Eastern Division of the National League.

New York Mets retained their four-game lead by blanking the Montreal Expos, 5-0, on the six-hit pitching of Jerry Koosman to record their 13th victory in the last 14 games.

Koosman, who blanked the Pirates, 1-0, in his previous outing, boosted his record to 15-9 with his fifth shutout and 13th complete game of the season.

Wayne Garrett's two-run single sparked New York's three-run rally in the fourth inning.

TOPS IN MAJORS

At Chicago, Jenkins became the only pitcher in the major to win 20 games in each of the last three seasons as the Cubs outlasted Philadelphia Phillies, 9-7. Last Cub to record three straight 20-win seasons was Hippo Vaughn in 1919.

Jenkins, who needed relief help in the eighth inning after Cubs had built up a 9-3 lead, hit a three-run triple in the five-run Chicago fifth.

The Chatham, Ont., right-hander left in favor of Ken Johnson after leading the batters in the eighth, but recorded six strikeouts to break his own club record for a season. He now has 261 strikeouts compared to 260 last season.

Ron Santo and Billy Williams added home runs in Chicago's 14-hit attack.

BIG NEWCOMERS

Among the newcomers, defencemen Randy Bock from Kimberley and Dale Penneck of San Diego both are 200 pounds while right-wingers Mark Thomas of Sanich and Greg Robinson of Chilliwack.

"He played intermediate hockey up there last season," Anderson said. "He used to play with Dutchy (John Van Horlick, one of Cougar standouts last year)."

"We'll start out on Saturday," Anderson said. "We have our first exhibition a week Saturday at Port Alberni and then play the Gulls here."

Ed Forslund, defencemen Gerry Bond, Murray Konett and Laurie Moore and forwards Scott Munroe, Graham Brown, Shayne Webster, Lon Miles and Bob Merluk.

A quick look at the weight chart shows why Anderson has a happy look. Eight of his players weigh in at 175 pounds or more including Miles, 200; Bond, 190; Kennett, 179; and Moore, 177.

Blais is again training at Memorial Arena, but this time it is with San Diego Gulls of the Western Hockey League.

Admitted to being a "little stiff," Blais dropped down to watch the 21 hopefuls including nine holdovers, work out Wednesday night under Cougar coach Doug Anderson.

DOESN'T KNOW YET

Blais doesn't know what is in store for him yet in his bid for a professional career but is happy to be with the Gulls.

"They are a great bunch of guys," he said. "And they are all willing to help you."

San Diego is working out at the arena from 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. daily while the Cougars are practicing 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Blais will likely play against his former mates Monday, Sept. 29, when Cougars and Gulls have an exhibition game.

The nine Blais played with last year include goalkeeper

Doug Rader's solo home run in the eighth inning, his 11th of the season, broke a 1-1 tie in the pitching duel between Dierker and Gaylord Perry of Giants, who both finished with five-hitters.

Houston took the lead in the fourth inning on Jim Wynn's 32nd homer but successive one-out singles by Willie Mays, Willie McCovey and Bobby Bonds tied the game in the sixth inning.

Cincinnati Reds further tightened the race by downing San Diego Padres, 10-5.

Tony Perez led the 20-hit Cincinnati attack with three hits, driving in three runs.

Alex Johnson, who drove in two runs, Tommy Helms, Peter Rose and Woody Woodward also had three hits for Reds.

ATHLETICS GAIN

In the American League, Oakland Athletics moved nine games behind Minnesota in the Western Division by defeating Kansas City, 3-2, while California Angels stopped the Twins, 6-4.

Rookie Bob Brooks gave Athletics their win with a run-scoring single in the 10th inning to give Jim Hunter his first victory in 11 decisions. Hunter is now 10-15 for the season.

Billy Wynne won the second game with a four-hitter, losing his shutout to John Donaldson's third-inning homer.

It's hard to keep a hockey player away from the arena. Especially if it's Adrian Blais, all-star left winger with Victoria Cougars of the B.C. Junior Hockey League last season.

Blais is again training at Memorial Arena, but this time it is with San Diego Gulls of the Western Hockey League.

Admitted to being a "little stiff," Blais dropped down to watch the 21 hopefuls including nine holdovers, work out Wednesday night under Cougar coach Doug Anderson.

"Surely we should increase our membership from less than 10,000 to over 100,000," Pickard writes. "Think of the athletes, coaches and officials that a mass membership drive would produce."

"High school coaches are interested in participating in CTFA competition. But they don't know how to go about it and the CTFA doesn't inform them."

He recommends that industrial memberships, service club support and life memberships in the CTFA might be considered.

"Local associations could organize track and field meets at a profit in the same manner they are operated by local clubs. Unfortunately, we seem to favor the most difficult route — making the federal government pay for funds."

He says that track and field should make a new start, become self-supporting and then ask the government for additional funds to widen its horizons.

Union Bay

Club Reviving Hoedown During Winter

UNION BAY — The Union Bay Community Club is planning to revive the hoedown atmosphere of old-time dancing as part of its winter sport and recreation program.

"It was an interest in old-time dancing in the first place that led to the organization of Union Bay Community Club in 1939," said Percy Renwick, one of the original community club members, and secretary-treasurer for 25 years.

"Union Bay couples were driving to Cumberland... and Courtenay... and to Fanny Bay for old-time dancing."

"Then we began to talk of having a hall of our own, here in Union Bay, and from this desire came the meeting in November, 1939, when we organized Union Bay Community Club, and immediately started work on getting land from Canadian Collieries and building our hall."

The club's board of directors' first woman president, Mrs. Emily Peters, led the board in plans for the season's community recreation program.

They laid plans for gym classes and basketball games, and a fall cabaret, as well as for old-time hoofing.

Fullest Year Ever

Tourist Centre Busy

DUNCAN — This year's tourist season has been the busiest ever for Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce tourist information centre with a total of 4,061 visitors.

Chamber director, Eric Wrucek said: "On a calculated 42 persons per party, this means 17,066 persons received information from our office."

The information centre staff also looked after 551 telephone calls and answered 30 letters.

A total of 548 U.S. residents registered and 48 citizens from other countries called. Mr. Wrucek said: "The tourist industry is difficult to assess but we estimate it to be worth up to $500,000 locally."

Etna Blast 'Normal'

CATANIA, Sicily (Reuters) — Mount Etna has burst into a new and violent series of eruptions with molten lava shooting 450 feet into the air. Scientists at the Etna Volcanology Institute said this was a normal phase of Etna's activity. There was no danger to nearby villages.

Chemainus Urged to Put Itself on Map

WESTBOLME — What? Bonanza Daze? Never heard of it before.

That, with a few exceptions, seemed to be the attitude when members of the Chemainus, Crofton and District Chamber of Commerce were confronted Tuesday with a ques-

Chemainus Chamber president Frank Thomas told members the questionnaire put out by Bonanza Daze organizers was "straightforward" and only invited suggestions and observations on the recent promotion.

Following comments one of the members suggested the Chemainus merchants would be well advised to send an observer to next year's Bonanza Daze at Duncan.

He said "maybe we can learn something." Mr. Thomas agreed and said, "I only can say it again, take the heads out of the polluted sand at Chemainus." He urged members to look for some gimmick to put Chemainus on the map.

Attending the meeting as guests of the Chamber were four Chemainus high school students whose designs for a key symbol won acclaim. The designs from the drafting, woodworking and ironwork classes were judged some time ago. Winner was Barney Carr with runners-up Grant Fyffe, Bill Wright and Jim Dyke.

Eskimos Outscore Lions In Comedy of Errors

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jim "Long Gone" Thomas exploded for a 64-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter Wednesday to clinch victory for Edmonton Eskimos over British Columbia Lions.

Thomas' run gave the Eskimos a 13-5 decision and saved the Western Football Conference game, before 22,791 Empire Stadium fans, from remaining a comedy of errors.

Corey Colchour, touted as Edmonton's replacement for Jackie Parker at quarterback, tossed a three-yard flip pass to newcomer Tom Nettles early in the second quarter for the other Eskimo touchdown.

Dave Cutler, brought in to strengthen the Eskimos kicking, was one-for-two in conversions for the other point.

Ted Gerela, who generates more offence with his toe than the Lions' offensive unit can muster, booted all five points for the hapless B.C. club.

He hit for a 17-yard field goal at 5:40 of the first quarter and added a single point less than five minutes later when Bayne Norrie was rouged on Gerela's three-point try from 31 yards.

The other B.C. single came at 14:05 of the second quarter when the Burnaby-born place-kicker's field goal attempt was wide from 31 yards and rolled into the end zone.

HOPES DIMMER
The less-for the Lions was their eighth in nine starts and makes their chances of making one of the three playoff positions a tough task. Edmonton moved into third place, one point ahead of Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

About the only thing that kept the fans from laughing in the first half was a steady drizzle which turned into a full-fledged storm by the time the halftime entertainment was over.

TELL THE STORY
The yardstick for the first 30 minutes told the story: B.C. had four first-downs and Edmonton three; the Lions picked up one yard rushing, 79 yards passing and quarterback Paul Brothers threw the interceptions.

The total offence for both teams was 141 yards.

The Lions had three fumbles in the first two quarters, the Eskimos two.

Running back Donnie Shanklin and Brothers gave the Lions field position for Gerela's field goal at 5:40 from a bad angle and the Lions went into the second quarter with a 4-0 lead after Norrie was rouged.

STARTS WITH INTERCEPTION
Colchour, who completed only two of nine passes attempts in the first half, got his big chance when Dick Dupuis picked off a Brothers' pass deep in B.C. territory late in the first quarter.

He threw to Art Perkins and the big fullback gave the Eskimos first-down yardage on the Lions' five-yard line.

Three plays into the second quarter, Nettles grabbed off Colchour's flip for the touch-down. Cutler was wide on the conversion attempt.

Rich Robinson blocked Roger Kettlewell's punt and Dave Wray pounced on the loose ball at the Edmonton 25.

Gerela was wide from 37 yards, but B.C. picked up a single when the ball rolled through the end zone.

FUMBLE, FUMBLE
After that, it was fumble, fumble for the Lions and Thomas for the Eskimos.

Jim Evenson dropped Brothers' hand-off with six minutes gone in the third quarter and only the ineptitude of the Edmonton offence prevented the Lions from paying for it.

Then in the third quarter, Brothers dropped the ball.

Thomas managed to stay on his feet in the soggy grass while sidestepping the muddy B.C. defence, in his fourth-quarter run on a handoff from Colchour.

Cutler kicked the extra point.

Jenkins Records 20th Victory But Mets Maintain Margin

Ferguson Jenkins, helping himself as much with his hitting as pitching, won his 20th game of the season Wednesday, but it wasn't enough for Chicago Cubs to gain ground in the Eastern Division of the National League.

New York Mets retained their four-game lead by blanking lowly Montreal Expos, 5-0, on the six-hit pitching of Jerry Koosman to record their 13th victory in the last 14 games.

Koosman, who blanked the Pirates, 1-0, in his previous outing, boosted his record to 15-9 with his fifth shutout and 14th complete game of the season.

Wayne Garrett's two-run single sparked New York's three-run rally in the fourth inning.

At Chicago, Jenkins became the only pitcher in the major to win 20 games in each of the last three seasons as the Cubs outlasted Philadelphia Phillies, 9-7. Last Cub to record three straight 20-win seasons was Hippo Vaughn in 1919.

Jenkins, who needed relief help in the eighth inning after Cubs had built up a 9-3 lead, hit a three-run triple in the five-run Chicago fifth.

The Chatham, Ont., right-hander left in favor of Ken Johnson after loading the bases in the eighth, but recorded six strikeouts to break his own club record for a season. He now has 261 strikeouts compared to 260 last season.

Ron Santo and Billy Williams added home runs in Chicago's 14-hit attack.

Pittsburgh Pirates took over third place, downing St. Louis Cardinals, 4-2, on rookie Al Oliver's 17th homer, a two-run blow in the eighth inning.

In the Western Division, Larry Dierker became the first 20-game winner in Houston history as the Astros dumped San Francisco Giants out of first place with a 2-1 victory.

Doug Rader's solo home run in the eighth inning, his 11th of the season, broke a 1-1 tie in the pitching duel between Dierker and Gaylord Perry of Giants, who both finished with five-hitters.

Houston took the lead in the fourth inning on Jim Wynn's 32nd homer but successive one-out singles by Willie Mays, Willie McCovey and Bobby Bonds tied the game in the sixth inning.

Hank Aaron led off the 12th inning with his 42nd homer of the year, giving Atlanta a 6-5 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers and sending the Braves back into first place.

The victory gave the Braves a half-game lead over San Francisco while Los Angeles dropped to third, one game back of the Braves.

Jim Lefebvre walloped a two-run triple in the bottom of the eighth inning as Los Angeles rallied to tie it 5-5.

Cincinnati Reds further tightened the race by downing San Diego Padres, 10-5.

Tony Perez led the 20-hit Cincinnati attack with three hits, driving in three runs.

Alex Johnson, who drove in two runs, Tommy Helms, Peter Rose and Woody Woodward also had three hits for Reds.

Rookie Bob Brooks gave Athletics their win with a run-scoring single in the 10th inning to give Jim Hunter his first victory in 11 decisions. Hunter is now 10-15 for the season.

Chicago White Sox extended their win streak to four games by sweeping a doubleheader from last-place Seattle Pilots, 6-4 and 2-1.

Billy Wynne won the second game with a four-hitter, losing his shutout to John Donaldson's third-inning homer.

Trapp Within Stroke Of Tournery Leader

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Brian Bond of Mississauga, Ont., retained a one-stroke lead Wednesday with a three-over-par 75 in the second round of a 54-hole golf championship for professionals under 25.

Bond shot 72 in the first round, for a 36-hole total of 147, one stroke ahead of Finn Sorenson of Edmonton and Vaughan Trapp of Victoria, who shot their second 75s.

The three top players in the championship will each receive $1,500. Only 15 of the 38 players broke 80 Wednesday.

Only 36 will tee off in the final round today.

In philosophical or even suicidal moments — such as when you've just failed to make the cut at the third tournament in a row — it's easy to fall to thinking about inscriptions on tombstones.

I had always thought I would settle for something simple like "He always tried to get round in under three hours" or "Swinging through life."

But then, last week, I saw a sentence that made me change my mind. It was browsing through an article on the subject of Arnold Palmer turning 40. It read almost like an obituary in the opening round of the American PGA tournament and withdrawn.

The writer made it clear that he thought Palmer would never be back. Or at least never as the same compelling figure on the fairways.

He ended his article with these words: "Recently Palmer has given his nobility to losing."

Well, I guess they'll never stick that on my tombstone, but what an inscription, "He gave a nobility to losing!"

It is odd that a journalist should get so emotional about a professional sportsman, but that is the effect that Arnold Palmer has had on many millions of people throughout his career.

I don't want this column to sound like an obituary but, with no Palmer in the American Ryder cup team this week, it is an appropriate moment at least to pay tribute to this astonishing golfer.

I do so not so much because I was a close colleague of Palmer's on the tournament circuit, for he was not a hail-fellow-how-are-you, but rather because I have a great respect for men who have raised the status of the professional golfer.

Some of my younger colleagues on the circuit can have no idea of the huge social revolution that has taken place in the game.

It is well within my lifetime that the status of a golf pro was precisely that of a gamekeeper. There were plenty of clubs where the pro was not considered either sophisticated or sanitary enough to have in the club house.

In Britain the man who did most to change that little idea was Henry Cotton. And if I had to choose one man who has taken up Cotton's work since then I would name Arnold Palmer.

He is the man who has given pro golf an aura of its own, an aura compounded somehow of good manners, courtesy, charm, an acute business acumen, brilliant professionalism, highly extensive living and — although this sounds like a contradiction in terms — discreet showmanship.

None of this would have been any good, of course, had not Palmer in his prime been a fantastically great golf player.

Here he brought a new dimension to a sport. The brutal hitting, the controlled slogging, the unbelievable recovery play, the famous "charge" when suddenly he would shatter a tightly-knit field with maybe five birdies and two eagles in nine holes.

This was what emptied the other fairways as thousands flocked to join "Arnie's Army" just to get a glimpse of the great man.

But it was his conduct that completed the image. He might have been smarting like hell at one error, but there was always the courteous nod to an opponent.

There was always the graciousness he showed towards the spectators. There was always the patience, the time and the good humor he would devote towards the ever besieging bunch of Pressmen. There was his habit of remembering names and having time to say thanks to the locker-room attendant.

Quite how Palmer kept it up under the fierce pressures of his life — the constant travel, the endless glare of publicity, the awful pressure of never being allowed to fail — I shall never know.

But if, indeed, he is coming to the end of his career, these are the qualities that I shall remember about him.

One could cynically add, I suppose, that it paid him to maintain his courteous composure because he has finished up a multi-millionaire. But the gist of greatness for me is that golf as a profession is better for Arnold Palmer having devoted the best years of his life to it.

I trust the rumors are wrong. I trust that his progressively worsening hip condition can be cured completely and that we shall see him in action again.

But just in case we don't, here's one golfer's opinion of what another golfer has done for our sport.

Track coach and publisher Chris Pickard of Toronto says it is time track and field in this country stopped feeling sorry for itself and started to solve its own problems.

"Our present situation seems to be that if the government does not help, we are doomed and will fall apart," Pickard says in the current issue of Ontario Track Monthly.

He soundly raps this philosophy, recommending that the Canadian Track and Field Association must take drastic steps to become financially sound in 1980-70 and outlines ways of accomplishing this goal.

Pickard points out that the CTFA receives $1 from each athlete, coach and official for membership fees each year. More funds are available by club affiliation fees.

"Surely we should increase our membership from less than 10,000 to over 100,000," Pickard writes. "Think of the athletes, coaches and officials that a mass membership drive would produce."

Stock-Car Standings

Price Chasing

Mel Marshall

With only two stock car races left, Mel Marshall holds a negligible lead over Bill Price in the race for top driver honors.

Marshall has 599 points, only three more than Price, who has been coming on strongly in recent weeks.

The issue could well be decided Saturday night at Western Speedway when the 1969 stock-car championship, 24 cars for 75 laps, will be featured. Time trials are at 7 p.m.

SUPER STOCK CHAMP

Garry Kershaw, winner of the Canadian "100", last week's superstock finale, was the champion in the senior division with 348 points, 71 more than runner-up Dave Cooper.

Saturday's race in Monroeville, Wash., is the last on the Canadian American Modified

Whimsical Jogging Problem to Patrols

A jogger who carries a shopping bag with an empty milk bottle inside at 4 a.m. runs the risk of being picked up by a police officer, who might charge him with vagrancy.

That's what happened to T. Byron McNutt of 4150 Grange.

"I do a 10-mile jog twice a week," McNutt said Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court, where he stood trial on the vagrancy charge.

"And that's not the first time I got stopped," he added.

To be considered a vagrant, a person must be without apparent means of support, have no fixed address and be unable to explain his presence at the time and place of arrest.

And that's where the hangup was in McNutt's case.

DAIRY FARMER

He has lived at the same address for more than 50 years, and he is the owner of a dairy farm on Wilkinson Road.

He told court that he had been stopped on previous occasions, once by an auxiliary policeman who was under the influence of alcohol.

"There were two of them. One became quite abusive — he was half tanked, the other was pretty level-headed," McNutt said.

ALLOWED TO GO

"After a few minutes I was allowed to go, but a few nights later, the same thing happens, and by this time I'm getting fed up with the whole business."

He said he told the officers that they could get all information at their office because he had been questioned a few nights before, but the policemen wouldn't take that for an answer.

"One gets out of the car, sneaks behind me and pushes me. I fall down, and the next thing I know he's riding me. I thought, well, if they want to give me any rough stuff they'll do it now, and I covered my head."

When he was arrested Monday morning he first argued with the police officers, McNutt said.

"When I finally told him my name, he says that I'm too late," Victoria Constable F. W. Mills told court that he asked the accused for his name, address and reason for his running along the street.

NO BLAME

Judge William Ostler said he couldn't blame anyone involved in the case.

"It's difficult for police officers in these troubled times of increasing crime all over the continent to distinguish between honest and established citizens who engage in a somewhat whimsical conduct and a person who is trying to hide something."

Whimsical conduct was no offence, he said, and he hoped it never would be, but is hoped it noted that the policeman had reason to be suspicious.

The case was dismissed.

Student Urges Firmness:

Appeasement of Radicals Spurs Campus Violence

A Vancouver university student urged Victoria businessmen Tuesday to raise their voices against universities which permit student and faculty radicalism.

The appeal came from John Cherrington, president of the University of British Columbia's debating society. He spoke to the Kiwanis Club of Victoria at the Empress Hotel.

"Show your concern for the way universities are being run," said Mr. Cherrington. "Express your disapproval of any appeasement of radical destroyers on campus."

Mr. Cherrington told the club that he spoke for "a good segment of the student population — students who are tired of the theorizing and the rabble-rousing, and who want to get on with their education."

STAND URGED

The student said that legitimate grievances on campuses are being distorted by a radical minority.

"The evidence is clear that these so-called reformists have really one aim: to destroy, to break free of law, or order, to shun justice."

"And those who naively sympathize with these individuals are being used as tools."

Mr. Cherrington asked when university administrators are going to take a stand against radicals.

FACULTY CLUB

"If their policy of appeasement which has been developing during the past few years continues, then we are simply inviting violence and upheaval," he said.

He recalled last winter's student occupations of the administration building at faculty club at UBC and the Simon Fraser University.

"If it is reactionary to be responsible, to respect certain values, to desire justice for those who disobey the rules, then I am proud to be reactionary," said Mr. Cherrington.

When these individuals use the university as a tool for protest, when they infringe upon the welfare of the hard-working students, when they harm or threaten the taxpayers' property, they have no rights to attend university and should be expelled."

MONEY SHORTAGE

Mr. Cherrington questioned the existence of a money shortage at B.C. campuses.

"I as a student would like to know where all the poor students are who are suffering because of this lack of space," he said.

He conceded that there are crowded areas at his university, but predicted that it will always be this way as long as it is financed by the public.

He advocated a semester system to make use of the campus all year long, reduced building costs, and another public fund-raising drive.

"The taxpayer today is becoming increasingly skeptical of the way universities are being run. But I would say this: if the taxpayer is in an anti-intellectual mood, then it is the fault and the fault only of the university."

Mr. Cherrington said one thing that universities should begin doing is scrutinizing the people they hire to teach. Some professors care only for "propagandizing their own ideas" and working for a doctorate, he charged.

SHEET OF FLAME CAME DOWN AISLE

By BEANT FELKER

CAMPBELL RIVER — "There was no warning at all. We came out of the clouds and there were the trees, all around us."

"We went bump, bump, bump, like a man going downstairs, then spun around and a sheet of flame came down the aisle."

Campbell River lawyer Al Lazerte paused and looked around the lobby of the Campbell River hospital. Two hours earlier he had been a passenger in the plane that crashed. Five or six other passengers who, like Mr. Lazerte, didn't appear to have suffered more than a shaking up, were walking around the lobby.

Mr. Lazerte pointed to one of them. "He was first out," he said.

He was pointing to Jim Beatty, a Vancouver mechanic.

Mr. Beatty said he ran to the emergency door and opened it. Mr. Lazerte followed him, then Margaret Hemphill of Oakland, Calif.

Meanwhile, other passengers were trying to get the regular back door opened, but it was jammed.

"I gave it a heave with my back," said Wray Compton, a Campbell River millworker. "One of the stewardesses was trying to get it open, and I just pushed over her. She was afraid I would step on her. The door gave, I jumped out and hauled her out after me."

She was followed by Guy Young, a Gold River millworker, and Nils Westahagen, a Vancouver marine mechanic, Mr. Compton said.

"Once we were out," Mr. Lazerte said, "there was a small explosion and the plane just burned up in front of our eyes. There wasn't anything we could do to stop it."

He said a woman in the front of the cabin

Senate Puts Lid on Troops For Thailand, Laos Duties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate voted Wednesday to put a ceiling on overall U.S. troop strength and to limit any U.S. defence of Thailand and Laos to providing supplies and equipment — not men.

The amendments, with the Pentagon's stamp of approval, passed overwhelmingly as the senate drove toward passage of a $20 billion defence procurement bill after eight weeks of debate. A vote on the bill may be held today.

- Lawyer once saved Ho's life. Page 41

Backers of the ceiling measure hailed it as a broad prohibition on the use of U.S. forces in Southeast Asia — "A Gulf of Tonkin resolution in reverse."

But the defence department

contended it did not constitute a legal limitation on U.S. forces and decided not to fight it. It consequently passed 86 to 0.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky.) sponsored the measure as an amendment to the procurement bill, which contains $2.5 billion for support of local forces in Vietnam, Thailand and Laos.

Cooper contended the language in the bill was so broad that it had "the same legal authority as a declaration of war." He demanded a change to prevent the senate from unwittingly approving another Gulf of Tonkin resolution — the controversial 1964 vote which the Johnson administration used as the legal basis for escalating the Vietnam war.

Quebec's 'Pride' Now QC

QUEBEC (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was named a Queen's counsel by the Quebec cabinet Wednesday.

Could this be interpreted as a sign of détente in Ottawa-Quebec relations? a reporter asked Justice Minister Remy Paul.

"Relations between the justice minister and Ottawa have never been strained," he replied.

"It simply means that the bar of the province of Quebec is proud to see one of its members in such high office."

Tars Brawl, Four Killed

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — About 80 Japanese and Chinese merchant seamen brawled in the streets with knives, fists, rocks and chairs. Four were killed and several others injured, police said.

"First reports are that Japanese sailors were flashing a lot of money around. They attracted all the girls and fighting started," said Cape Town criminal investigation chief Brig. J. Visagie.

Art Heisting Seaside Job

SOUTHAMPTON, England (UPI) — A thief stole a $2,880 painting, Robert Motherwell's Beside the Sea, from the art gallery aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth 2, police said Wednesday.

37 Years Later

Prisoner Right, He IS Innocent

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Frank Sawyer, 70, jailed 37 years ago for a bank robbery he said he didn't commit, was pardoned Wednesday by Governor Robert Docking. The governor said Sawyer is innocent of the 1932 bank robbery.

Sawyer has been serving a 20-to-100-year sentence for the robbery of a Fort Scott, Kan., bank in 1932.

A former United States public enemy No. 1, Alvin Karpis, now on parole in Montreal, had said that he and several others committed the bank robbery 37 years ago and that Sawyer did not take part.

The man who prosecuted Sawyer also testified. He said he now believes that Sawyer did not participate in the robbery.

Dief at 74 Still bigger than life, no image of frailty now

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — The member of Parliament for Prince Albert turns 74 today and he says he hasn't felt better in years.

"You don't see many days when I am absent from the House of Commons," John Diefenbaker said in a private pre-birthday interview.

"I've had wonderful health in the last 15 years. The Lord has been good to me."

Still running free in the wide range of emotions that made him such a tumultuous figure as Conservative leader and prime minister: the high-pitched chuckle as he ponders the amusing story he will tell in his next speech; the mood of sombre reflection; the stern and demanding voice of doom when he deals with current political issues.

Mr. Diefenbaker, even while leaning back with his legs crossed in his swivel chair in his parliamentary office, still seems larger than life. Although less sure of step, there is no image of the frailty of the old.

"I don't know how I look for a man my age," he said. "But I would take on any of these babies for a run—anybody 45 or over."

He still takes a daily 40-minute walk around 6 a.m. "on the double" through treed suburban Rockcliffe, where he lives quietly in a house with his wife, Olive.

It is an ironic footnote that Mr. Diefenbaker lives among the moneyed elite, the kind of people he was never really at home with. Rockcliffe is that kind of place.

A Rockcliffe neighbor is his greatest oldtime political rival, former prime minister Lester Pearson, now retired from politics.

"I never see him although I walk by there," he said. The old man, a little hard of hearing, looked at a First World War picture of himself in uniform on the opposite wall.

"I wouldn't have believed 53 years ago when that picture was taken overseas that I would be here today," he said.

Invalided home to Canada following an accidental injury over there, his weight went down to 128 from 180. It didn't come back easily. He was 190 when

CAMPBELL RIVER—Three persons were killed and 12 suffered minor injuries Wednesday night when a Pacific Western Airlines plane crashed in thick fog near here.

Survivors said they escaped through an emergency door and a rear door which had to be forced open by one of the passengers.

A few minutes later, there was a small explosion and the plane erupted into flames.

Crashes Into Trees

A PWA spokesman identified the dead as: Pilot Capt. Brian Bourne, 33, of Richmond; first officer V. H. Hennell, 57, of Vancouver and passenger Mrs. J. Jones of Willow Springs, Ohio.

The spokesman said the pilot was an experienced veteran. The twin-engine Convair 640, carrying 11 passengers and a crew of four, crashed in second-growth trees in Elk Falls Park, two miles North of Campbell River, its destination on a flight from Vancouver.

The aircraft went down about 7 p.m. A forest lookout, near the scene, Lawrie Lawrenson said fog was so thick at the time that he neither saw nor heard the crash.

The plans was reported overdue at Campbell River airport about an hour later, and it wasn't until two of the survivors had hiked out three miles along a service road before being taken to a telephone by a hunter that it became known the plane had crashed.

The forest lookout said, "I had wind of about 40 miles per hour and it was so black with fog I couldn't see or hear. The fog was real thick. I couldn't put my hand outside the door or I'd lose sight of it."

Star Cancels TV Series Over Smokes Commercial

Reynolds

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Debbie Reynolds announced Wednesday she was cancelling production of her new television series because a cigarette commercial was aired on the program's debut Tuesday night. Nine segments of the series already had been filmed and presumably will still be shown.

Nine Reynolds said the cigarette commercial was in direct violation of her agreement with NBC. She said she felt she had fully outlined in advance her feelings about cigarettes and commercials which she felt were "directly opposed to health and well being."

Diabetic Nasser Ailing

From UPI

Premier Bahjat Talhouki of Jordan said Wednesday that Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser was too ill to see him during his three-day visit to Cairo. In Beirut it was reported Nasser has started a purge to avert Soviet efforts to oust him.

Talhouki, speaking on arrival from Cairo, said "Nasser is sick and under medical treatment". Nasser is a diabetic but it was not known if this was the cause of his present ailment.

In Beirut, the independent newspaper Al Jarida said the key official dismissed in the Nasser administration was Ali Sabry, former premier and more recently secretary general of Nasser's Arab Socialist Union Party.

- Israeli jets pound Port Suez. Page 3

The newspaper, quoting unidentified Egyptian observers, said Sabry was the Kremlin's choice to replace Nasser. It said the Kremlin planned to engineer Nasser's overthrow while he was in Russia for medical treatment later this month.

Al Jarida said the Soviet Union wants to topple Nasser because of widening conflicts with him on the issues of armaments for Egypt, Russian influence in Egypt and the overall Middle East problem.

U.S. Warships In Black Sea

ISTANBUL (AP) — Despite Soviet protests, two U.S. destroyers sailed through the Dardanelles Wednesday en route to the Black Sea on a four-day cruise. It was the second visit to the Black Sea this year by the Newman Perry and the Norris, both part of the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

Railway Blaze Empties Schools

Boys' Mental Home

Residents Will Fight B.C. Plan

About 90 people from the Albert Head and Metchoin areas decided Wednesday night to fight a government plan to build a boys' mental institution on a 90-acre, B.C.-owned plot on Metchoin Road.

At an open meeting of the Albert Head Ratepayers Association, it was decided to seek wider support from all the surrounding areas, petition the government against the mental home and press for controls over government's power to remove without consulting the locals.

Two reasons for the stand against the proposed institution stood out. One was summed up by a man who identified himself as Mr. Nixon:

GUN MENTIONED

A lock only keeps out an honest man. I for one don't want to sleep with a gun under my pillow at night.

The second major fear was that the mental institution would devalue surrounding property. Said a woman who didn't give her name: "It's the pocketbook that counts." If the proposed 32-bed institution was allowed, she said, it would only expand and further devalue adjacent lands.

"Just like in the jails," she said, "They'll keep pushing them in until they're falling out the bars."

NO DIFFERENCE

Well-known Metchoin resident Geoff Mitchell disagreed, saying the William Head minimum security institution had made no difference to land values. His remarks were heard and jeered by many in the St. Mary's Anglican Parish Memorial Hall.

Some alternatives were offered. One was to locate the institution near Vancouver because "we figure the boys would be closer to home."

AT UVIC

Another, by Charles Burr of 3615 Farhill, was to put the institution on the University of Victoria campus. Still another suggestion was that there was plenty of room on Vancouver Island without placing it at Albert Head.

The general complaint was that if we're paying taxes, we should have a say in where it's going. Association secretary-treasurer George Brulier said the proposed site was only 35 minutes' walk from residential areas.

NEARBY HOMES

If a boy should escape from the institution, "he'll need clothing, he'll need money, he'll need transportation" and won't have far to go to find these things in nearby homes, he said.

Four motions were approved by the meeting, including a 10-point memorandum by the association executive that listed criticisms of the methods by which the B.C. and federal governments have used their powers to establish institutions despite opposition by local ratepayers.

ONE POINT

One point was that the Social Credit government upon coming to power in the early 1950s promised not to build any such institution in the area.

Besides presenting these objections to the B.C. government at an October meeting, the association will:

- Attempt to gain support for its fight against the institution by merging efforts with sympathizers in Metchoin, Colwood and Langford.
- Petition for signatures opposing the institution in as large an area as possible.
- Press for referendum votes in the area whenever an attempt is being made by governments to remove in the area.

Cutter Towed Home

The coast guard cutter Ready is being towed toward Victoria today for repairs to her sternmost propeller broken Wednesday when the vessel struck a rock in Griffin Passage, 125 miles north of Vancouver Island.

The Ready is being towed by the Sir James Douglas, also a coast guard vessel, that travelled north to help the stricken cutter home. The two left Griffin Passage at 7 p.m. Wednesday, and are due to arrive late today.

Herb Buchanan, transport department's West Coast regional director, said Wednesday he did not know why the Ready went into Griffin Passage, which is known for its navigational hazards.

Jordan River

Surfers Partial Victors

A surfing club has won a temporary victory in its attempt to have the beach at Jordan River protected by the government as a recreational area.

Surfer Kent Fiddy said Wednesday that the government lands branch had agreed to withhold permission for a construction company to take fill from the shoreline of the Jordan River beach.

INITIAL PERIOD

Instead, Emil Anderson Co., doing work at the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority's Jordan River installations, will be allowed to take fill from the east side of the river for an initial 30 days.

Mr. Fiddy, 19, said his club, West Coast Surfing Association, would continue its drive to have the whole area set aside as a public playground.

Fears that their surfing area would be ruined mounted when the contractor's earth-moving equipment began to take fill from the tidal flat two weeks ago. The scrapping was halted when the government learned that the company was taking fill without a permit.

VERY HAPPY

The surfers hold that even slight changes to the sandbar where scrapping was in progress would adversely affect the wave formation. The Jordan River beach is one of the only two accessible surfing areas on the West Coast, they say.

Mr. Fiddy said he was "very happy" at the lands branch decision to protect the beach, and praised government officials for their help and concern, but he said his club would soon apply to have the protection extended.

New Style Bill For City Water

A new type of Victoria water bill will be going into the mail Friday.

Instead of a statement in an envelope, it will be a simple fold-over slip, sealed at one end. It will be similar to the B.C. Hydro bills and those of many other companies.

Assistant City Treasurer Mason Sheikhal said Wednesday the new bill could be folded and sealed by machine, and would save time and money for the city.

Rates and other information are printed on the back of the new bill.

Customs Confiscates Medicinal Morphine

Sailing Duo Claims Shabby Greeting

By DON COLLINS

Don't sail into Victoria from some other country with drugs you have purchased legally, Canadian customs officials will destroy them and you won't receive compensation.

And there's a chance you may also receive shabby treatment at the hands of Canadian immigration officials.

This was the message Wednesday from two bitter New Zealand brothers as they prepared to sail their 35-foot yacht to San Francisco after a stay of three months here.

John Glenzie, 28, and David, 26, said they lost 2½ grains of morphine to the customs men after carrying it with them for the last five years in case of an emergency at sea.

"They asked if we had anything to declare and I said we had two shots of morphine and that we wanted them to hold it in bond, as is done for you at ports in other countries," said John, who is skipper of the homemade Hightlight.

He said this occurred June 17 and that he was given a receipt which wasn't signed. He asked the meaning of the words "abandoned to the crown" on the receipt and was told the morphine now would be destroyed, he said.

On Wednesday John, David and an Australian sailor, Barry Gorman, returned to the customs office to see what could be done about compensation.

FOR MORPHINE

They said they were told they wouldn't be paid for the morphine.

"It only costs about $150," John said. "But it's the inconvenience. It would cost another $10 to see a doctor and get a prescription and then you might not get it."

Said John: "They indicated they've got a real problem here. They've got junkies lurking around everywhere just ready to break into your boat and hit you over the head to get at your morphine."

He said the customs men were only interested in the morphine and didn't ask that any forms be filled out.

JUST TWO

"We left Hawaii with a skipper and three crewmen and when we arrived here there was just David and myself," he said. "For all they knew, or cared, we could have slit the throats of the crew and thrown them overboard."

Customs officer Alex Pritchard said Wednesday night that rules call for destruction of any kind of drugs "once they are confiscated." He didn't elaborate.

Chief customs officials were not available.

Mr. Pritchard denied that firearms are treated the same as drugs. The brothers said they were told by one official that this was the case.

David said an immigration

official granted them only a 48-hour visa at first and asked: "what can New Zealanders contribute to Canada?"

"I said I was surprised about the visa thing because we were members of the Commonwealth and he told me there was no Commonwealth," David said.

"Word gets around fast among sailing people about bad ports," said John.

"And we're going to make sure that everyone knows Victoria is a bad port."

Crown Ticked Off

Charge Inadequacies Fail to Gain Acquittal

Judge William Ostler criticized the crown Wednesday for "poor craftsmanship" in drawing up charges.

The judge's remarks came at the end of a trial involving Richard E. Shaw, 22 of 12 Gorge Road West, who was remanded until Oct. 6 for sentence and pre-sentence report after being found guilty of possessing marijuana.

An inadequacy in the charge was noted by Shaw's defence counsel, Robert Price.

OFFICIAL WORDING

He told court that the official schedule of the Canadian narcotics law listed marijuana as "Cannabis (Marijuana)" and "Cannabis resin."

He emphasized that the "Cannabis (Marijuana)" version, the word marijuana was capitalized and in brackets while the "Cannabis resin" version showed no brackets and listed the word resin with a small "r."

There's a good reason for that," he said.

Drugs, of whatever kind, he called "chemical substitutes for growing up, for finding ourselves."

The problem in Canada is rapidly growing, especially on the West Coast. He said Montreal had one drug addict for each 5,000 of its population, Toronto one for each 3,700 — and Vancouver one for each 200.

Fall Gold Added Artistry

Adding some touches of brushwork to nature's masterpiece, Everett Anders goes to work on patio of Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. Annual pattern of fallen leaves was still being added to Wednesday, and Mr. Anders' broom seemed all too small for tidying it up. — (William E. John)

5,400 Enrolled

Undergrad Limit Relaxed at UVic

The University of Victoria expects to enrol 5,400 undergraduate students and 228 graduates this fall, the university senate was told Wednesday.

The senate, top academic group on campus, learned that the previously-fixed undergraduate limit of 5,300 had been relaxed, partly because of unexpectedly high re-registration of last year's students who were guaranteed a place this fall.

All first-year applicants except 70 who failed their freshman year last spring were admitted, said registrar Ronald Ferry.

New enrolment restrictions imposed during the summer had raised fears that several hundred first-year applicants would be turned away.

The university set a limit of 2,000 first-year students. As of Wednesday, said Mr. Ferry, 1,908 had applied.

Enrolment Wednesday totalled 5,160 undergraduates, plus 228 graduate students seeking master's or doctor's degrees.

Mr. Ferry said another 209 students were in the process of late registration.

There will be an expected 319 extension students attending part-time, he added, for an estimated grand total of 5,448. The 5,400 undergraduate students are expected to "shake down" to about 5,300. Last year's enrolment totalled 4,726, including graduate students.

Heroin Contact Made Easier

Marijuana Penalty Risky

Young users of marijuana come into contact with heroin peddlers because the law pushes them together. Rev. Ted Kropp, Protestant chaplain at the Matsqui Institution for Drug Rehabilitation, said Wednesday.

"The worst effect of the present law on marijuana is that it makes law-breakers out of young people and brings them into contact with real criminals," he said.

Mr. Kropp, a proponent of group therapy methods as an approach to the problems of drug users, was speaking at a public meeting sponsored by the Coumplan Club of First United Church, Quadra and Balmoral.

He added that he was not sure legalizing marijuana was the answer. "We are going to have to evolve a society capable of handling legalized drugs, with all the possible consequences," he said. "We are a long way from it now."

He said it seemed every society needed a socially-accepted drug, and for thousands of years widely differing societies had accepted alcohol.

"Marijuana has been around just as long as alcohol, but it's interesting to note that it has never been a socially-accepted drug. Maybe there's a good reason for that," he said.

Drugs, of whatever kind, he called "chemical substitutes for growing up, for finding ourselves."

The problem in Canada is rapidly growing, especially on the West Coast. He said Montreal had one drug addict for each 5,000 of its population, Toronto one for each 3,700 — and Vancouver one for each 200.
